New arms race seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States may halt production of its Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile and build a larger, more powerful new ICBM if it cannot win significant cuts in the Soviet nuclear arsenal at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

Such a U.S. move, which would risk a deadly rebirth of the arms race, is known to be one of several hard alternatives that senior U.S. defense officials are considering should SALT fail to produce what they regard as a true nuclear balance between the superpowers.

Other less drastic options also under preliminary consideration include:

—Full-scale land-based deployment of the Minuteman III, the most advanced version of the mainstay of the U.S. ICBM force. The present deployment lineup is 550 Minuteman IIIs and 450 of the older Minuteman IIs.

—Developing a new mobile land-based ICBM force to provide a much more difficult target in event of attack.

—Increasing the firepower of each Minuteman III to six or seven hydrogen bombs capable of being aimed at separate targets. The present Minuteman III warhead carries three such bombs, each with an explosive force of about 200 kilotons, equal to 200,000 tons of TNT.

U.S. officials would much prefer to see a negotiated nuclear balance emerge from the second phase of the SALT talks, which are expected to begin Sept. 20 in Geneva.

Mexico policy told

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Newly appointed U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger promised new U.S. interest in Latin America Saturday after a two-hour talk with Mexican President Luis Echeverria.

"What is in the interest of Mexico—in a wider sense—is in the interest of the United States," he said. "And what is in the interest of the United States is in the interest of Mexico. We shall apply this principle to all of Latin America."

Kissinger said new relations "will be based on friendship, respect for independence and a spirit of cooperation. We respect the diversity of the various countries."

"Justice, cooperation and human well-being know no national boundaries," he added.

Kissinger said he came to Mexico just 48 hours after his presidential appointment "at the express request of President Nixon, to show the importance we shall attach to relations with Latin America and the impetus we shall give those relations."

Kissinger, awaiting Senate confirmation, arrived here Friday night to attend the 25th wedding anniversary party of Mexican foreign relations secretary Emilio O. Rabasa. He was due back in the United States Saturday night.

He also promised special attention to the Mexican proposal for a United Nations charter of economic rights and duties of nations. "We shall examine these proposals with respect and concern", he said.

Trapped 9 days ago

2 Miners dead

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) —Rescue workers smashed their way into a dead-end copper mine tunnel 1,300 feet underground Saturday and found the bodies of two miners trapped for nine days.

Climaxing more than a week of frantic digging following a cave-in Aug. 17 at the desert mine operated by Hecla Mining Co., a rescue team located the bodies of David Deeder, 41, Casa Grande, and Terry Udall, 24, Fort Collins, Colo., lying at the end of the 500-foot horizontal shaft.

"They were located in the back of the chamber where we had expected to find them," said Verne McCutchan, inspector of Arizona mines.

"We did everything possible to get them out. They did have air and water but we do not know how long they might have lived following the cave-in."

Cause of the miners' deaths was not known, McCutchan said, adding that autopsies would be performed.

The men were cut off from the outside world about 10 a.m. Aug. 17 when an accumulation of drilling muck cut loose from a ventilation shaft being driven towards the surface from the tunnel.

Other workers in the area managed to escape out the open end of the tunnel. One of them, loading equipment operator Edward Hazelhurst, said he last saw Deeder and Udall running toward the back of the tunnel, which extends 500 feet beyong the blockage.

Then a fire was touched off by a spark that ignited fuel escaping from the Hazelhurst's abandoned loader. Flames spread quickly to mining timbers and filled the entire length of the tunnel with choking smoke and fumes.

It was never known whether the smoke also had poured into the dead-end section of the tunnel where the men were trapped.

"The men were not caught in the slide," said McCutchan. "But we do not know whether they were burned."

He said the 500-foot section of tunnel where the cave-in occurred would be sealed off for a few more days while an investigation is completed. He added operations throughout the rest of the mine located on the Papago Indian Reservation 35 miles southwest of Casa Grande would resume Sunday.

Nixon knew 'whole thing', Martha says

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —Martha Mitchell, disputing both her husband and President Nixon, claims the two men talked frequently in the summer of 1972 while the Watergate cover-up was building, and that Nixon knew about "the whole goddamn thing."

The wife of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, in telephone interviews Thursday and Friday from her New York City apartment, also said her husband was "a goddamn fool" for shielding the President during his testimony before the Senate Watergate Committee.

Mitchell backed up Nixon's claim of uninvolvement in Watergate in hopes that the President will come to his rescue if he is convicted of any crime, she said, adding "he thinks he would give him clemency for what he has done for him."

Trial Sept. 11

Mitchell is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 11 in New York on charges of obstructing justice and attempting to defraud the government in connection with a $200,300 contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign.

Nixon and Mitchell have indicated they had little contact last summer.

MARTHA MITCHELL . . . Speaks out again

Mrs. Mitchell offered a different view.

"Nixon was aware of the whole goddamned thing," she asserted. "For God's sake, he used to call John at 2 o'clock in the morning. And he said he didn't call his attorney general? He called him every night."

'Every night'

"Why did they go out on the Sequoia (the presidential yacht) every night last summer during re-election?" she said.

Mitchell left the Justice Department March 1, 1972, to serve as Nixon's campaign manager. He resigned that post two weeks after the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democrats' Watergate headquarters.

He told the Senate committee that he never informed Nixon about the cover-up because he feared the President would blow the story wide open and jeopardize his re-election chances. But the former attorney general also said Nixon never asked him whether top administration or campaign officials were involved in a cover-up and that he would have given him all the information if the President had inquired.

Didn't ask Mitchell

Nixon told a news conference here last Wednesday that Mitchell was right to think he would "blow my stack" if he learned about the cover-up and that he never asked Mitchell about news reports because all investigative reports sent him gave no indication that Mitchell or other officials were involved.

Mrs. Mitchell said Nixon not only knew intimate details of the Watergate operation in the summer of 1972, as related by Mitchell, but that she had read a Nixon-written "campaign strategy book" and hinted that it included plans for Watergate-style maneuvers.

Saw Strategy book

"I saw the leather-bound campaign strategy book for 1972 that was written by Nixon and (H.R.) Haldeman," the former White House chief of staff, she said.

"It included the procedures of everything that has happened. I saw it with my own two eyes, when I was trying to press John not to go into the campaign."

Mrs. Mitchell said she feared her husband would never be able to extricate himself from Watergate and that the scandal had hurt their personal relationship.

"What Watergate has done to our lives," she mused. "We have been suffering. The President has assaulted both John and me in taking everything we had or wanted."

Robber who also dragged girl with him sought

POMONA — Police have no suspects in an armed robbery and kidnaping at the Der Wienerschnitzel at 1382 W. Holt Ave. here early Saturday morning.

Officers said a man, described as about 24 years old, 190 pounds and 5 feet 9 inches to 6 feet tall, entered the rear entrance to the drive-in, simulated a weapon in his coat pocket and took a small amount of money. Upon leaving the building he dragged a 17-year-old female employe to his car, but released her unharmed before entering his vehicle.

The suspect was reportedly driving a 1968 Ford Galaxie.

Kidnaping includes the removal of anyone from one location to another against his will, officers said in explaining the burglary-kidnaping charges.

In cases of prematurely induced labor

Simple test can save infant lives

CHICAGO (UPI) —A simple chemical test could help save the lives of infants in cases where labor must be induced prematurely, a doctor said Saturday.

The test, outlined in a report by the American Chemical Society, assesses the lung development of the unborn child. This information may help doctors determine the best time to deliver the infant.

Dr. John C. Morrison of the University of Tennessee Medical Units in Memphis, who refined the testing process for general clinical use, said the test determines the ratio of two chemical agents contained in the fluid which bathes the fetus within the womb.

An accurate measure of lung development, Morrison said, allows doctors to predict whether Respiratory Distress Syndrome and subsequent Hyaline Membrane Disease—the leading killer of premature infants — will develop after birth.

Morrison, in Chicago for the 166th national meeting of the American Chemical Society which opens Sunday, said his test measures the ratio of lecithin to sphengomyelin, in the amniotic fluid.

He said that the greater the lecithin-sphengomyelin ratio was, the less chance there would be that the infant would suffer Respiratory Distress Syndrome or Hyaline Membrane Disease.

In 310 normal pregnancies studied, the test exceeded 98 per cent accuracy in assessing fetal maturity, Morrison said.

Morrison's testing procedure is a simplification of a previously developed procedure which was cumbersome and not readily adaptable to clinical use. Morrison said his test may be used in most clinical laboratories.

Delivery of an infant "prior to term" is necessary in cases involving high risk infants, in pregnancies following caesarean births and in cases where the mother preselects her delivery date, Morrison said.

Poachers find costly meat prices not so en(deer)ing

RED HOUSE, N.Y. (UPI)— It's hardly a secret that the cost of beef is sky high these days. Two men who readily agree were ordered to pay more than $20 per pound in fines Saturday after they pleaded guilty to charges of deer-jacking at the Allegany State Park.

The men were fined a total of $2,050 on charges they took a 95-pound doe out of season at 4:30 in the morning.

Walter V. Hale, 23, of Bradford, Pa., and Kenneth R. McWilliams, 22, of Hilton, N.Y. pleaded guilty to numerous charges including "attempted jacklighting of deer," possession and transportation of a deer out of season, possession of a loaded firearm. Hale also pleaded guilty to misdemeanor possession of marijuana, police said.

The deer was still alive when police caught the men, a park patrolman said, but its throat had been cut and it had to be killed.

Hale was fined $1,075 and McWilliams $975 by Town Justice Charles Jann.

State conservation officials have noted an increase in poaching and deer-jacking incidents since the recent large rises in beef prices and the beef shortage.

WOMEN ON THE MARCH

About 50 members of the National Organization for Women (NOW) marched outside a downtown department store Saturday in Los Angeles in support of the boycott and strike action against Farah, the largest manufacturer of pants and slacks in the world. Ms. Arlie Scott, a spokesman for the group, said average take-home pay for Farah workers is $69 a week.

'No POWs alive in N. Viet; claims officer who was there 5 years

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Brig. Gen John Flynn, commander of the POWs at the Hanoi Hilton where he was held captive more than five years, said Saturday he did not believe any more POWs in North Vietnam are still alive.

Flynn told a news conference during a reunion of more than 255 POWs and 1,500 fighter pilots there was no logical reason for North Vietnam to still be holding Americans. He said he and most other returnees believed those men officially listed as missing-inaction by North Vietnam were dead.

"All categories of prisoners as we know have been released. They have released all senior officers and even those who killed North Vietnamese in resisting capture. There is no reason we can think of why they should (still be holding) any American prisoners."

Flynn, now vice commander of the Air War College at Maxwell AFB, was captured in October, 1967, when he ejected from his fighter jet after it was disabled over Hanoi by a missile. He was released March 14, 1973.

Almost without exception, he said, each man held in North Vietnam was accounted for or reported in the debriefing of returning POWs. He did not comment on prisoners held in South Vietnam.

"We do not believe there are any POWs in North Vietnam who are still alive. It has been the subject of monumental effort. The prisoners took it upon themselves to memorize the names of everyone in the system in order to include names on the log. I have been told by our government the accounting that has been rendered is a rather good one."

But he did not eliminate all possibility of hope for MIA families.

"A possibility always exists that we could be wrong, but we put that in the category of a miracle right now," Flynn said.

Officials pressed for time in bid for added refunds

Five cities puzzled over new tax shuffle

By LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

After a year-long battle over federal revenue-sharing rules, five Pomona Valley cities have won help from the state—but the assist could not have come at a worse time.

City officials around the valley are hustling to finish computing how much money each city will need from property taxes next year and how high tax rates must be set to obtain needed funds.

All of this must take place before a state-mandated Sept. 1 deadline.

Of the five cities involved, only Walnut has taken any action that would include the different tax rate. Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, and City of Industry are in different stages of a quandary caused by Assembly Bill-1588.

As late as Friday afternoon, some city officials had only spotty data on how AB-1588 can be used to permit communities in Los Angeles County to levy taxes to support their share of costs for the county Consolidated Fire Protection District and Free Library District.

The problem—acute in La Verne—was to determine action by the city councils to assume the taxing power from the county Board of Supervisors.

Problem especially acute in La Verne

If the councils do not take the right kind of measures, the supervisors may reject them, then the opportunity for action must wait until next year.

If the cities do act on the matter, it would have this impact on revenue-sharing, as computed roughly by officials of the City of Lakewood: Claremont, $9,680; La Verne, $6,452; San Dimas, $29,912; and Walnut, $11,508. There were no available figures for City of Industry.

Since "tax effort" accounts for 25 per cent of the formula used to figure out how much revenue-sharing money goes to any community, those depending on special districts' services get less credit for the tax revenues produced.

Attempting to make up for this problem, the California Contract Cities Association promoted AB-1588. The law provides an exemption to Senate Bill 90, which had forbidden the increase of city tax rates.

The assembly measure also establishes the rights of cities to levy taxes for fire and library districts without taking away from the district's governing bodies the right to decide how high the tax rate shall be.

Opposition to the bill came from the County Supervisors' Association, which was concerned about how much money the county governments would lose to cities in revenue-sharing funds.

AB-1588 was finally amended to serve only cities in counties with population over six million—or, only Los Angeles County. The bill was further limited to permit the shuffle in taxation only for the library and fire districts.

Those cities in the county which belong to the contract Cities Association have been getting help from CCCA's executive director, George Voight, in figuring out how to go about taking advantage of AB-1588 before the Sept. 1 tax rate deadline. For San Dimas, Walnut, and City of Industry, this has meant a head start on the work.

"But I've been so busy helping contract cities with this," Voight said Friday morning, "I simply have not had time to find out which cities that are not contract cities are members of the library district—probably 60 or more."

Claremont and La Verne are two such ommunities. Contacted Friday, La Verne City Manager George Caswell said. "The people who so thoughtfully provide the press with this information have not seen fit to tell us."

Caswell had been unable to find out what actions this city would need to take to cash in on the revenue-sharing hike. Monday evening, the La Verne council is due to set its tax rate.

Likewise, Claremont City Manager Keith Mulrooney noted, the change in tax rate procedures "comes so close to the Sept. 1 deadline, it is difficult to figure what to do."

The solution to Caswell's problem lay in San Dimas, where the assistant to the city manager, Mrs. Barbara Henderson, was filling in a sample resolution "hot off the presses."

Robert Poff, San Dimas city manager, indicated the trouble will be worth the effort. "We feel—and it's only a gut feeling—that revenue-sharing is here to stay, although it is only a five-year plan.

"In which case, the sooner you do it, the sooner it will take effect." San

'Difficult to know what action to take'

Dimas, like La Verne, is planning to set its tax rate Monday night.

For, in the final analysis, that is all AB-1588 represents, a paper shuffle. Taxpayers will not be subjected to a higher tax—but there bills will not show library or fire district taxes in cities which elect to assume the burden themselves.

MARKS 54TH BIRTHDAY

Alabama Governor George C. Wallace, looking at his 1,200 pound birthday cake, is a jubilant mood as 10,000 persons gathered in Montgomery Saturday to help the governor celebrate his 54th birthday and feast on free chicken and all the fixings. Gov. Wallace told the crowd at Garrett Coliseum, 'Despite what happened, I'd do it all over again because the great average citizens of our nation is the king and queen of national politics.' He also said he would be willing to run for office again.

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — With a strong recommendation by a university grievance committee in his favor, Dr. Glen D. Phillips has renewed his fight for a full probe of the Cal Poly communication arts department from which he was removed as chairman last June.

Phillips has given up trying to get his old job back. But he feels that an off-campus investigation by professional communicators and possibly representatives of the state university and colleges Chancellor's office into problems within the department that he says have resulted in the "taxpayers' money simply being squandered."

'Handled negligently'

Although he concedes his removal was done according to proper rules and regulations, Phillips charges the matter has been handled negligently "so that the issue can't get a fair hearing unless it is to the selfish interest of the system or the officials involved."

Phillips has taken issue with previous public statements by Cal Poly President Robert C. Kramer concerning events surrounding the dismissal action.

Phillips maintains the university administration took too long to answer a grievance petition he submitted shortly after his dismissal.

He submitted the petition on June 14 and did not receive a reply from Kramer until June 28.

Reply needed

University regulations require a reply within three working days, but an administration spokesman pointed out that the period June 16 to July 2 is a quarter break and is not considered an academic work period. Thus, the reply was dispatched within the required time regulations, the spokesman said.

Phillips also contends that Kramer's statement that the dismissal action was taken on recommendations by three faculty-oriented committees, while basically true, needs further explanation.

The first committee was made up of his department faculty and could hardly be considered a fair and impartial body, he said.

The second committee, the university's faculty senate executive council, took little over an hour to hear testimony from him and department faculty and was far from being a full investigation, Phillips said.

Dismissal upheld

The council upheld dismissal action, not because of wrongdoing on his part, Phillips said, but because system policy provides that department chairman serve at the pleasure of the president and the majority of the senior department faculty.

The final grievance committee investigation, which Phillips charges was "unfair to everybody, faculty as well, since no one was on campus to testify," also upheld the dismissal on policy grounds, but found no fault with him, Phillips said.

Thus far the administration has taken no action on the grievance committee's recommendation for an investigation into the department.

President Kramer has declined several requests for comment on Phillips' charges or the situation in the communication arts department.

Game birds exposed to encephalitis gassed

BRENTWOOD, N.H. (UPI) — Some 12,000 game farm pheasants exposed to eastern equine encephalitis were gassed to death Saturday and buried in a 150-foot long, six-foot deep trench on the Fish and Game Department farm.

The birds were killed on orders of the state's acting Health Director Dr. Hugh Wilkerson.

Meanwhile an unidentified sailor continued to recover at Portsmouth Naval Hospital from viral encephalitis. A hospital spokesman said the sailor was "resting comfortably" and was still in satisfactory condition.

The spokesman said hospital laboratory tests have not tied the sailor's illness to the outbreak of eastern equine encephalitis that killed 32 horses in New Hampshire over the past 11 days.

Agriculture Commissioner Howard Townsend said Saturday the outbreak was believed curtailed.

"I think as far as horses are concerned, the outbreak is reasonably under control," Townsend said. The last reported case of a horse contracting the usually fatal equine disease was Thursday morning. Spraying of about 7,000 acres of Central Rockingham County was carried out during the week.

Objections to the aerial spraying of malathion by a member of the pesticides control board prompted Gov. Meldrim Thomson to demand the resignation of Dr. Peter Allen. Allen, an employe of the state Department of Resources and Economic Development, also serves as the public ecology representative on the board.

Kidnaper of girl sought by police

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Working on a description provided by the victim's younger brother, more than 100 policemen searched Saturday for the kidnaper who beat, drugged and raped 11-year-old Tracy Gayle Greenfield.

The girl, found sprawled unconscious Friday morning behind a doughnut stand in suburban Culver City, came out of her coma Saturday morning at UCLA Medical Center and was reported in satisfactory condition.

While doctors tried to determine what drug the kidnaper used, police said they were interviewing Tracy and also working on a description given them by her brother, Andrew, 9.

Investigators said 47 vehicles matching the description of the kidnaper's car—a light blue Buick station wagon — have been checked, but without luck.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Strike cuts Canal traffic

PANAMA CITY (UPI) —Ship traffic through the Panama Canal was cut by 75 per cent Saturday as American canal pilots stayed off their jobs in a labor dispute with the Panama Canal Co., a U.S. government agency.

A force of 20 pilots, including supervisory personnel, had taken 10 ships through the canal by 7 p.m. with the backlog of ships waiting for passage totaling 98, the company said.

2 killed in copter crash

Two men were killed Saturday when a helicopter crashed at the site of a brush fire in California's Sierra Nevada foothills while rain eased the most critical fire situation in the history of the Pacific Northwest.

Pilot Dick Rodgers of Clovis, Calif., and Lynn Douglas, 47, a California Division of Forestry worker from San Andreas, perished and two other men were injured when a helicopter crashed five miles south of San Andreas while landing at the site of a small brush fire.

7 die in New Jersey blaze

NORTH CALDWELL, N.J. (UPI) —Seven persons, including a former vice president of the New York Stock Exchange, died in their sleep as smoke from a fire swept an $80,000 colonial home early Saturday.

Authorities found the bodies of five members of the Fred Stock family and their two young house guests in the upstairs bedrooms of the two-story home.

The dead were identified as Stock, 36, his wife, Dorothy, 34, and their three children, Margaret, 6, Laura, 4, and Colleen, 5 months. The other victims—Jean and Joan Dort, 14-year-old twins from New York City, were identified as Mrs. Stock's nieces.

All the victims apparently died of smoke inhalation, police said.

Libyan leader to talk merger

CAIRO (UPI) —Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy arrived unexpectedly in Cairo Saturday for further talks on the proposed union of the two countries, political sources said.

The Middle East News Agency said Khadafy was accompanied by Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud.

The sources said Khadafy will have talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on the merger, which was scheduled to take place Sept. 1.

The proposed union, however, has run into difficulties and it is not clear now what will happen on that date.

Court bans rock festivals

BENTON, Tenn. (UPI) — Court orders were issued Saturday banning any massive gathering resembling a rock festival over Labor Day weekend.

"These injunctions will effectively block any festival," said District Attorney Richard Fisher. "There won't be any massive gathering in Tennessee in connection with the rock festival."

The injunctions Fisher obtained Saturday are in addition to the original order blocking the "Midwest Monster Peace Jubilee and Music Festival."

Trade publications predicted that the festival might have surpassed the "Woodstock" festival of 1969 by drawing a half-million music fans and grossing $7.5 million.

Yemeni hijacker gives up plane

KUWAIT (UPI) —A Yemeni armed with a pistol and hand grenade and attempting to secure the release of persons sentenced to death in his homeland hijacked a North Yemeni Airlines DC6 to Kuwait Saturday. He surrendered after being assured he would not be prosecuted.

The 10 passengers and six crewmen, Yemenis and Italians, were released unharmed, Kuwait's Interior Ministry said.

The hijacker, identified as Nasser Ahmed Abu Bakar, said to be in his 30s, had threatened to blow up the plane unless prisoners held in the Arab Republic of Yemen were released, Kuwaiti government sources said.

Barbershop quartets sing the 'oldies' in Ontario

Harmony is alive, appealing

By PHILLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — Harmonious sounds of barbershop, sometimes thundering and full and sometimes so soft you stopped breathing to listen, filled the auditorium of Ontario High School Saturday afternoon.

Twenty-four quartets from the Southern California Divisional of the Far Western District of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, were competing in 1973 preliminaries.

Five were to perform on a jamboree program at the Upland Inn, then to compete in a district contest in Fresno in October.

Roared approval

Four at a time the men came on stage, stood in front of a brightly lighted white backdrop and poured out their hearts in the old songs.

It was difficult to tell which group enjoyed the afternoon more, the performers or the audience.

All quartets were distinctly and colorfully dressed. Among their members were young men, old men and many in their middle years. There were short hairs, longhairs, the clean-shaven and those with beards.

What they shared was enthusiasm and talent for expressing the sad, glad, sweet, close, sentimental sounds of barbershop harmoney.

Sentimental favorites

They did it beautifully in such songs as "I'll Forget You," by the Medallions (Henry Wair, Warren Stump, Clay Panlaqui and Ray Becker) of the Indian Wells Valley Chapter, and "Back In Those Days Gone By," by The 3 M's (Motivated Melody Merchants) (Bob Wray, Chuck Kurth, Leighton Pratt and Bill Wilson) of the San Luis Obispo Chapter.

The sweet, sad sounds of 50 years ago were brought to life by The Harmony Express (Jim Riddle, Bill Harper, Bill White and Bill Merry) of the Downey and Whittier Chapters, who sang "Bring Back My Daddy To Me."

The audience shook the roof with its applause when The Harmony Symposium (Bill Borah, Gene Welch, Don Scott and Phil Warmanen) of the Santa Barbara Chapter did "Paddlin' Madeline Home" and "Why Do The Girls Say No When They Mean Yes All The Time?"

Swaying rhythm

Personality plus, as well as talent, flowed from The Great Stage Robbery (Peter Neushul, Lee Summers, Robert Elder and M. Scott Senter) of the South Bay-Pasadena Chapters. Dressed in black and white striped suits with wide lapels and flare-legged pants, they sang in close harmony about "Mandy Lee" and "Mention My Name."

Pomona Valley Chapter, home of The Carousel Chorus, hosted the preliminaries. Jim Murray of Pomona Chapter was master of ceremonies.

Far-out groups

Ten men who judged the quartets were Al Mau, Wesly Meier, Lynn Brittan, Jim Gattey, Hap Bailey, Howard Mesecher, Bob Bisio, Bill Spooner, Dave Briner and Earl Moon.

Elmer Lee was secretary, Rollie Lunde was assistant secretary and Carl Walters and Bob Kline were timekeepers. Emmett Bossing was chairman of the judges.

The Pomona Valley Carousel Chorus, directed by Carl Walters and the five finalists selected during the preliminaries performed at the jamboree Saturday night, along with four other groups.

They were The Yesterdaze of the Downey and Whittier Chapters, The Crown City Good Time Music Co. of the Pasadena Chapter, the R. S. V. P. of the Riverside Chapter and The Sun Harbor Chorus directed by Marv Yerkey.

LONDON (UPI) —It simply is not done.

London has lived through and bomb scares, but the threat that suspended play of a cricket match at the Lord's Cricket Grounds Saturday was not part of the social rules which the British refer to as "playing the game."

The British team was in the midst of a test match-roughly comparable to a World Series game in baseball—with the West Indies team. And although cricket test matches go on for five days, suspending one is unheard of.

The cricket match, of course, is the pluperfect British sporting event. And the Lord's Cricket Grounds is the holy of holies, the mecca, of cricket players from throughout the British Commonwealth.

When the threat was telephoned, a loudspeaker calmly announced that a bomb threat had been received and that the 28,000 fans were invited to evacuate the grounds.

While the players took a tea break and some boisterous West Indian fans wandered about the field, police searched the grounds. No bomb was found and play resumed after more than an hour.

In order to understand why a bomb threat at a cricket match is of another magnitude than a bomb in Harrod's department store, for example, three things must be understood:

First, Saturday was the start of an official holiday weekend. On such weekends, if you happen to be British, the thing to do is to watch sports. The weather was uncharacteristically ideal.

Second, this was the third and final match between England and the most exciting cricket team there is—the West Indies.

Third, this thing happened at Lord's. This charmingly dotty, Edwardian assembly just north of central London is to cricket what Wimbledon is to tennis— the top, the heart and soul of the game.

If a bomb threat had forced evacuation of an all-English crowd, the spectators probably would have filed out quietly. But the stands were packed with exhuberant West Indians and it took more than an hour to clear them all out.

An impromptu band—horns, whistles, tambourines —formed at one end of the stands and, defying police orders, paraded gaily around the field. Dozens of spectators refused to surrender the sunshine which comes so rarely to London and simply lay down on the soft, warm grass.

Surfer bitten by large shark

"It seemed like an explosion," said Wally Staushko who watched Lawler and his friends riding a surfboard off Point Lookout on Stradbroke Island, 50 miles from Brisbane.

"The boy and the board went straight into the air," Staushko said.

David Adamson, 28, who was riding a surf ski near Lawler, said the shark was 12 feet long and its jaws caught Lawler's right leg and the surfboard.

"The shark thrashed and wriggled just below the surface with Bruce and his surfboard," and when the boy surfaced the water around him turned red, while the board was broken into three pieces, Adamson said.

Airline guide tells where hookers found

NEW YORK (UPI) —Prostitutes in five of the world's major cities have been given a little help courtesy of Pan American World Airways.

Tucked away in a tourist guide that Pan Am has been selling for about a year is a card that tells where to meet the ladies of the evening in New York, London, Paris, Rome and Amsterdam.

Entitled "Low Life," the card describes the best spots where hookers can be found and lists the going rate for an evening of entertainment.

In New York, the card says "you are likely to find streetwalkers most anywhere in the city—the girls tend to move around a lot now that the police are on their tail.

The price of the guide is $4.95.

A Pan Am spokesman said today the thrust of the card "is not really to get people seduced. The point is that in many areas of the world prostitution is a tourist attraction."

He said "many people will walk the streets and not buy a girl—it's just an interesting sight to many people."

Three steaks pawned for $5

TUCSON Ariz. (UPI) —It had to happen—a pawnshop says a man pawned three steaks.

Donald Vingino, co-owner of the Arizona Traders Pawn Shop said Thursday he gave the man $5 for three U.S.D.A. choice T-bone steaks and promised to hold them for 30 days in a freezer at the shop.

No settlement in sight

Grape battle resumption more violent than ever

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — When John Giumarra Jr., owner of one of the largest grape vineyards in the world, came to terms with Cesar Chavez in August 1970, both sides were hopeful peace had come at last to the embattled farm lands of the San Joaquin Valley.

For more than half a decade Giumarra and fellow table grape growers in the Delano area had resisted efforts by Chavez to organize the men and women who pick grapes for a living.

Once the bitter, sometimes violent struggle appeared to be over Chavez turned his attention to organizing lettuce pickers in the Salinas Valley, and Giumarra went about the business of marketing his crop free from the pressures of a strike and a nationwide grape boycott.

But the two hadn't seen the last of each other.

In recent weeks the grape war has flared anew with even more violence this time and with no prospect for settlement in sight.

On Aug. 9 in Delano, 30 major grape growers signed contracts with the Teamsters Union while Chavez was holding peace talks with the independent labor giant in a Burlingame, Calif. hotel.

When Chavez learned of the signings, he walked out of the meeting, vowing not to return until the Teamsters agreed to give his union sole jurisdiction over farm workers.

"Either they are getting out of agriculture or they are not," Chavez said in an interview. "If they are, we can negotiate, if they're not, we will fight.

"The growers asked them (the Teamsters) in and they can ask them to leave," he said.

Giumarra sees it another way.

"We gave Mr. Chavez and the UFW every opportunity to sign a contract," he said. "We proposed in December of 1972 that he meet with an industrywide bargaining group to work out a contract to cover the entire grape industry, one master contract with uniform wages, uniform benefits and a uniform expiration date.

"Chavez did not respond to that request until three months later, and then it was too late," he said.

Although the contracts the Delano growers signed with the Teamsters have been repudiated by high officials of the union, Giumarra says the agreements are binding.

"It is the legal opinion of counsel for the growers that the contract is valid," he said. "The wage rates under the contract were put into effect the following day."

Chavez recently paid a visit to a UFW picket line at a Giumarra vineyard and, using an electronic bullhorn, asked nonstriking workers harvesting grapes if they favored elections to determine which union should represent them.

"There were 20 people working there and all 20 hands went up when I asked them if they favored election," he said. "When I asked them who would vote for the UFW 15 hands shot up."

Giumarra disagrees, saying his workers are fed up with the tactics of the UFW.

"Our employes are being interferred with when they try to go to work in the morning and they are being interferred with when they try to go home at night," he said.

"We have a number of instances where pickets have run into the fields in an attempt to drag the workers out, and only the security guards and sheriff's deputies have stopped it from happening."

Chavez sees the actions of law enforcement agencies in a different light.

"There is more police violence now than before," he said.

"We have a right to challenge court injunctions and get jailed and they have a right to arrest us," he said, "but they beat us instead of arresting us when we try to go into the fields and make citizens arrests of illegal aliens.

"They don't arrest us for trespassing. They beat the hell out of us, both men and women."

When asked if the actions of pickets are making it difficult for him to find workers for the harvest, Giumarra said:

"The harvest is in full swing. We're picking 30 to 40 railroad cars full of grapes a day."

Both Chavez and Giumarra were asked why the growers turned their backs on the UFW and signed with the Teamsters.

"I honestly don't know if Chavez wants contracts," Giumarra said. "He thought he could bully his way into agreements with the grape industry again and he miscalculated.

"Through their own ineptness in negotiating the UFW has blown most of its contracts, and I think they're out of business now."

Chavez rejects the notion his union organizers are inept.

"Our people are among the best organizers in the labor movement today," he said. "We organize one to one and keep our people involved.

"Basically the growers are fools. They've forgotten that in 1970 they came begging to get out of the squeeze we had them in.

"They don't understand we gave them a good contract. They should read the history of union organizing and find out that once people want a union of their own they keep fighting until they get one.

"Our biggest and only mistake is that we're too damned honest and too democratic."

He'd welcome draft evaders--behind bars

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., says he is ready to welcome all draft evaders back into the country and he will personally greet them at the border with a band of United States marshals.

Hebert, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, spoke to the national Veterans of Foreign Wars convention, which gave him the organization's Gold Medal of Merit for his work in congress.

"This is a gracious nation and we are a gracious winner," Hebert said. "But for those hundreds who ran away from their duty and left others to give their lives for their country, I want them to know I am willing to welcome them at our borders with every United States marshal I can get my hands on.

"I want them to know that I am willing to give them three meals a day—behind bars," Hebert said.

Earlier this week, the VFW convention adopted a resolution which "unequivocally" opposed both general and selective amnesty for draft dodgers and military deserters. The resolution called on deserters and draft evaders "to stand trial for their crimes."

Earl Warren is the only man to be the governor of California for three terms.

Erma Bombeck

I have never known my mother to come for a visit that she did not open my oven door, clutch her throat and gasp, "What happened?"

If there was ever a West Pointer in an apron, it is Mother. She has always believed God will forgive a woman for infidelity if she cleans her oven regularly, that there is virtue in waxing behind the refrigerator and that if the Good Lord had means for you to leave ironing boards up, he would have made them with legs you couldn't trip over.

On the other hand, I have always contended dust was put on earth so we could measure time, cantaloupe-flavored ice cubes are a delicacy, and you can survive this whole domestic scene if you keep your lint trap closed.

In the kitchen together, we are referred to (among other things) as the Odd Couple.

"Where are those copper bottom pans I bought you that you could see your face in?" she asked.

"Right in front of you, hanging on the rack," I said.

"You're joking!" she said, eyeing the black-bottomed saucepan. "Why don't you sprinkle a little cleanser on them each time you use them? Why, my garbage cans look better than this. I can cook in my garbage cans."

"Why would you want to do that?" I asked.

"The point is, Missy, that they are that shiny. I don't understand it. You weren't raised to let your bottoms go."

"Not really," I said patiently. "The light got spattered with steaks."

"When did you have steaks?" she asked.

"KIDS!" I yelled. "When did we have steaks?"

"If you would just wipe up the spots as soon as they happen you woldn't have all that corrosion," she explained. "Before I leave I will defrost your refrigerator, get the wax build-up off your floors, restore order to these cupboards and I'll see what I can do to this oven."

"Hey Mom!" yelled one of my sons. "I just remembered. We had the steaks on Brucie's birthday, last October."

Mother steadied herself on the countertop. "I'll talk to God about you, but don't get your hopes built up."

American bikes where pedestrians fear to tread -- in Paris traffic

PARIS (UPI)—The 50-year-old American picked up his bicycle and shook it like a fist at the smog-belching Paris traffic.

The solution for the gas shortage in the United Sates and polluted cities everywhere, said Daniel Behrman, is: city dwellers should give up cars and drive bicycles.

Behrman then demonstrated he may be one of the world's bravest men. He climbed on his bicycle and shot into the thicket of Paris traffic, where every motorist races as if he were in a grand prix.

The bicycle lover calls his conversion from cars "a revolt." To encourage others to join his revolution he wrote a book recently published in the United States, "The Man Who Loved Bicycles."

"The bicycle is a vehicle for revolution," he said as he wheeled his bicycle to a curb— no parking problem—and settled down in a sidewalk cafe. "It can destroy the tyranny of the automobile. Cars have given us gastly cities."

Subway strike

Behrman, New York-born and educated at the University of Michigan, came to Paris 25 years ago and now is a science adviser at the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

"One day a couple of years ago there was a subway strike," he said. "I started to drive to UNESCO. You can spend hours getting through an intersection. I drove my car back home and got out a rusty, black, dust-covered bike I had bought to go riding with my son.

"I got to the office in 10 minutes."

Since then Behrman has bicycled all over Paris, New York and Europe, exploiting the joys of cities he never saw as a motorist because "inside a car in a city your eyes are on the level of the garbage cans, they can see nothing else."

Behrman has a stable of 11 bicycles. He stores one in New York for business trips to the United Nations and can be seen pedaling along 42nd Street, his dark, curly hair neat in the breeze. ... s collapsible bikes on trains for business trips to Hamburg or London or Stockholm. When the train stops "I get my bike from the baggage compartment and am off with my suitcase strapped to the back while everybody else is waiting for taxis."

"Chemical warfare"

He keeps a city bike in his Paris flat and a country bike in his Brittany farmhouse.

Behrman blasts the automobile as "a form of chemical warfare we wage to defoliate our cities, our suburbs and our countryside." But he is not against car for "rural places. We don't want to go back to the covered wagon. But most of the gas in the United States is used for unnecessary travel. The average trip in a city can be done by bike."

Behrman can list numerous advantages of bicycles. The doorman at UNESCO looked appalled when he first whizzed up in his charcoal gray suit, briefcase and hat, but now the executive gets respect.

"I've never been hit by a car. But you have to watch out for people opening doors of parked cars," he said. "Biking is like skiing. If you're in shape you won't get hurt if you fall. I know lots of people killed or injured in cars, however."

Behrman picks up his bike and walks around traffic jams. He insists shopping can be done by bike "and I have carried as many as 16 bottles of whisky on my bicycle."

Fast fix for a flat

Polishing off a caramel sundae, he said, "I can eat this because after I've sweated for a few miles I'll be ready for another."

As he left the cafe he discovered he had a flat tire. In five minutes he fixed the leal with a patch he whipped ou of his pocket and pumped u the tire with a pump attache to the bike. Total cost: a fev centimes.

"When my first wife wa walking out of our home t divorce me, she pointed t my bike in the hall and said 'That s your mistress'," Beh rman said.

He patted the handlebars o his bike and mused, "Yo know, I think she's right."

The term of office for a Senator is six years, and the terms are staggered. Thus only one-third of the Senate has its terms expire every two years.

Passenger lands aircraft safely after pilot dies

KENAI, Alaska (UPI) —A passenger with limited flying experience took over the controls of a Cessan 180 float plane when the pilot died of an apparent heart attack Tuesday near Kenai.

The plane was piloted by William W. Renfrew, Sr., 64, of Anchorage, and was en route from Anchorage to Iliamna.

Taylor contacted the flight service operator in Kenai and said the pilot had suffered an apparent heart attack.

Taylor said he had "previous flying experience years back" and had landed a float plane but was lost and needed help. His location was determined by a radio direction finder and he was told to keep in sight of the ground and keep below the clouds if they lowered.

The ceiling was about 400 feet at Kenai and visibility limited to two miles.

Taylor flew across Cook Inlet at about 200 feet and spotted the mouth of the Kenai River. He followed the Kenai spur highway to Salamantowf Lake and landed, bending a pontoon in the process.

A doctor pronounced Renfrew dead.

Stein sees control of inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Despite rising food costs, President Nixon's chief economic adviser believes Americans are better off than they realize and have been gaining in "real" income.

Herbert Stein, briefing newsmen Thursday, also predicted that inflation would be under better control next year and that food prices would fall into proportion with other segments of the economy —with a 3.5 per cent increase.

Butz predicted there would be an immediate increase in food prices when the beef freeze is lifted Sept. 12. Then food prices should "pretty well level off" for the rest of the year but the upward spiral would begin again in 1974, with increases of as much as 5 per cent.

John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, said the 1973 forecast is still unsettled because the harvest of many crops is just beginning. "There are still a number of elements in the equation that are still unknown," he said.

Stein, commenting on what he said was a discrepancy between Americans' perception of the economy and reality, said that "real" income had risen 5 per cent in the period between the spring of 1972 and the spring of 1973.

Most outstanding move ever made

An unmitigated materialist motive can paralyze thought. The other extreme, cavalier disregard for one's pieces, may gain the player a state of spiritual grace, which for most players is not adequate compensation for a minus score. A balance between the two tendencies is rarely achieved. All one can say is that all other things being equal, material is crucial. But all other things are rarely equal.

In almost any position it may be feasible to give up a pawn or even a more valuable piece, at least temporarily. Most "sacrifices" of this kind are "sham" sacrifices; a forced return of the sacrificed material could be seen from the beginning.

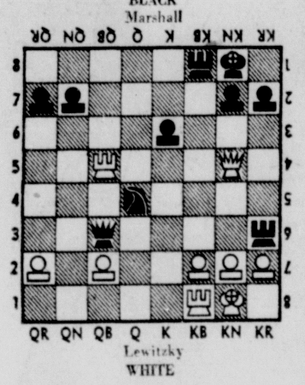
Marshall



With this discussion in mind, open your eyes wide and look at our first position. If a blinding flash of lightning sears the ranks and files of your board, you have found the move made by Frank Marshall (black) against S. Lewitzky in 1912. If you have found the move, either you've seen the position or like Marshall you're a fiend incarnate.

The "impossible" move is 1) . . . Q-KN6!!! threatening QxP checkmate. The queen, 'mirabile dictu,' can be captured three ways and all of them speedily and simply lose. You must try working out what happens after each capture. Here are the variations to check your analysis with:

I. 2) BPxQ, N-K7 check forcing mate;

II. 2) RPxQ, N-K7 mate;

III. 2) QxQ, N-K7 check; 3) K-R1, NxQ check; 4) K-N1, NxR and black is a piece ahead.

While the spectators were showering Marshall with gold pieces after Q-KN6, Lewitzky resigned.

Once in history would seem to be enough. Yet in the San Juan International Tournament in Puerto Rico in 1967, Nicholas Rossolimp, one of the few players of the romantic school around, achieved the following position with white.

(Diagram 2)

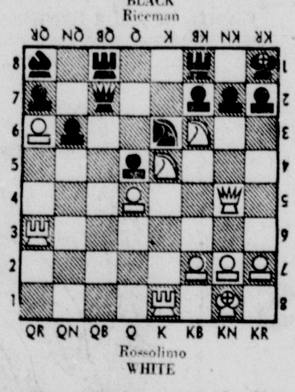
Riceman



The winning move? You guessed it, Q-KN6. Riceman (black) temporarily stopped the mate with 1) . . . Q-B7. But after 2) R-R3, reaching diagram three, mate was unavoidable. With the Marshall game as a model, work out the variations.

Will your car be one of 2,500 vehicles stolen in U.S. today?

DETROIT (UPI) —There's really very little you can do—outside of standing guard with a shotgun—to keep a professional car thief from stealing your car if he really wants it.

If it's a Continental Mark IV, Cadillac Eldorado or Ford Thunderbird the chances are pretty good some pro is keeping his eye on your car, waiting for the opportunity to snatch it. If this is an average day, 2,500 cars will be stolen in the United States—over $3 million worth of automobiles.

The professional car thief is a businessman with a commodity that gives him nearly a 100 per cent profit. Like any good entrepreneur, he keeps track of market conditions and must know his product.

He already has his order in for a new 1974 model. It will be the last he has to buy.

Within a day or two after the new models begin appearing in dealer showrooms, the pro already will know the easiest, fastest and safest way to get that car out of a shopping center parking lot, a garage or off the street.

Fill special orders

Some of the car theft rings are so big that they have their own engineering departments working to figure out what's been added to the new models to make their job a little harder.

While more Americans are moving now to the small car because of the gas scare and higher costs, the pro still wants the luxury models. Why steal a car that's worth only a couple hundred dollars on the hot-car market when a Mark IV brings about $5,000?

The car theft rings can even fill special orders. A phone call to a special number in New York City recently brought the caller the car he wanted in the color he asked for and equipped just about the way he specified.

It's fairly easy for the theft rings to provide a good title for a hot car. Usually it doesn't match the car, even though many of the numbers are the same as on the "new" vehicle identification tag. The cars often are sold to unsuspecting dealers or through an auto auction, finally winding up in someone's driveway.

A new law in Michigan says anyone who paid less than 50 per cent of the retail price of an article must know the item may have been stolen. But there have been no prosecutions of persons found with stolen cars.

Anti-theft devices

The anti-theft devices added to cars in the past few years have helped get the teen-aged joyrider out of the auto theft scene. About all that's left for the joyrider is the car with the key still in the ignition.

"We've been able to eliminate the amateur, the kid who ran the car until it was out of gas," says Doug Paul, manager of vehicle regulation at Ford. "But the pros are still there. You come up with a new defense and they come up with a new offense."

The automakers have developed some anti-theft devices in the past few years—the ignition key warning buzzer, a steering column lock, a tamper-resistant odometer and anti-theft alarm systems. They admit none of these will stop the pro, just slow him down.

They've succeeded to a point, but, the National Auto Theft Bureau reports more than 948,000 cars were stolen in 1972. Eighty-four per cent were recovered, most of them within 48 hours.

If you live in a city with more than one million people in the Northeast, you're in the midst of an upsurge in car thefts. The Far West had a decrease of 7 per cent in the latest figures.

Need specialists

"That section of the country, especially California, has probably more law enforcement agencies concerned with the problem and are doing more than anyone in the state of New York to combat the rise," says Bob Campbell of the Auto Theft Bureau.

"To really handle the problem," he said, "we need the development of a group of expert investigators in the major police agencies. They would do nothing but investigate car theft rings."

Greater police effort would result in more theft rings being put out of business, Campbell said. One ring broken up in Detroit in late 1971 still had 105 cars in stock—all Lincolns, Thunderbirds, a few Cadillacs and one 1969 Chrysler convertible.

The American car owner is one obstacle to reducing thefts, say some automotive executives. Besides leaving his keys in the car with the door unlocked, he'll put up with only so much safety before it becomes too inconvenient.

"A manufacturer walks a fine line," Ford's Paul said. "We could put in a system that would require the driver to go through mental gymnastics to get in and start the car.

Search for deterrent

"We can't satisfy him while making it hard for the pro. If we made the driver use two separate keys, he'd just be twice as upset. What we're really striving for is a deterrent. The longer the thief has to work to steal the car, the more possibility he could be caught."

Automotive engineers are reluctant to discuss the methods used to steal cars.

"The pros already know how and there's no sense giving the amateur any ideas," one engineer explained.

Ford does have some innovations for 1974 models. They've made two changes in the ignition lock, both designed to make it more difficult for a professional thief to steal a car. One of the changes will cause a portion of the lock mechanism to break away and remain in the steering column if the lock is forcibly removed. This makes it more difficult to unlock the steering column and turn on the ignition.

And for the car-buyer willing to part with about $100 extra, an anti-theft alarm system is available on all cars sold by Ford. Unlike add-on devices sold by some companies, Ford's alarm does not have the telltale lock on the fender, and it is turned on and off by locking or unlocking either front door with the key.

Paul says Ford has some other anti-theft ideas it's incorporating on the 1974 models. But they're not visible and the pro won't know about them until he either takes a car apart to find the devices or runs up against them while attempting to steal a car.

L. A. wants plane to fight narcotics

LOSANGELES (UPI) —The Police Commission Wednesday asked the City Council for permission to buy a plane to use against drug traffic.

Day ended worse than it started

NEW YORK (UPI) —Police said Donald Anderson, 38, sloshed flammable fluid around his girl friend's new apartment and set it on fire Monday because he didn't want her to live there. It was the beginning of a bad day for Anderson.

After lighting the fire, police said Anderson found there was no doorknob on the inside of the apartment door and he was trapped.

The apartment was on the first floor, so Anderson ran to a window and jumped, apparently without looking. The window he chose was over some jagged stone stairs leading to a basement, which were littered with broken glass.

He suffered severe cuts and bruises in the fall and third degree burns in the fire. Police said Anderson, hospitalized in critical condition, first tried to convince them someone had attacked him, but later confessed. The fire was quickly extinguished.

New sport on West Coast-- hang gliding

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — A new craze on the West Coast is hang gliding.

All you have to do is grab a pair of wings, strap them to your car and head for the nearest hill —preferably a steep one.

From there on it's hang gliding, and one of those who's tried her hand at it is Sue Weiniger, 26, who first tried the sport reluctantly.

Ms. Weiniger made her first glider flight a few weeks ago and is doing okay for a beginner. She is one of the first women in San Diego to fly a hang glider and join UFO (Ultralight Flyers Organization.)

"I went up 200 feet on my first flight," Ms. Weiniger remembers. "It was a thrill and I wasn't even scared. You feel like you're just floating through the air like a bird."

In a sport as dangerous as hang gliding, a few hours of preparation aren't wasted.

"At first they had me practice by running down the hill with the wings," says Ms. Weiniger. "When you're just about ready to take off, it only takes two steps to get into the air."

She was flying a Black Hawk glider made of black plastic sheeting stretched on aircraft tubing and cable. It has a 38-foot wing span and a 15-foot keel.

Motorize wings

Modern technology has crept into the sport. If you're willing to pour out a few bucks, you can motorize your glider wings.

Kim Rushing, a UFO member, flies a delta wing glider pulled by a motor boat.

Rushing has tried a few daredevil stunts but Ms. Weiniger says: "We normally don't do that kind of thing. We just promote the sport and go out and jump off a steep hill for the fun of it."

The UFO club goes out on weekends to places selected for good soaring conditions.

Bill Glanz, a San Diego hang glider distributor, said, "When you get there, you untie the kite from the top of the car and carry it up the hill. You open the wings and adjust the cables and then you climb into the standard parachute harness beneath the wings and you're ready to fly."

With the glider and pilot ready for flight, two people hold the wing tips and run with the glider until it is airborne.

In the air, the glider is controlled by the pilot shifting weight on the control bar. While in flight, the pilot holds on to the control bar, which allows him to move left or right, skyward or downward.

A good jump will send a person from 500 to 3,000 feet high, but there's a drawback. The flight lasts only about two minutes, and once on the ground, there's that long walk back up the hill.

Bank cashes stolen check

KEARNY, N.J. (UPI) —The government mailed a U.S. Treasury check for $5,625 to this city, payable to "Kearny, N.J." But before it was cashed by the city it was stolen.

Mayor Anthony J. Cavalier said Wednesday whoever stole the check successfully cashed it at a New York City bank July 11 by endorsing it on the back "Natan J. Kearny."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Pretzels were originated by a monk in northern Italy around 610 A.D., The World Almanac says. The first pretzels were made of dough baked into little figures representing children, with arms folded in prayer. The monk called them "pretiola" which is Latin for "little reward" and gave them to children who learned their catechism.

Poisoning, rabies symptoms confusing

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Just having read about horses having rabies made me wonder about a horse we had two years ago that was destroyed. It was said at the time he had thistle poisoning. I can remember he acted just like some of the rabies symptoms that were described in this article. Is it possible for plant poisoning and rabies to be confused? — T. O.

Dear T.O.: Yes. Yellow star thistle poisoning, for one, will cause brain damage and its symptoms may resemble symptoms found in a rabid horse. The animal would not recover in either case, but careful analysis of the brainy tissue would be required to diagnose (differentiate) the disease. Plant poisoning in horses becomes increasingly common in the fall when poor pasture may force the horse to eat whatever plant life is available. The well-nourished horse who has plenty of good food available will seldom succumb to plant poisoning.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Pepper, my dog, has had a lot of trouble with a bad neck which makes me wonder if the neck bones are the weakest? — F. L.

Dear F.L.: There are differences among various species, of course. Ususally, however, the cervical (neck) vertebrae are the strongest in the spine. The thoracic or rib vertebrae are next strongest and the lumbar (lower back) vertebrae, the weakest. Spinal problems, however, relate less to the vertebrae themselves than they do to the intervertebral discs between the vertebrae. If the back strength were equal to the vertebrae rather than the intervertebral or (disc) area between them, there would be considerably fewer spinal problems.

DEAR DR. MILLER: A two-point question, if I may: (a) What would be a good seed mixture for a wild bird seed to appeal to a goodly variety of birds? (b) How much of that mixture should I figure for birds like small finches, siskins and linnets? —G..W

Dear G.W.: If you could find all these seeds, the following would be an excellent mixture: two parts small yellow millet, two parts large white milet, one part canary, one part rape, one niger, one flax, one hemp and one sunflower. (Incidentally, the government agency interested in a narcotics might like to see to it that the hemp is sterilized; not germ-free, necessarily, but certainly germination-free.; (b) Estimate about a soup spoon of seed per day per bird, more or less, depending on many factors including weather.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: More carbon dioxide.

NEEDED: a gallon jug, a beach ball, a cork stopper, a medicine dropper, water, sugar, molasses, yeast.

DO THIS: Mix a cup of sugar, two tablespoons of molasses, and yeast in ¾ jug of water. Set in a warm place, attach the ball to it after squeezing out the air. Overnight the ball should fill with carbon dioxide.

HERE'S WHY: Yeast plants growing in the solution change sugar to alcohol and carbon dioxide gas. The gas fills the ball, as it filled the balloon last week, with this difference: Pressure created last week in the balloon stopped the fermentation process and the balloon did not expand. The ball could fill because there was no pressure from tight rubber of the balloon.

Hold the opening of the ball to the mouth or nose and "taste" some of the gas. It may smell like molasses, and will definitely have a tingle as from a soft drink. Pour some of the gas into a jar, lower a candle into it and the candle flame goes out.

Insert drawing shows how the cork and medicine dropper are placed to fill the bag.

Tall, small skyscraper for Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Construction on what may be the world's "tallest, smallest" building is scheduled to begin next month where the former home of a son of millionaire J.P. Morgan now stands.

The Diplomat Towers—which has been termed the "Skinny Skyscraper" or a "26-story pillar with windows"—will be 290 feet high and 50 feet across at its widest point.

At its narrowest point, the building will be more than 11 times higher than it is wide.

Ivan A. Sarkiss, head of an architectural firm that bears his name, is the tower's designer.

"I don't know of any building that is so tall and yet so small," said the 69-year-old, Armenian-born Sarkiss. "I began in this business 30 years ago and there is no question that this is the only building with thse proportions in the United States."

Why would anyone build a 26-story office and apartment building in an area the size of a basketball court?

"We designed the building for the site rather than finding a site for the building," said project manager Jack S. Townsend. Townsend said the planning took more than two years.

The tower will have nearly a complete circle of glass clinging to one side of a concrete section, which looks like a neon light set on end or a stack of poker chips. Each floor will contain about 1,400 square feet of tenant space, roughly equivalent to a small home.

The high-rise is to soar upwards from a small plot of ground in the downtown section that has a street frontage of only 18 feet.

It will be set in an L-shaped pocket formed by an existing nine-story structure. The 75-year-old, one-story home now on the site will be torn down. It had been the office of Sarkiss and his staff.

Diplomat Towers, Inc., of Marina Del Ray, Calif., is the developer of the $1.5 million venture.

Soviet Georgians unhappy in Israel

ASHDOD, Israel (UPI) — "The prophecy has come true. Israel has arisen from the ashes, we have not forgotten Jerusalem and it needs our hands."

Four years ago, that petitioned plea reached the United Nations Commission on Human Rights from the hinterlands in Soviet Georgia.

Now, more than 25,000 Georgian immigrants later, both they and the host Israeli government sense a certain tarnish on those first visions of mutual redemption.

The disappointment reached a violent climax in July, when 2,000 Georgian settlers around the country converged upon and virtually took over this 15-year old Mediterranean port 20 miles south of Tel Aviv.

Blockading the main roads and forcing a shutdown of all public facilities—some under physical threat — the immigrants demanded the immediate rehiring of 47 Georgian stevedores whose jobs had been phased out at the end of the spring citrus export season.

Minister relents

Despite angry protests from Ashdod's civic leaders, most of them former refugees from North Africa, Transport Minister Shimon Peres relented on most of the Georgian conditions rather than have police forcibly break up the siege.

Backed by Prime Minister Golda Meir, Peres told the Ashdod officials: "We must not forget that we are obliged to take in the Georgian newcomers and treat them as brothers in every sense."

But their own social insulation and traditional customs prevent the Georgians from fully integrating into Israel's bustling western lifestyle.

One out of three arrivals from the Soviet Union, currently Israel's top source of immigrant blood, hails from Georgia, a west Asian republic whose native son Josef Stalin has provided its major claim to fame.

The estimated 70,000 to 80,000 persons who make up the Georgian Jewish community claim they are direct descendants of the first Hebrew exiles from the Holy Land 2,700 years ago. They are highly clannish and fellow immigrants from the more sophisticated European Soviet republics find less in common with the Georgians than with many of the other ethnic groups that spice Israel's potpourri of nationalities.

Cultural gap

"All the Gergian men think that only Georgian women are decent, and that Russian and Israeli women are whores," said angry Gita Machlim, an unwilling neighbor to several Georgian families in an Ashdod housing development.

Israelis of western origin were awakened to the depths of the cultural gap earlier this year, when seven Georgian men were arrested in the Galilee town of Nazareth for beating to death a local Arab whom they found fraternizing with a married Georgian woman. When police reached the scene, they found the battered woman with a partially shaved head.

To Israeli charges that the Georgians are backward, the immigrants have complaints of their own.

"What kind of culture is this here?" said Daniel Shalevh, 50, a burly newcomer who settled in a Tel Aviv suburb last summer with his wife and three children.

"What kind of cinema? Murder and sex and violence. And look at the way they sit in the movie houses. They spit sunflower seeds in your face and roll bottles down the aisles. And those miniskirts!"

Eventual adjustment

In the long run, according to government immigration specialists, the Georgians will adjust to their new homeland, just as have the German, Moroccan, Romanian or Indian Jews who preceded them during the state's first 25 years. Their "Israelization" will take its toll of ethnic peculiarities, according to the government experts.

Some municipal leaders, such as Ashdod's Mayor Zvi Silker, criticize the settlement authorities for concentrating too many of the arriving families into too few areas at too fast a pace. The result, says Silker, is to aggravate the Georgians' isolation.

Meanwhile, Georgians such as Yehuda Yosvashvili of Ashdod district hope for better times. "The Moroccans are my brothers," he said. "The Sabras (native Israelis) are my brothers. All the Jews are brothers. But our people are crying: Why is it like this here? How can you live?"

Bar owner held in slaying of estranged wife

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — A Yucca Valley bar owner accused of slaying his estranged wife and two other persons at her small desert home in Johnson Valley last Saturday night was ordered held without bail Wednesday for preliminary hearing Sept. 4.

County sheriff's deputies said Joseph Lopez de Victoria, 48, and his wife had evidently been living apart for four years but she had recently filed for divorce.

Two other persons seriously wounded in the shooting were reported recovering.

Will India again hear the roar of the lion?

NEW DELHI (UPI) —The roar of the "Lion of Kashmir," Sheikh Mohammed Abdullah, who often has been caged by the Indian government, may soon be heard again throughout this troubled nation.

The questions to be answered are whether the old freedom fighter finally has been tamed and for whom he intends to do his roaring.

The Sheikh vowed in a recent speech in Kashmir to cast his gaze on a "wider horizon"—all of India.

Tall, balding and bushybrowed at the age of 67, a staunch Moslem and unquestionably the most politically powerful leader in Kashmir, Abdullah promised to expand his activities to the entire country.

"I think I owe it to the country as a whole," said the Sheikh. It was a comment not likely to sit well with the more militant Hindu nationalists in this nation where Moslems constitute a disadvantaged 10 per cent of the population.

But the Sheikh in his speech at Srinagar, just before an eight-day visit to New Delhi, insisted he was not trying to fan the flames of communalism, which a quarter of a century ago prompted Hindus and Moslems to slaughter each other in droves. He said he wants Moslems to fight not only for their own rights but also for the rights of other oppressed Indians, including the so-called "Untouchables."

Urging that India's minorities should work together, the Sheikh said, "Our separate grievances are as formidable as our common foes—poverty, illiteracy, disease, social injustice, backward customs, corruption and maladministration."

Segments of the press have editorially welcomed the Sheikh's decision to enter the mainstream of Indian politics.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has not commented publicly on his plan but some suspect she engineered it. Another opinion is that the Sheikh's stated intention to deal with people of "all shades of opinion" would appear to preclude his joining Mrs. Gandhi's ruling Congress party.

It is known, however, that the Sheikh has conferred frequently lately with a special envoy of the Prime Minister. She certainly could use his support at a time when India appears to be facing its worst-ever economic crisis and when her party is deeply troubled about future elections in areas that have high Moslem populations.

Big question

A big question is whether Abdullah will work for or against Mrs. Gandhi, or whether he aspires to be an all-India political leader of the country's 62 million Moslems, the third largest Moslem population in the world.

The Sheikh still is regarded by many as one of the giants of a nobler time, the years when Indians were fighting for independence. They contend he could help lead India from its deep malaise.

In 1931, the Sheikh headed a movement against the autocratic rule of the Maharaja of Kashmir and thereby won the affection of the late Jawaharlal Nehru, Mrs. Gandhi's father and the man who became India's first Prime Minister when India won independence from British rule in 1947.

Abdullah strongly supported Kashmir's accession to India at a time when the predominantly Moslem state could have opted to cast its lot with the new Islamic Republic of Pakistan, which still claims Kashmir although India controls most of it.

The Sheikh and Nehru clashed when Abdullah came to believe that India was interfering too much in the internal affairs of the state, and Abdullah was removed from his job as Prime Minister of Kashmir. He was put on trial and in the years since independence has been jailed off and on for a total of 12 years. He has been free for almost two years now.

Alcohol a deadly drink for the road

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More Americans were killed last year in alcohol-related traffic accidents than by homocide, says the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration of the Department of Transportation.

There were 56,000 Americans killed in traffic accidents. About 28,000 deaths were alcoholic related and 19,000 were caused by problem drinkers. There were 18,000 homocides.

Witty comeback from Kissinger

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —Said a reporter recently to Dr. Henry Kissinger (who has been nominated to be secretary of state):

"Do you prefer to be called 'Mr. Secretary' or 'Dr. Secretary'?"

Replied Kissinger: "I don't stand on protocol. If you will just call me 'excellency' it will be okay."

The Geysers help combat fuel crisis

THE GEYSERS (UPI) — When William Bell Elliott stumbled into a canyon of foulsmelling steam in 1847 while hunting a grizzly bear, he thought he'd found "the gates of hell."

Visitors from around the world trekked to the isolated spot in rugged mountains 90 miles north of San Francisco, at first to view the strange phenomena and later to bathe in the hot mineral springs.

Now, the superheated steam is being tapped in this period of fuel shortages to help keep the lights burning and other electrical appliances working in California.

The Geysers —misnamed because they are actually fumaroles and steam vents and do not send up jets of hot water like Old Faithful in Yellowstone National Park —are producing enough power to serve the needs of a city of 90,000 people.

Expansion already under way and planned will increase output five-fold. Developers believe enough power could be generated by The Geysers to meet the needs of one million people, and maybe four million.

The theory of what causes the steam is that molten rock called magma bubbles from perhaps 20 miles below the earth's surface through fissures up to ground level.

The molten rock, scientists believe, comes in contact with underground streams and rivers sending steam up to the surface.

The steam hits ground level in The Geysers at a pressure of 100 pounds per square inch and at a temperature of 350 degrees. A pall of hydrogen sulfide gas, smelling like the rotten egg gas beginning science students make, hangs over the region, appropriately named Big Sulphur Canyon.

Attempts to develop the commercial power potential of the Geysers were made as long as 50 years ago, but couldn't compete with cheap hydroelectric resources.

The use of geothermal energy to produce electricity was developed in the meantime at Lardarello, south of Florence, Italy, and in New Zealand.

In 1956 The Geysers was tapped for full scale power generation.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co., the nation's second biggest electric company after Consolidated Edison of New York, agreed to buy the steam and in 1960 opened its first generator in the region.

Since then, 10 units have been added or are under completion which will bring capacity of the project to 396,000 kilowatts by the end of this year. The upsurge in development has driven out bands of hippies who set up communes in abandoned resort cottages.

"When these latest units become operational, The Geysers will be the largest geothermal field in the world," a PG&E spokesman said.

"It is not the complete answer by any means to our energy problems, but it's a good supplement."

The $15 million for each generating unit is lower than oil or fossil fuel plants and engineers believe there is at least enough steam left to last the 30 years of life for the equipment.

Development of The Geysers has not been without its opponents.

PG&E said it gets complaints about the smell and has had to install special equipment to cut down the amount of nondisposable chemicals that get into the air.

And when drilling crews bring in a new "well," the roar of steam is like a jet engine at full throttle. Signs near the steam heads warn workers to wear ear protection gear.

Utility officials are cautious in talking about the future of geothermal energy as a partial answer to power shortages. But they say that development of new sources —most on government land —could help bridge the gap until completely new systems of electric generation —nuclear fusions, solar and the like —provide a long term solution.

Egypt now has more than 8 million acres of farmland producing crops ranging from dates to cotton.

Things are silent Between angry pals

Dear Ele: I had a fight with my best friend over something I can't remember now, and we stopped talking. We are both very stubborn and no one is going to make the first move because it is just like saying, "I was wrong and want to make up." The girl who used to get us back together moved away, and I am afraid that if we start school not talking, it will be like that all year. What can we do?—Doris

Dear Doris: It seems sad to prolong a battle whose roots are completely forgotten. Is there a place where you can "accidentally' run into your chum? If so you could smile and say "hi" without any reference to the past.

Probably the first time her response would be frosty. But with a few subsequent "accidental" encounters your continued warmth should melt her anger. (10-to-one she's forgotten the reason for your fight too.)

If this doesn't work, carefully check through your possessions, and if you can discover anything that either belongs to her or that the two of you bought jointly, use the return of the item as a cover motive for some "how have you been?" rap which might ease you over into less tense ground. Good luck.—Ele

Dear Ele and Walt: I ran away from home last spring for a number of good reasons. My parents promised these things would change and that's why I agreed to come back home. Well, since then things have gotten worse rather than beter, and I won't stay here another month.

My girl friend's brother says I can stay with him if I pay half of the food bills and do my share of the housework. This is very close to my school, and I think he would be a good influence on me. (He doesn't smoke, do dope or drink anything except wine.) But I know if I bring this up my parents will say no. The only way they ever listen to me is if I run away. Can you think of something better?—Jeff

Dear Jeff: To win a better hearing, bring a trained counselor into the situation who'll first listen to you and then relay your position to your parents without you present. If you have no affiliation with a church, and don't have positive vibes for any of the school counseling staff, check out the Mental Health Association, the Family Service Office or the professional "Y" staff.

As to the wisdom of rooming with your girl friend's brother, realize that your free and easy relationship with the guy is bound to change once you're housed there. Since he's paying the rent and offering you a gratis roof, you'll be morally bound to do a bit more than 50 per cent of the work. Are you up for that?—Ele and Walt

Dear Ele and Walt: Don't you think that people should ask you if you mind before they light the incense or candles in your room?—Julie

Dear Julie: Yes, they certainly should. But if you suspect your about-to-be-guests will miss that little nicety, put the incense and candles away before you invite them into your room. Prevention is far easier than correction for a hostess.—Ele and Walt

U.S. keeping a tether on convicted sergeants

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal probation officer Stan Schwartz has the job of keeping track of four army sergeants who proved they could outbilk Sgt. Bilko but he is confident he can do the job.

"If they try to con me, they'll find themselves in jail," says Schwartz.

The case involves Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge, the highest ranking enlisted man in the U.S. Army, and three other noncoms convicted of an astonishing fraud involving kickbacks from operation of overseas GI clubs between 1965 and 1969.

In a novel sentencing last May, U.S. District Judge Warren J. Geruson did not send the men to prison as he could have. Instead he put them on probation with the proviso they perform charity work without salary and sign over virtually all their assets to the government.

"I want the defendants penniless," the judge said at the time. "I just want to make sure you don't have anything."

Suspended sentences

The other three sergeants, who along with Wooldridge had pleaded guilty, were William E. Higdon, Theodore D. Bass and Seymour Lazar.

All were placed on probation for five years. The judge suspended prison sentences of five years for Higdon anl Lazar, four years for Wooldridge and two years for Bass. Ferguson ordered that charitable work be performed for three years by Wooldridge, Higdon and Lazar and for one year by Bass.

So far as he knows, Schwartz said, only Bass, of the four, has as yet made arrangements to start his charity work. He declined to give details at this time.

Schwartz, who was given over-all responsibility for execution of the sentences, says it is too early to make any judgments on how the court's orders are being carried out.

Wooldridge and the others were given a period of five years within which to perform duties that Schwartz said would correspond roughly to those that a conscientious objector could undertake. It was not set forth, Schwartz said, that the men start such work immediately.

September accounting

Stanley I. Greenberg, the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case and was given responsibility for the turnover of assets, also says it is premature to judge whether that aspect of the penalty has been properly executed.

The government has made a thorough examination of assets, including Swiss bank accounts whereof Higdon acknowledged he had $300,000 worth, Greenberg said, and an accounting will be made in September.

Wooldridge, in a recent interview with UPI, said he was fully prepared to carry out the court's orders but that he has not decided what kind of non-paid volunteer work to go into.

"I'm interested in some work dealing with ecology and I've written to the Sierra Club," he said.

"Actually, I don't have any real civilian skills. I was in the army over 30 years. I know how to handle people, I'm a leader but I'm going to go slow on deciding what type of charity work to go into."

House exempt

Wooldridge said that his only assets were a modest home in Junction City, Kan., and a used automobile, both of which have been exempted from the court order as not being connected with earnings from the fraud.

Schwartz agrees that Wooldridge came out of the scandal with little if any cash socked away but he says Higdon and Lazar profited tremendously.

Wooldridge, who received a "general discharge" from the army instead of an honorable discharge, receives a lifetime pension of $796 a month, which is not affected by the court ruling.

Estranged from his wife in Kansas, Wooldridge says he iis deeply concerned about the effect of his conviction on his children, a daughter and four sons, one of whom recently left the Marine Corps after service as a first lieutenant.

Or else

Wooldridge is now living in Los Angeles and says he spends much of his time playing golf with old army buddies while he decides what work to take on.

Lazar was permitted to go to Stuttgart, West Germany, where he has a home and assets and settle his affairs before returning to Los Angeles in September.

Higdon is reported to be in Atlanta, Ga., and Bass in Florida. Schwartz would not pinpoint their whereabouts. The probation officer said their files have been turned over to U.S. Probation Department field offices but that he, Schwartz, will keep final account of their compliance with the sentences.

"If there is any reason to believe that any one of them is deliberately attempting to avoid carrying it out, I will have him brought back here before Judge Ferguson who has made it plain that will result in prison," Schwartz said.

Panel puffers given special tobacco blend

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) —Sid and Georgianna Taiz, who own a tobacco stand, took a professional interest in the Senate Watergate hearings. There they sat, all those pipe smokers, senators, lawyers, even some of the witnesses, puffing away.

So they whipped up some special pipe blends and mailed them off to Washington.

In reply, they received a letter from the committee's minority counsel, Fred Thompson, noting that "From now on, you can see your tobacco being smoked on nationwide television."

One of the blends the Taizes named "country lawyer," after Sen. Sam Ervin.

But on their own politics, they said "We both voted for Nixon and we'd vote for him again."

Secret Service won't reduce Nixon's detail

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Secret Service said today it does not intend to comply with President Nixon's suggestion that the number of agents protecting himself and his family be reduced.

A spokesman for the agency, Jack Warner, declined to comment about the President's remarks except to say: "The Secret Service is not going to reduce its manpower."

At a news conference Wednesday, Nixon said neither his wife nor daughters wanted any Secret Service protection and said he had recommended three days earlier that the White House detail be reduced by one-third.

On Monday, a Nixon motorcade in New Orleans was canceled at recommendation of the Secret Service after it reported a possible assassination plot while Nixon was there to address the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

THEY'VE CHANGED — If you shout "Help, police" in Menlo Park the man who responds will be dressed like a mod, young businessman. Despite the green blazer and wide tie, agent Richard Hutton is a policeman and a member of a 48-man police department considered one of the most progressive in the nation. There are no police uniforms.

Radar trap backfires

A magistrate brought in from another district to try Dutton on the speeding charge Monday found the radar trap was set on the wrong side of the road and could have been triggered by cars going the other way. He dismissed the case.

Mullin jury foreman scores Reagan, state

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) —The foreman of the jury that convicted Herbert W. Mullin of 10 murders said that Gov. Ronald Reagan and the California Legislature must share responsibility for the slayings, since funds for mental hospitals were reduced.

"None of this need ever have happened," said Ken Springer, a television shop owner from San Lorenzo Valley who blamed the state officials for closing down mental hospitals for economy reasons.

"I hold the state executive and the state legislative offices as responsible for these 10 lives as I do the defendant himself," Springer said in a letter to Gov. Reagan.

"Five times prior to young Mr. Mullin's arrest he was entered into mental hospitals. Five times his illness was diagnosed. At least twice it was determined that his illness could cause danger to the lives of human beings," Springer wrote.

"Where do you think these mental institution patients who were in these hospitals went after their release from institutions?

"Do you suppose they went to private, costly mental hospitals, or do you suppose they went to the ghettos of our large cities and to the remote hills of Santa Cruz County?"

Springer said the crimes were ones "that only an individual with a mental discrepancy could have committed," although the jury ruled Mullin was legally sane when he killed 10 persons in a three-week crime spree early this year in the Santa Cruz area.

The jurors found him guilty of two counts of first degree murder and eight of second degree murder. Mullin admitted three other slayings during the trial.

Menlo Park police go mod--and score

MENLO PARK (UPI) — If you yell "Help, police!" in this city the man who responds will be dressed like a mod, young businessman.

Despite the green blazer and wide tie, a policeman he is — and it's guaranteed he'll be at the scene of an emergency in less than three minutes.

And when his superior shows up there won't be any "yes, sirs," "captains" or "lieutenants" tossed around.

This city of 30,000 on the San Francisco peninsula considers its 48-man police department one of the most progressive in the nation.

The force was the first in a major urban area to take all of its men out of the traditional police uniform and dress them in conventional civilian attire. But there have many other changes made since that move in June of 1968.

The old rank system was done away with and in its place there are such titles as "investigators" and "operations manager."

"What we did was bust the para-military system," said Police Chief Victor I. Cizanckas, 36, who instituted the changes shortly after assuming command.

Cizanckas, who has a degree in sociology as well as law enforcement, says he "placed modern management practices over the old structure."

"It's paid off," he said. "We have no increase in crime and assaults on officers has decreased."

The men all wear green blazers with a shield on the pocket identifying them as policemen. On the chief's wall is a picture of the force and the men look more like members of a college glee club than cops.

The shirts, pants and ties are of the officer's own choice and most favor the latest wide, colorful fashions.

"But an overbearing clod is still an overbearing clod, no matter what the uniform," says Bob Anselmo, director of research and planning.

To make sure there are no clods under the new uniforms, Anselmo said, a strict program of continuing education was started.

"If you want to get ahead here, you've got to go to school," said Anselmo who graduates from business school in August.

"I've already got a law enforcement degree and our chief graduated Magna Cum Laude in sociology," he says with pride.

Anselmo says the city reimburses the policemen for books and tuition. Today about 85 per cent of the force has attended college.

When Cizanckas took over the average number of college units taken by men on the force was 21. It now stands at 90.

It costs money to lure the best men to the department, and Menlo Park now ranks among the top 20 cities of its size in the nation for pay structure.

There's a long waiting list to join up and it includes lawyers as well as veteran law enforcement officers.

Even the police headquarters is unconventional. The modern, low profile building is located in a city park and a few feet from its doors is a placid lake and trees.

But the revolver on their hip tells that the men are police officers, and Cizanckas feels they can handle anything.

"We guarantee a three minute response to any emergency," he said. "We do all the conventional police work but we are a social business and our business is serving the public."

Banker turns talents to maple wine

DANBY, Vt. (UPI) —Gone are the days when maple sugar only meant syrup for pancakes and waffles, perhaps candy. The Frank Jedlicka family here is making maple wine.

Jedlicka, an international investment banker, learned the pleasures of good wine while living and working in France. Friends who were winemakers and champagne manufacturers introduced him to their fine art and the interest stuck.

The Jedlicka family was attracted to this small village by lovely farms and a gorgeous countryside they knew wouldn't stay that way.

"Nobody wanted to keep up farms or apple orchards," Mrs. Jedlicka said so an apple wine business seemed like the logical solution to the problem.

Thus Vermont Wineries began in 1970.

Time important

"We said 'go' for the operation early in 1971, starting up on the apple wine recipe and following shortly with maple honey and more recently rhubarb ferments," Jedlicka said.

The apple wine is selling for about $3 a bottle in Vermont and at an exclusive Madison Avenue shop in New York City. "We didn't want to make 'pop' or 'chemical' wines" Mrs. Jedlicka said. Time is the most important ingredient in a succesful bottle of the family's wine and they take as much of it as they need.

"We try as much as possible to be very, very natural" she said. The honey wine will take a total of about three years to age; none of it has been sold to consumers yet.

Jedlicka also is planning a strawberry wine. "Emphasis will be on producing only premium grades—light, dry, characteristically aromatic and zesty—ideally all with in-state grown raw materials," he said.

The family buys all its apples from a local cooperative formed by 10 apple growers, hopefully adding a shot in the arm to a lagging agricultural economy.

Currier and Ives

Vermont Wineries is housed in a 19th century barn restored with hand-hewn beams and rafters and filled with large stainless steel vats and modern bottling machinery.

Not all the ingredients in the Jedlickas' products come from Vermont. A special French yeast is an important ingredient shipped in because it's simply unavailable elsewhere.

But the over-all tone of the operation is "Vermont." Right down to the labels on the bottles, a Currier and Ives reproduction.

"We feel Currier and Ives art is as 'Vermont' as maple sugar" Jedlicka said.

$79 million raised for Republicans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major contributions to presidential and vice presidential candidates during a nine-month period last year totaled about $79 million, the General Accounting Office announced Thursday, clearly the largest amount ever collected for national campaigns.

A 1,900-page compilation by the GAO's Office of Federal Elections reflected contributions in excess of $100 to all condidates for President and Vice President in the form of donations, ticket sales, loans, transfers, interest, rebates and other payments for the period of April 7-Dec. 31, 1972.

"The total of these contributions, ticket sales, loans, and other payments comes to approximately $79 million," the GAO, an investigative arm of Congress, said in a statement accompanying the four-volume report.

The report was the first issued under the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act, which requires an annual accounting of total contributions and expenditures for all presidential and vice presidential candidates and identification of all those who contributed in excess of $100 to these candidates.

Population dip L.A. and S.F.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —California's population has grown 223,000 to 20.7 million in the past year, the state's population research unit reported.

But population in Los Angeles and San Francisco declined slightly over 12 months, though at slower rates than before.

Los Angeles dropped from 7 million to 6.9 million from 1972 while San Francisco dropped from 689,500 to 681,200, the researchers said. Orange County in Southern California showed the biggest increase, from 1.54 million to 1.6 million.

Council to hear report on stray dog problem

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Bruce Richards, executive director of the Humane Society of Pomona Valley, will give an hour-long talk before the City Council Monday night, explaining in detail the city's problems with stray dogs and recommended corrective measures.

There will be no public meeting Monday afternoon. However, the council will meet in executive session starting at 3 p.m. to interview applicants for the position of city administrator.

The discussion on stray dogs was requested by the council after receiving complaints from citizens.

In a letter to the council, Richards recommends a number of changes he says could raise enough new funds to permit the society to hire and train one or two additional humane officers and purchase an additional mobile unit.

Among the recommended changes is the fee for the impoundment of a dog be raised from the present $6 to $10 for the first time, $15 for the second time and $20 for the third, and the penalty for failure to purchase a valid dog license be raised from $2 to $2.50.

Another of Richards' recommendations is that the society be permitted to give dog owners up to five days after receiving a leash law citation to pay a fine to the society and avoid going to court, with all funds going to the society.

But Deputy City Atty. Kenneth H. Glube says the power to impose the sanction of fines belongs to the courts and that the society does not have the authority to do this.

Glube said the only way the society can receive revenue from violations of the leash law would be to ask for a reimbursement from the city, which presently receives 88 per cent of all revenue collected as a result of fines stemming from violations of city ordinances. The remainder goes to the county.

Richards also asks that fines imposed by the courts for leash law violations, which presently average about $10 each, be set at $10 for the first offense, $15 for the second offense, and $20 for the third offense, with 40 per cent of the fines going to the society.

Glube also disagrees with these recommendations, suggesting that the society submit a monthly claim to the city for reimbursement of all fines collected in the court relating to leash law violations.

Glube noted that the standard punishment for violation of a city ordinance is a fine not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not to exceed six months in the county jail, or both.

"It would not appear to be in the best interest of the city to scale down this punishment to such an extent that the maximum fine permissible would be merely $10, even if second and third offenses would be punishable by increasing amounts," said Glube in a letter to the council.

"The Humane Society, working through the district attorney, could bring it to the court's attention that the particular person being fined is a repeated offender and, therefore, should have a more substantial fine, perhaps in the vicinity of $25 or $50, imposed at the particular time."

Richards also is asking that the police, sanitation and housing departments, utility companies and postal employes send in regular reports to the society on packs of dogs observed.

Although the society patrols here and in the cities of Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas, the recommendations apply only to Pomona.

On Wednesday, Richards had said he would also ask the council to increase the impound fee for cats and other small animals from $2 to $5 and raise the impound fee for horses and other large animals from $15 to $30.

He said he would also recommend that the city require a $10 permit for animals not normally found as household pets, such as monkeys and raccoons.

A TOWER BUT NO BELL

The front exterior of San Dimas Elementary School shows the deteriorated condition of the school which has been vacant for the past six years. The vacant hole at the top of the photo once housed the school bell that called students to class.

Vacant San Dimas school in eye of the hurricane

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

SAN DIMAS — San Dimas Elementary School, once the pride of the community, is now an aging eyesore that attracts scribblers of graffiti.

The windows and doors of the old structure are boarded up to ward off vandals, and this adds to the total appearance of desolation.

The school was constructed in 1930 and was in operation until it was abandoned in 1967 when it was declared no longer safe for occupancy because it didn't meet earthquake-resistant requirements.

The school has been vacant since that time.

The property is now the "eye" in a storm of controversy which involves the Bonita Unified School District which owns the land; the state which apparently has the final say on the sale of the property; and the City of San Dimas which has several interests in the property.

The problems involved with the sale of the property are as complex as they are many.

The school district wants to sell the property but it must be sold at a price which satisfies the Office of Local Assistance in Sacramento.

Appraisals of the property are varied. An appraiser hired by the school district valued the land at $90,000. The City of San Dimas hired the same appraiser and he appraised the land at $60,000. Thus a conflict arose, questioning the real value of the property.

Officials at the Office of Local Assistance say the school district can't sell the property for an amount less than the true market value. A field representative there has made the decision that the true value is $75,000.

Dr. James Overin, assistant superintendent in charge of business for the school district, said Baum Toy Co. is interested in purchasing the five acres of property but the school district needs a zone change for the property before the sale can be completed.

San Dimas City Manager Robert Poff says that the city will not grant the zone change. He said he has promised residents near the old school that the city will put a park there and he hopes to keep this promise.

The city manager feels that $58,000 would be a fair price for the land that has been idle for six years. He made an informal offer at this price to a representative of the state at a meeting with district and city officials but said it was in effect rejected as too low.

The American Legion is also involved in the city's plans. The organization wants to use the auditorium of the school building for a meeting hall. They would share the expense of the purchase of the property.

Dr. Overin said the school board takes the position that it wants to "dispose" of the property which he says is a problem. "We would like to see the property put to some productive use."

Poff would also like to settle the issue and he will press the point before the City Council at its meeting Monday night. The city manager said he will ask the council to go into executive session to discuss the purchase of the property.

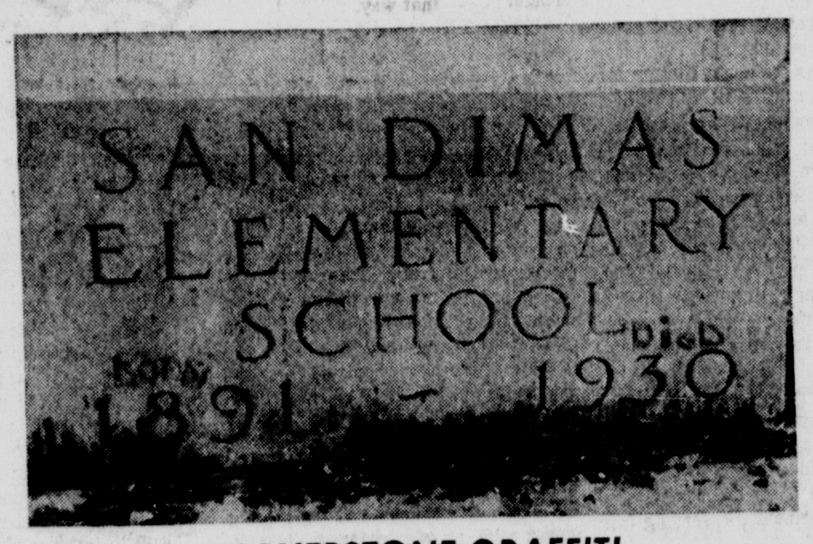
He said he wasn't prepared to reveal what he would recommend to the council but he explained that the council has several alternatives.

It can condemn the property, which he said is a drastic move and an expensive one. The council can also order that another appraiser be hired to give his opinion of the worth of the land.

"This whole matter is hurting the people down there (nearby residents) and is causing great grief to the school district," Poff said.

A. C. Berkenbine, a field representative of the Office of Local Assistance in Sacramento, said if the controversy and the stalemate in the sale continues the issue may be turned over to the State Allocation Board.

Local school officials say they are caught in the middle of the hassle. Poff said he is frustrated by the situation which he feels could be settled by the state lowering the price by $17,000. Residents of the nearby area also have their opinions and have made them clear to members of the City Council. They don't want a factory type use near their homes. They want a park that the city has promised.



CORNERSTONE GRAFFITI

A local graffiti artist summed up the problems of the San Dimas Elementary School site by writing "Born" over the school's cornerstone date of 1891 and "died" over the 1930 date.

Final action on D.B. busing due Tuesday

POMONA — Pomona school board Tuesday night is expected to take final action on whether to provide bus transportation to Diamond Bar students attending Ganesha High School.

A resolution changing the district's pupil transportation policy, which would provide the service, will be given a second reading.

Those in the audience who wish to support or oppose the policy change will be heard.

And following discussions, it is anticipated the board will decide the issue by vote.

The resolution was given a first reading at the Aug. 14, school board meeting. Three women, all Diamond Bar residents, asked that it be approved by the board. Another woman in the audience asked rather that the money be used to restore the sixth period to district high schools.

Trustee Ken Pine, who chaired the Aug. 14 meeting, invited the women to return Tuesday when he said the matter would be settled.

Some $43,000 has been included in the 1973-74 budget to fund the busing service with the stipulation that were the proposal rejected by the board the funds would revert to the general fund.

With the exception of special education students, the district has provided no bus service to pupils since 1954.

Since Transamerica Development Corp. discontinued its busing service the fall of 1971, Diamond Bar students have had to provide their own transportation.

Glendora man's body recovered at swim park

Angelo Cruzzo, of 1244 Glengrove Ave., Glendora, was pulled from about 10 feet of water by lifeguards, but failed to respond to emergency aid by life guards or the San Dimas fire rescue team.

Cruzzo's body was found about one hour after a friend reported that he could not find him. When a search of the grounds by lifeguards did not locate the man, the huge swimming pool was ordered cleared for a search.

An autopsy will be performed by the Los Angeles County Coroner's office to determine the exact cause of death.

According to sheriff's deputies, it is believed that Cruzzo suffered from epilepsy and may have had a seizure while swimming

ECHOS OF POMP AND CIRCUMSTANCE

The inner courtyard of San Dimas Elementary School, which once was filled with happy children, is now boarded up and unsightly. This courtyard was used for special events and graduation exercises.

Reading program to include students, teachers -- everyone

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Something new in reading will be initiated at Fremont Junior High School when school starts in September.

Each Tuesday and Thursday all 935 persons on campus—including the custodian, principal, secretary and all the teachers and students—will sit down for 30 minutes with a good book.

It will be accomplished by what Principal Rafael H. Estupinian is calling modified alternative scheduling. Its purpose is to promote reading for pleasure and for information.

Each individual may choose his or her own reading material. It may be brought from home, checked out of the school library or borrowed from the teacher.

"Some students," said Estupinian, "will read no matter what the teacher does.

"A few won't read, no matter what the teacher does.

"However, all will profit from an environment in which reading is held to be an important aspect of life, as well as a cherished luxury.

"The theory behind this sustained reading program is that the school in a sense attempts to duplicate an environment in which reading is held to be important, and that students see models of behavior who, at a practical level, emulate a specific life style."

When the Tuesday-Thursday reading breaks roll around (noon to 12:30 p.m. and 12:35 to 1:05 p.m.) all students will report to their homerooms.

When the final bell rings, everybody will read.

"This means everybody," said Estupinian, "secretaries, administrators, teachers, maintenance people and students."

Teachers will be required to have surplus reading material in their homerooms. The library staff will prepare 10 rotating collections of books, including some Spanish language books.

Teachers will be encouraged to bring magazines.

Values and standards held by individuals determine behavior, Estupinian explains.

This principle is true of all, but particularly applies to the pre-adolescent for whom life styles of the peer-group become unrelenting models for behavior.

"A new set of values for the individual grows out of his experience and the cultural values of the social group of which he is a member," the principal said.

Estupinian, in following through on this philosophy by setting up the sustained reading program, hopes to convert all 935 individuals on the Fremont campus into nonstop readers who develop their reading skills so they can gain pleasure and information from their increased abilities.

Drug council picks leaders

ONTARIO — Nine new members have been elected to the West End Drug Abuse Council.

Those elected include Chino Police Chief Frank Meehan; Montclair City Administrator Lauren Wasserman; Ontario community relations commissioner Esther Campana; Upland housing authority administrator Jerry Leggit; West End Neighborhood Youth Corps coordinator Salvador Huereque; parole and corrections regional supervisor Howard McGarry; Cucamonga school board member Louie Gonzales; methadone treatment coordinator Sabino Ballesteros; and Ontario Community Action Group member Carye Jo Burleson.

EDITORIAL

Opinion

Through the ages, price laws failed

In Rome in A. D. 301, the Emperor Doicietian fixed the maximum prices of which beef, grain, eggs, clothing and other articles should be sold, and prescribed the penalty of death for anyone who disposed of his wares at a higher figure.

The result was that farmers no longer brought provisions to market, since they could not get what they considered a reasonable price for them. Eventually, after much violence and suffering, the law was laid aside.

For whatever comfort it is, we no longer (except possibly in Soviet Russia) employ capital punishment against economic "criminals." But even earlier that this date — in fact, almost as far back as recorded history goes — and on up to the present day, governments have tried every expedient and experiment conceivable to regulate the prices and supplies of food and other commodities.

"The results have been astonishingly uniform considering the variety of conditions and circumstances under which the experiments have taken place. They make an interesting record and one which contains much food for thought, for the problem of the people's welfare has been much the same in all ages and it is not yet solved."

The 50-year-old booklet has been resurrected and reprinted by the American Meat Institute, which is not a disinterested spectator at one of the latest attempts to control spiraling food prices by government edict.

A few of the other examples culled from history by Mrs. Lacy:

Some 29 centuries before Christ, Egypt took entire control of the grain trade and saved the people from starvation, but took over the land in return.

Athens regulated the grain trade and set prices by legal enactment, but found herself unable to enforce them.

Ancient China worked out a system of control of supply and demand—the "ever-normal granary"—and seems to have been the only country which recognized the whole price question as being a symptom and not the disease itself.

According to at least one historian, price-fixing legislation was largely responsible for the overthrow of the Dutch Republic in 1585.

Great Britain had on her statute books laws fixing the price of bread and certain other items for more than 500 years. But all such laws were abrogated in 1815 because of their failure to accomplish their intended purpose.

The Colonial United States tried price-fixing experiments at various times and places, but failed utterly to secure satisfactory results.

Revolutionary France tried the same measures, but the protagonists of the movement perished on the guillotine.

Republication of the Lacy booklet is "particularly appropriate" at this time, says the Meat Institution, when once again political pressures on our government leaders have caused them to resort to "the same, futile, counter-productive measure which has, without exception, proved a dismal failure hundreds of times over a period of 5,000 years."

The Rising Sun

During the amazing rise of Japan from a defeated militaristic nation to one of the world's economic giants, a serious economic problem arose between it and the United States, its mentor and financial benefactor. Japan was exporting to this nation such quantities of high salable products that the balance of trade was thrown seriously off center.

That problem, however, now is being remedied. As Prime Minister Kakuei told the Commonwealth Club of California recently in San Francisco, last the end of 1973. This has come about, Tanaka explained, because Japan has "shifted its economic priorities from growth to welfare and from exports to imports" and because "both American and Japanese businessmen have stepped up their efforts to expand U.S. exports to Japan."

The economic shift within Japan is significant. With its tremendous population concentrations in four major cities, living problems have grown beyond acceptance. The Prime Minister has proposed the "building of a New Japan" on the archipelago, creating new communities, industrial centers and connecting expressways. He hopes to disperse the population flow into "enriched communities so all our people can take equal pride and satisfaction in fulfilling their material and cultural needs, no matter where in Japan they may live."

This promotion of a better life in Japan will, Tanaka pointed out, have an effect on the United States in that it will create new and expanding markets for American exports.

Capitol Hill's weekend warriors

WASHINGTON — Those who seek reasons why the Congress traditionally displays a permissive attitude toward the Pentagon need look no further than the lawmakers' military status. At last count, 108 senators and representatives—including Speaker of the House Carl Albert, D-Okla.—hold some sort of reserve commission.

This formidable band of active, inactive and retired weekend warriors often provides valuable, if not valiant, service when the time comes for the Pentagon's annual battle of the budget. Consider some of the more staggering conflicts of interest:

Seven senators on the 16-member Armed Services Committee are active, inactive or retired reservists. Senator Howard Cannon, D-Nev., for example, is a former major general in the Air force Reserve and draws $718.77 per month in retirement pay. At the same time, he heads two subcommittees—one on the national stockpile and naval petroleum reserves and another on tactical air power. Tom McIntryre, D-N.H., a retired major in the Army Reserve, runs the subcommittee on research and development.

10 on Armed Services

Ten members of the House Armed Services Committee are, or were, reservists. Clark Fisher, D-Tex., a retired lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserve, is a subcommittee chairman.

Ten reservist congressmen are on the House Appropriations Committee and five of them are members of the subcommittee on defense. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., a retired major general in the Army Reserve, heads the subcommittee on military construction.

Nine members of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs are reservists. The chairman of the Senate Veterans' Committee is also a retired reservist. He is Vance Hartke, D-Ind., formerly a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve. Two other members of Hartke's committee, Tom Stafford, R-Vt., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., are also reservists. Indeed, Thurmond pulls down a healthy $5,762 a year as a retired Army Reserve major general.

Prizes for the most ironic conflicts go to Senators Cannon and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., a retired captain in the Army Reserve who is also a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee. Both are on the Senate Ethics Committee.

Celebrated case

The military is careful to take care of its Capitol Hill warriors. In one celebrated case, a decade ago, a congressman who had been a Navy enlisted man was suddenly knighted as an Air Force Reserve major. With 15 days of training, he became qualified

Electricity 'turns you on'

There is new evidence that it's electricity which "turns you on."

No new science excites me more than electrophysiology. Any medical student who is uncertain about a specialty should consider this one.

Medicine since the Thirties has been proccupied with chemicals. Medicine in the Seventies will multiply its understanding of the electricity which makes you run and the short circuits which make you sick.

Every nerve in your body functions in response to an electrical signal. We've measured your heartbeat with an electrocardiograph and your brain waves with an electroencephalograph, but now we can actually, visually see the auro of lavender light which emanates from your body while you live and vanishes only when you "give up the ghost."

Now we are relating the most ancient Chinese science of acupuncture to this newest understanding of electrical force fields within your body.

We can deploy the electricity in you to light a light bulb.

Drexel Institute of Technology in Philadelphia, Pa., has developed a pacemaker heartbeat regulator which requires no batteries; it is activated by electricity generated within your body.

The University of Wisconsin has discovered that electrical current can be adapted to reduce or eliminate breast cancer in laboratory animals.

American scientists are increasingly excited about the possibilities of regulating your body's electricity much as we have already learned to control, within limits, your body's chemistry.

Your body's generator is phenomenally efficient and reliable. The human brain in its normal waking state emits electrical energy, or beta waves, 18 cycles per minute. When drunk or asleep, your brain slows to 10 cycles per minute and emits alpha waves.

But individual cells and collections of cells in the body can short-circuit and become electrically "out of balance." Some Mexican cardiologists believe they can rebalance such cells and prevent some heart attacks.

They theorize that the relationship between your chemistry and your electrical system is similar to that in your automobile. The battery must have a proper chemical balance to generate a prescribed level of electrical current.

With a photographic device costing less than $50, Stanford University's Prof. William Tiller has photographed the "electrical halo" around human fingertips. Some have more, some less "halo."

Faith healers, when tested, have a smaller "glow" after "healing" by touch than before — whatever that may indicate.

And the "male-female touch" in some instances attracts, in others repels. Some people are said to have a "green thumb" because plants respond to their touch. Now we can prove some do.

Of course, there is much debate over what the electricity in you is and does. But the Russians, ahead of us in some aspects of this research, are said to be detecting diseases in plants and animals well in advance of traditional diagnostic methods — electrically.

"Are you sure it isn't still ticking?"

Gossip for today

With typical American fortitude many of us are once again meeting adversity head on by traveling down the garden path. This time, however, instead of calling our valiant efforts "Victory Gardens" they are now "Inflation Gardens." And since it is written in the Book of Galatians, chapter 6, verse 7, that: "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap," we planted those gardens with the firm conviction that by so doing we would be helping win the Battle of the Food Shortages.

Now far be it from me to doubt the word of the Good Book but here lately I must confess my faith is being sadly shaken. For I have sown and sown and sown but because of snails and cutworms and aphis, stray dogs and cats, loose chickens and a host of other scourges, I have suffered the vexatations and frustrations of Job. In truth it HAS been an "Inflation Garden." The vegetables that did mature and ripen have cost me twice as much as they would have if I had just gone to the produce market and purchased them already grown.

So I, too, like that wretched, long-suffering man Job, have finally been forced to cry out in misery, anguish and travail: "The Lord gave and the Lord taketh away: blessed be the name of the Lord."

Trends in Japan will bolster $

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the past few years a principal cause of the U.S. unfavorable balance of trade has been the huge excess of imports from Japan as contrasted with our sales to the country.

The unfavorable balance of trade, in turn, brought heavy pressure on the dollar, laid a heavy hand on the stock market, and forced sharply upward the prices of thousands of items imported from abroad, or made of materials produced elsewhere in the world.

A look at economic trends in Japan is therefore profitable at this time. The material offered here has just arrived in a letter from Tokyo.

What the information from my friend seems to suggest is that the devaluation of the dollar, the floating of the yen and higher costs of world commodities which Japan must import are combining with inflation and higher wages and other social costs in Japan to increase that country's imports so markedly, and laying such heavy pressure on Japanese exports to the United States, that the unfavorable balance of U.S. trade with Japan could be largely eliminated within the next 12 months.

Consumer prices are up 11 per cent over a year ago. Wholesale prices, traditionally quite steady in Japan, are gaining at a rapid clip, which foretells even higher cost of living figures for the future.

Wage settlements for 220 major firms this year thus far have been running at 19 per cent above a year ago. The average wage boosts for 383 medium and small-scale companies negotiated to date is 21.3 per cent above 1972.

Wage raises have averaged roughly 16 per cent a year for the past five years. They have consistenly been outrunning productivity, which has averaged out at an 11 per cent gain annually in that same period.

There are signs too that Japan's economy is slowing down. Growth has averaged about 11 per cent a year for the past decade, and was a strong 10.3 per cent in 1972. In the next 12 months growth is expected to slide down to a respectable but more modest 7 per cent.

Japan has been especially hard hit by the worldwide inflation, for that island country must depend on imports for almost all of its raw materials and energy resources. Further, pollution has become so great a problem that Japanese business is now being forced to put considerable resources into control equipment.

Antipollution devices are expected to account for 12 per cent of all Japanese industrial investment this year, contrasted with 10 per cent in 1972 and 3 per cent in 1965.

Japan's industrial costs have been upped, too, by the marked shift toward the five-day week in most major firms.

Zappella warned, witness testifies

POMONA — A Medi-Cal executive testified in Superior Court here Friday that he had warned Dr. David G. Zappella in May, 1970, that the state would not pay for psychiatric services rendered by counselors and social workers even though they worked under his direction.

Zappella, a former Pomona psychiatrist and head of Tri-City Mental Health Authority from 1961 to 1969, is on trial on 17 counts of Med-Cal fraud in Pomona during 1970.

According to Dept. Dist. Atty. William Roth, the psychiatrist, now living in San Diego, has obtained more than $2,000 for services he did not render, or that were given by persons who were not qualified to perform psychotherapy under Med-Cal definitions.

Seven former patients of Mental Health Associates of 1504 San Bernardino Ave., for which Zappella organized in 1970, testified they either never saw him during their visits or that they saw him only occasionally. They said they were seen, instead, by counselors Doris Scott and Mark and Nancy Joslyn, Zappella's associates.

The period of the treatments ran through August.

Fred Cowden of San Francisco, manager of the Medi-Cal liaison department of the state, said he told Zappella personally and by mail in May of that year, that "however effective their services might be, counselors and social workers could not be paid for those services with Medi-Cal funds."

On cross-examination by defense attorney Dean Pic'l, Cowden admitted that his ruling was "a procedural matter that had the state's acceptance" but he did not know where the policy originated.

Zappella claims that counseling and therapy sessions by persons who are deemed to be qualified by a resident psychiatrist are proper and that the practice is widely used throughout the state.

Roth contends not only that psychotherapy was given by unqualified persons but that in many cases the state was billed for services that were never rendered by anyone.

The jury trial will be resumed at 9 a.m. Monday before Judge Glenn M. Pfau.

LOS ANGELES — Combined basic utility rates for gas, electric and telephone service for California ratepayers are still among the lowest in the nation, reports the California Public Utilities Commission.

In announcing the results of the PUC's annual survey of typical rates in the nation's 25 largest cities, President Vernon L. Sturgeon said the problems of continued inflation and the effects of the economy on the public utilities "resulted in additional necessary rate increases during the past year, but a comparison with previous rates and with those in other parts of the country, indicate that California rate increases have been modest."

The survey includes charges for specific amounts of service so that climatic conditions affecting total charges are eliminated. Rates in the survey are those in effect up to June 30, 1973. The typical bills are based on charges for 70 therms of gas, 300 kilowatt-hours of electric energy and one-party individual line residential telephone service.

Of the 25 largest cities, San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego ranked first, fourth and seventh respectively in having the lowest rates. San Francisco's combined monthly billing was $19.54 compared to $18.43 a year ago. The Los Angeles combined billing was $22.06 for the survey period compared with $21.37 for the previous year, moving the city up a notch from last year's fifth place position.

San Diego's combined rates were increased by $1.31 cents per month, with $23.22 as the total monthly bill compared with $21.81 for the previous year. San Diego remained in seventh place among the nation's large cities.

Charges for the same amount of utility service in other cities range as high as $39.41 in New York and $41.10 per month in Boston, the PUC president indicated.

"The survey covered the period up to June 30, 1973," Sturgeon said, "and as a result did not include some recent increases in electric and gas rates, which reflect the scracity of and the increased cost of natural gas and the necessity for the electric utilities to switch to higher priced low-sulfur fuel oil.

As far as gas and electric rates are concerned, California's investor-owned utilities' rates compare favorably with the rates of some publicly-owned utilities, which do not pay taxes."

Three injured in collision

POMONA — Three persons escaped serious injury in a spectacular two-car accident on the Corona Expressway at Dudley Street early Saturday morning.

Police said that the accident occurred shortly after midnight when a car driven north on the expressway by Raymond Roy Rich, 47, of 20060 Lime Crest, Covina, collided with a car driven by Ola Louise Harding, 57, of 1662 Huntington St., Pomona, as she attempted to turn left onto the expressway from Dudley Street.

After the collision, both cars skidded north on the expressway with Rich's car crossing the road's dirt median and coming to rest in the southbound lanes. Both cars sustained total damage.

Rich suffered lacerations to the head and shoulders, as did his wife Janet.

Dayan: won't give in to pressure on Arab attacks

JERUSALEM (UPI) —Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said that he will not "give in" to Arab guerrillas' attacks on Israeli targets even if accused by the world community of lawlessness.

Dayan told a convention of foreign Jewish lawyers and jurists he did not believe the United States would surrender to "Arab dictation" as the price for assuring future oil supplies.

"We have to choose between defending our people or saying that other people won't like it and therefore we have to give in. I'm not for giving in," Dayan said.

Dayan said his comments were made because "I do care for world opinion and that's why I am trying to explain the situation here."

Most of his 45-minute appearance was devoted to a response against the unanimous censure of Israel Monday by the council of the Interntational Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), meeting in Montreal.

He defended the operation which provoked the censure, Israel's forced diversion of a Lebanese airliner Aug. 11, which it mistakenly thought was carrying Arab guerrilla leader George Habash.

Night watchman relaxed fellow

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) —Police received a call from a worried housewife who said she heard heavy breathing, a thud and then silence while talking on the telephone with her husband, a night watchman. She told police she feared her husband had been "done in."

But officers who went to the scene reported Wednesday, "Everything is okay here. While he was talking to his wife on the telephone, he fell asleep."

Those in this year's party were Linda DellaPelle and Becky Parks of Pomona; Jeff Huss, Terri Heaton, Rick Bonilla, Elliott Bellett, Allen Brier, Jim Case, Dee Fleming, Joni Kuch, Mina Marmol, Dianne and Lynne Myers, Jim St. Clair, Brad Miller, Craig Toothaker, Sandy Wolf and Cindy Zidek, all of Claremont.

Also, Kathy Jones, Regina and Marta Brown of La Verne, Connie Brady of Glendora and Chris Rutland of Ontario.

In France, Bulls Get A Sporting Chance

BEAUCAIRE, France (UPI) —The Spanish give their fighting bulls admiring obituaries. The French give theirs a sporting chance.

The difference enables a bull called Goya to frighten spectators and opponents and still leave the arena on his own four feet.

In France, the corrida is limited by law to towns with a local tradition, but in recent years it has become increasingly popular. Small towns seem to feel a corrida gives their summer fairs greater status as well as providing a spectacle for tourists.

Even if the regional sport—"la course libre"—allows a more satisfactory contest between man and beast, the games have Goya to thank for maintaining and creating interest.

Unlike the "killing" contest of a regular bullfight, the games here are simple—a red ribbon or cocarde is tied to the bull's horns and the equivalent of Spain's matadors, known as "razeteurs", try to snatch it off as they run past.

Goya a favorite

The longer a bull keeps its ribbon, the more it is worth to the man who finally removes it.

Game promoters usually hire seven or eight professional "cocarde-snatchers" a day, but anyone can try his hand. All he has to do is dress entirely in white and then hope his legs can carry him faster than the bull's.

But audiences do have favorite bulls, and top on the list is the bull named Goya.

Goya made his first appearance in the arena six years ago and at first he annoyed the public by repeatedly vaulting the barriers.

He was a circus animal and not given much hope for a successful future. Yet now he is the star of the French bull fighting scene and his cocarde tops $1,000.

Gentle at home

Goya is fully mature and nine years old. He stands five feet eight inches to the tip of his wide curving horns, and weighs slightly more than 900 pounds.

Yet for all his ferocity in the arena, he is gentle at home.

Roland Monnier, foreman of Les Marquises ranch near here, said: "Goya is the most tranquil of animals. The majority of bulls are nervous in the stockade but he just lies down. Yet as soon as he enters the arena and smells the scent of man he becomes furious.

Monnier is a small wiry man of 47 who has spent a lifetime working with bulls, much of it at the Les Marquises ranch, where owner Paul Laurent has raised bulls for the last 30 years.

Crafty and fast

Goya could not have arrived at a better time, for the games were going through a lean time in the past 20 years. Many of the most daring razeteurs had retired and not since Vovo, the grandfather of Goya, has one bull created so much interest.

Experts say the difference is that where Vovo had brute strength, Goya is crafty and his speed and intelligence are making the games a one-sided contest.

Goya's appearances in the arena guarantee his owner between $2,500 and $3,000 an afternoon.

Recently he broke the leg of one top razeteur and gashed the thigh of another—too dangerous for men who earn up to $20,000 a season.

Capt. Robert F. Scott and four companions reached the South Pole Jan. 17, 1912 but all died on the return journey.

More recently, we probed the military records of Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., who is a Coast Guard reserve officer, and found that he was getting retirement and promotion credits when he lectured Sea Scouts, for example. He also got reserve credits when he conducted subcommittee hearings on oceanography and again when he met with a group of fishermen to discuss "lobster problems."

According to the Constitution, a congressman must not serve two masters. Article Six provides that "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house during his continuance in office."

Back in the days when Congress took the Constitution seriously, a Senator Lane from Kansas was ejected from office for accepting a reserve commission in the Union army. If today's legislators were as strict as their predecessors, more than one-fifth of the 93rd Congress would be looking for new jobs. But Congress legitimatized the lawmaker-soldier with a special law in 1956.

'Double-dippers'

The laws were further relaxed in 1964 with the "Dual Compensation Act," which permits federal employes who are retired reservists to collect both their second-career salaries and their military pensions. Such persons are known in the federal burcaucracy as "double-dippers"; according to the National Taxpayers Union, there are at least 100,000 on the public payroll.

Fifteen members of Congress qualify as double-dippers led by Speaker Albert, a retired Army Reserve colonel. The diminutive Oklahoman, now known by some as the "Big Dipper," draws a combined salary and pension of $66,270.

Others include Sens. Cannon and Thurmond; Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a retired major general in the Air Force Reserve, who gets $6,552 in retirement pay and $42,500 in salary; Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, a retired Air Force colonel who pulls down a $4,872 pension; Rep. Ray Roberts, D-Tex., a retired captain in the Naval Reserve, who receives a pension of $5,210; and Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., another Naval Reserve captain, who gets $1,806 in retirement pay but donates it all to charity.

Apathy, interest rates hurt stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) —Investor apathy and surging interest rates pummelled stock prices for the fourth consecutive week on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which hit 20-month lows in each of the first three sessions, recovered some ground late in the week to close 8.35 lower at 863.49. The index of 30 blue chips has plunged more than 73 points in a month.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index fell 0.69 to 101.62, also hitting 1973 lows several times during the week. The NYSE index declined 0.40 to 54.18.

Declines outnumbered advances, 1,092 to 621, among 1,952 issues traded. There were 315 new lows, while only 12 issues reached 1973 highs.

Volume down

Volume, which has been subpar even for the normally slow summer months, tailed off further to 53,814,460 shares, compared with 59,212,170 a week earlier, and with 83,643,870 the year before.

For stocks, it was a week full of technical milestones, nearly all of them bad. On Monday, the Dow sagged to its lowest reading since Dec. 15, 1971 — 867.40 — and, perhaps worse, volume was the lightest in nearly a year at just under 9 million shares.

The loss deepened Tuesday and Wednesday on increased turnover. On both days, the Dow set 20-month lows, closing Wednesday at 851.90.

The week's solitary bright spot followed on Thursday. The Dow industrial, which had skidded roughly 90 points with barely a pause for breath, shot up 12.56, its best gain in nearly a month.

The technical rally was brief, though. On Friday, buying interest petered out, leaving most market indexes practically unchanged at the end of the day.

On one level, some analysts said soaring interest rates were the key factor in the market's continued lack of volume and downward bias. They frequently have pointed out investment dollars are being drawn away from Wall Street, attracted by short-term money market rates of 10 per cent or more. As one observer put it, "If a money manager can get 10 per cent more or more in debt vehicles —and sleep at night—why should he involve himself in current stock market risks?"

In addition, the prime lending rate—the rate of interest on bank loans to top business customers—rose Monday for the fourteenth consecutive time this year and now rests at 9½ per cent. The steady increase in the rate, along with inflation, has led to concern on Wall Street that the cost of doing business is becoming so cumbersome corporate profits are being seriously pinched.

Linked to rate

"I can see the market continuing its downward pattern," said Larry Goldstein of Drexel, Burnham & Co., "until there is a decline—not just a peaking—in interest rates, and a sustained lessening of inflation."

Basic to the market's gloom, according to Goldstein and many other analysts, is a crisis of confidence touching both economic and political bases. Watergate, and associated scandals, as well as occasional signs of lack of coordination in the nation's economic policies, have damaged investors' faith in the stock market's immediate future. Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham spoke during the week of a "who gives a damn attitude toward stocks.'

Europe savoring a new bonanza-- the free-spending Japanese tourist

PARIS (UPI) — The scene around Rome's Trevi Fountain no longer focuses on Americans tossing in coins, but Japanese snapping cameras.

Behind the information desk in a Geneva department store sits a Japanese-speaking hostess. Signs advertising "Paris by Night" tours in the French capital are in five languages and the first listed now is Japanese.

And on a winding street in Toledo, Spain, near a 15th Century cathedral, a little restaurant serving the national dish of paella offers its menu— in Japanese.

Began in 1964

Japanese, cameras 'round necks, are taking boat cruises on the Rhine River in Germany and filling bullrings and flamenco nightclubs in Madrid. One of every four tourist buses stopping at St. Peter's Square in Rome this August is full of Japanese and they're lining up to visit Lenin's Tomb in Moscow's Red Square.

"Japanese tourists are doing what the Americans did 15 or 20 years ago, making their first trip to Europe and wanting to see as much as possible— preferably nine countries in three weeks," said a spokesman at the German National Tourist Office in Frankfurt.

Japanese started traveling abroad in 1964, when regulations on taking currency out of the country were eased to allow short trips, according to a Japanese Air Lines (JAL) survey. With all foreign exchange restrictions lifted in 1972, 1.392 million Japanese tourist went abroad, 89 per cent more than in 1970.

JAL expects a 35 per cent boost for 1973—and still the number of tourists will be only two per cent of Japan's population, a still untapped tourist market.

Most of the Japanese go to Asia or U.S. Pacific islands but 178,478 flew into Europe in 1972, a 44.8 per cent boost over 1971.

First stop: London

"They're the best type of tourist," said Jacquie Marriner, tour coordinator for the London Hilton Hotel. "They're very neat."

The second favorite Japanese stop is Paris, which received 120,000 in 1972. Several hotels in the area of the Paris Opera now cater to Japanese tour groups. Signs in the rooms about breakfast and dry cleaning now are in Japanese.

In Germany, the third favorite Japanese stop, they like to visit Dusseldorf, which has the largest Japanese resident colony in Europe, a tourist office spokesman said.

Government officials and private businesses are scurrying to cater to the Japanese spenders. Brussels staged a Japanese-language folklore show on its 14th century square, La Grand Place, this summer. Several German cities published brochures about their attractions in Japanese. Greece has started an advertising campaign in Japan.

Prefer own food

Geneva's tourist office is preparing a guidebook in Japanese. The Louvre Museum in Paris has trained special guides to conduct tours in Japanese and some welcome signs at Orly Airport now are in Japanese.

The British Tourist Office is working on handling the Japanese tourist market. A spokesman said, "We are a little behind preparing for the rush but changes will occur in a year or two."

The tourists from the Orient like to sample European food but most prefer their own familiar dishes, according to the Japan Travel Bureau in Paris.

More than 25 Japanese restaurants have sprung up in Paris during the last two years, most catering mainly to tourists from home. One has opened behind St. Stephan's Cathedral in Vienna and two are in business in Rome.

In Paris nearly every shop in the tourist ares of the Champs Elysees Boulevard and the Opera House have signs in the windows in Japanese. Advertisements in Paris newspapers seek "Japanese-speaking salesgirls."

Travel in groups

The Athens jeweler Ilias Llaouinis, who creates jewelry worn by Jacqueline Onassis and other celebrities, has hired a Japanese-speaking salesgirl.

In m d a sr sRoingvsei

In Rome, advertising signs that once pointed the way to chic shops only in English, French and German now are printed also in Japanese. Salesgirls speaking Japanese work in Rome shops, including the ultra-expensive leather shop, Gucci's. The assistant manager said, "They come in four or five at a time, smile, point to their feet and say, 'Want Gucci shoe,' no matter the style or color, just so it fits."

Most Japanese come to Europe on group tours because of the language problem and complexity of their multi-nation trips, JAL said. Some take the grand tour on their own, such as a dozen young Japanese who recently pulled into Brussels in five yellow Volkswagens.

A JAL report said the Japanese took to travel because they have a tradition of travel helped in recent years by rising incomes and cheaper tour prices. Most are affluent company executives in their 30's and groups but more and more women and young people are traveling.

"Japanese used to rest in order to work. Now we work in order to relax—and travel," the JAL report said.

Expert says robots to do complex tasks in future

STANFORD (UPI) A— computer expert foresees the day five or 10 years when robots will handle such complex tasks as farming, undersea mining and spray painting.

"Farming could be done intensively by a robot in a way that humans can't," said Dr. Patrick Winston of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Speaking to the Third International Joint Conference on artificial intelligence, Winston said robots could "relentlessly pursue crop destroying rodents, insects and do grafting, pruning and harvesting."

Winston said scientists were having difficulty in making computers understand such simple structures as children's building blocks and how to grasp and manipulate them. He said one part of the machine must look at the blocks and make a line picture of them. Another part anayzes the pictures. And a third must drive the mechanism to unhandle them.

"The whole system together forces us into understanding our thinking processes in detail," Winston said. "We are not simulating human intelligence, but rather studying the processes on a machine. In this way we can determine the upper limits of intelligence needed for specific tasks."

14 shows criminal oriented

New video season is crime bonanza

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Anybody looking for proof that ours is a crime-conscious culture can find it in this season's new television schedule. Of the 25 new programs and mini-programs announced by the three networks, more than half—14—deal with the catching of criminals.

There are no new westerns. There is only one new variety program, NBC Follies. There is only one dramatic anthology series, NBC's Love Story. There is one doctor in the crowd, ABC's occasional Doc Elliot (James Franciscus) who practices medicine out of a van in the southwest.

Far and away the biggest category, however, is the crime-busting show.

CBS has four — Monte Markham as The New Perry Mason; James Steward as Hawkins, a country lawyer who outsmarts the city crooks; Telly Savalas as Kojak (the show has gone through several changes of spelling of the character's name), a tough but kindly cop; and Richard Roundtree as Shaft, based loosely on the successful movie series about the black private eye.

ABC has only six new series, and three of them are crime shows — Lorne Greene as Griff, an ex-cop turned private eye; Tony Musante as Toma, a series based on the real-life exploits of a daring, inventive policeman; and the once-a-month Cyborg, starring Lee Majors as a man with almost-superhuman powers who only gets the difficult cases.

NBC has more new shows than any network, and more of them are crime shows. Seven of NBC's new offerings deal, in one fashion or another, with crime.

They are: an anthology series called Police Story; Mitchell Ryan in Chase, dealing with a team of undercover cops; Bill Bixby as The Magician, who uses magic as a front for his anticrime work; the mini-series, The Blue Knight, starring William Holden; and three new rotating elements on the Wednesday Mystery Movie, James Mc Eaching as a black private eye named Tenafly, Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick as the elderly Snoop Sisters, and Dan Dailey as an ex-con turned private eye in Faraday and Company.

The comedy pickings do not seem too promising this year. CBS has James Coco in Caluci's Dept., set in a state employment office, and a World War II comedy about the Red Ball Express called Roll Out! ABC also only has two —Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice, which bears little resemblance to the movie of that name, and Mr. and Ms. about a team of married lawyers.

NBC adds four — Diana, with Diana Rigg; Sally Field as The Girl With Something Extra (the extra something is E.S.P.); Losta Luck, which has Dom DeLuise working in a lost and found department; and a garment district comedy, Needles and Pins.

Carrying extra gas in cars dangerous

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California State Automobile Association has warned against the "very dangerous practice" of carrying extra gas in cars to avoid running out of fuel.

The association said gas carried other than in a car's fuel tank can expand and overflow, particularly in warm weather, creating fumes. As a result, a spark or lighted cigarette could cause an explosion.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Lee Meredith is a wife and mother, a Sunday school teacher, an organic gardener—and incidentally a sex object.

"I don't mind the idea of being a sex object," she said with a giggle, the same giggle as when she talked about her garden and said "You should see my tomatoes."

But it wasn't her tomatoes that got her the featured role as a "vaudeville nurse" in Neil Simon's Broadway comedy hit, "The Sunshine Boys'."

Those reasons were obvious when Miss Meredith was asked for her top-to-bottom measurements during a recent interview in her dressing room .

"My head too?" she asked with a laugh and then reeled off that she was 5 feet 8 ,132 pounds , and 38-24-36 . That's topped off by cotton candy blond hair and merry-sexy green eyes.

Started at 16

Near the dressing mirror was a photo of Miss Meredith's husband of four years and some drawings by her daughter, Kimberly, 3. Some of Kimberly's drawings were of "Mommy," who was shaped like a potato in them.

Miss Meredith, brought up in Fair Lawn, N.J., began her career at age 16 as a precision dancer. Her first acting job was in the 1968 film, "The Producers," with Zero Mostel.

In her current role, the actress admitted, she's just a body, "a fixture."

"Normally, I play leading roles out of town," she said. "On Broadway, you have to kind of settle for what you can get. So I figure I'd rather do a smaller part in a good show than be out of town and do a lead where nobody sees you."

As for being an onstage sex object, she said:

Won't turn ugly

"Why can't a girl be sexually attractive and be sweet and nice like the girl next door?

"I mean, you're not going to change yourself physically and turn all ugly just because you're going to be an actress. The thing is, nobody believes you can do anything."

Asked if she wouldn't like to try to be a Bette Davis, a Lynn Fontanne, Miss Meredith agreed and added she "kind of admires Kim Novak. She gets to do all kinds of things."

"You want to know what I really want?" she asked. "I'd like to win an Oscar because then I could prove that I could do more than just stand around and be sexy."

She also said she'd like to be a "personality," giggled and added, "Is it John Wayne? He's his own personality and I like that. I like to use what I've got in a role and put it all together."

N.Y. stuntman enjoys his job

NEW YORK (UPI) —On an average day at work, Alex Stevens might tumble off a three story building, get into a fist fight or drive a speeding car into the Hudson River.

Stevens is a stuntman, New York style. He has been stuffed into a garbage can by Burt Reynolds and knocked down by Frank Sinatra. He choreographed the crash scenes in the movie, "The French Connection."

Recently he founded the East Coast Stuntman's Association, whose members have successfully vied with the fabled "Hollywood stuntman." He is also branching out as a director.

"When Hollywood began to die and they couldn't spend millions on a film, the small independent companies began to shoot on location," Stevens said. "And things really began to get busy in New York.

"But the next thing you know is the guys in Hollywood started taking a lot of jobs here in New York. So I said bunk on this—this was my way of life. So 20 of us here founded the association.

"It's really working out fine. Now, we get all the jobs."

But getting a stunt job wasn't always that easy. He got his start doing a favor for a showman friend. Then there were years of paying his dues: knocking on doors, don't-call me-people, and working odd jobs.

"Sometimes I'd flip hamburgers or tend bar, then after three days I'd quit to be an extra. You get to a point where you want to do it as much as living.

"At first, I didn't really know much about the business. A wardrobe guy on Broadway said you have to do this and do that. I didn't know you had to knock on doors and take photographs and go to interviews. I thought they called you. I didn't realize you had to sell yourself."

Stevens, 35, is a quiet man, who would rather choreograph a fight scene than be interviewed. His movements are easy and fluid. He looks like he was poured into a straight backed chair.

He said he based his work on the laws of stresses and strain and impacts. "I'm completely safety conscious. I like to study an area with photographs, I might even call a fellow stuntman for advice.'

Stevens got some lucky breaks on Broadway as a stuntman, then some television work and later movies. And he has kind words for the big stars with whom he has worked.

"They are in a certain investment bracket. They are an investment. So whether or not they like it, they can't take chances."

Perhaps his favorite actor is Frank Sinatra.

"I photograph like him. He's highly technical, very professional and very fast. And in a fight scene, he's pretty good. He loves stuntmen; I guess he respects them. When he's in town he calls me. I don't know him super personally, but what he talks about is interesting."

On one picture, "Lady in Cement," the late Dan Blocker tossed Sinatra into Stevens, who was playing a villain. "It was a pretty good shot," he said. "It knocked me down."

Recently, he played another heavy in "Shamus," which starred Burt Reynolds. "We got into a fight in an alley and he stuffed me into a garbage can. Reynolds has got some pretty good moves—he used to be a stuntman."

Although he has his hands filled with work, Stevens has turned down at least three jobs to direct his first movie, "Go For Broke," a voodoo mystery set in Haiti and New York.

"This is what I always wanted to do. I've studied for it since I started working in films. There will be a lot of chase scenes, like I did in 'The French Connection.' There's one scene when a car spins off a 5,000-foot drop. I'd like to do that.

"But I guess that career is over."

American-born actor brings Shakespeare to London

LONDON (UPI) —Every year Sam Wanamaker's vision becomes a little more real. It's a tourist attraction already, and in a few years could be a wonder.

It could also be a monumental flop. But suggesting failure reckons without Wanamaker, an American-born actor and moviemaker who has bigger ideas than Cecil B. De Mille and is determined to make them come true.

The evidence is here again this year — another colorsplashed construction rising like some flamboyant Arabian Nights tent amid the warehouses and bomb sites on the wrong side of the River Thames.

This is Wanamaker's second season of Shakespearean plays in the temporary plank-and scaffolding things he appears to wave up with a magic wand for what passes in England as summer.

This year there's a new museum to go with the Bankside Globe Playhouse, and seven Sunday-night concerts, and a 24-program Shakespeare film festival, and a four-week course of lectures and seminars.

All began here

The reason it is all here, in a bankside area overrun with gloomy Victorian relics, is that this is "holy ground."

William Shakespeare's Globe Theater was here. So were three other theaters. This Broadway of Elizabethan London presented the greatest plays the theater has known.

"Shakespeare may have been born in Stratford, but that is nothing in comparison with the significance of these few bankside acres," Wanamaker said in an interview. "Think of the talent associated with this area.

"Yet when you go in search of what was the world's greatest theater, what do you find? A dirty plaque on the wall of a brewery."

That seemed enough for the nation that gave Shakespeare birth. It was far from enough for San Wanamaker, who does not think small.

Globe to rise again

He sees Shakespeare's Klobe risen again, just as it was and almost precisely where it was. He sees a huge lived-in Disneyland built around Shakespeare and his times. He sees this dingy section of waterfront London transmuted into the center of Shakespeare studies and exhibitions for all the world.

What he's actually got so far, apart from peripheral activities, is a free-form patchwork tent partly shielding 800 seats from the rain. Sculpture dresses up the gravel courtyard and every available wall blazes with paintings. But when the season finishes Sept. 9 even the theater's portable toilets will disappear.

This year's bankside season opened with "The Malcontent" by John Marston, a contemporary of Shakespeare so completely forgotten that his play was getting only its second or third professional performance since 1603.

Next came "Twelfth Night", hilariously romped as if it were a 1920's musical. Eugene Ionesco's "Macbeth," absurdly taking off on the Shakespeare tragedy, preceded Vanessa Redgrave as a modern dress Queen of the Nile in Shakespeare's "Antony and Cleopatra" to end the season.

Wanamaker's dream has a long way to go, and the way is scarred with pitfalls. But "single-handed," the Daily Telegraph said recently, "Wanamaker has established a little bridgehead of gaiety on a river bank that otherwise would have been ruthlessly redeveloped as an office precinct...

"And he has brought Shakespeare home to where Shakespeare started"

Islamic collection given L.A. museum

LOS ANGLES — Mrs. Joan Palevsky, a trustee of the county Museum of Art, has presented the museum with what board president Dr. Franklin D. Murphy calls "one of the finest private collections of Islamic art in the world."

The collection, approximately 650 objects, is one of the most comprehensive in the United States, and it makes Los Angeles a major study center for Islamic art, according to Murphy. The collection covers the entire range of Islamic art produced between 700 and 1900 A.D. in an area bounded by Turkey and Afghanistan.

The Islamic paintings, pottery, and textiles were gathered by the late Nasli Herramaneck during a 40-year period in which he became America's foremost dealer and collector of Indian and Asian art. It has been estimated that if it were possible to develop an Islamic collection of comparable quality today it would cost about $1 million.

"Islam has been the fountainhead that inspired one of the three major civilizations in Asia," said Murphy. "The scope and depth of this magnificent gift makes it possible to develop a better understanding of the people of Asia in addition to enjoying this great artistic tradition."

Mrs. Palevsky, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, was a language instructor at UCLA for several years. She is actively interested in cultural and educational affairs, serving on the boards of Immaculate Heart College, Southern California Symphony-Hollywood Bowl Association, Los Angeles Chamber Music Society and the county Museum of Art. A resident of West Los Angeles, Mrs. Palevsky is a book collector as well as an art collector.

The Islamic collection will become part of the Indian and Islamic Department headed by Dr. Pratapaditya Pal.

Collection of Bernat paintings at library

POMONA — A collection of religious paintings, portraits and portrayals of contemporary scenes by the late American artist John "Janos" Bernat is now on display in the main galleries of the Pomona Public Library.

Bernat was born in Hungary in 1910 and lived in Duarte and Monrovia from 1952 until his death in 1964. He studied art in Budapest, Florence and Rome during the 1930s. In 1938, he was awarded a Prix de Roma for his oil painting, "Death of a Fisherman," which remains on permanent display in Rome.

Bernat and his American-born wife came to the United States in 1941 and settled in Ohio where he became a citizen. Together, he and his wife, a sculptor, executed commissions for the interior design and decoration of churches in Toledo and Mansfield. The couple moved to California in 1948 where Bernat continued to do ecclesiastical art as well as portraits and other commissions both in the United States and in Europe. Among his works is a portrait of Elizabeth Taylor at the time of her marriage

Bernat was referred to the City of Hope Medical Center for lung surgery in 1952. Subsequently, he accepted the position of medical artist for the center where he did paintings and illustrations for medical journals until failing health forced him to retire in 1962.

Most of the paintings being shown in the library exhibit were completed between 1941 and 1963. After learning he was incurably ill, he produced more work in three years than he did in the previous 10. Bernat's painting of "Cain and Able" is typical of his last major efforts; it is included in the library display. After becoming ill, he pledged himself to paint as long as he could lift a brush. Not too long before he died, he said: "Before this time, life was a great, gaudy colorful precious stone. But this illness is cutting, polishing that stone into a jewel."

The exhibit at the Pomona library may be among the last showings of the Bernat Collection in the United States. At the request of the Hungarian National Gallery, many of Bernat's paintings are scheduled for permanent display in Hungary next year.

The library is open to the public Monday through Thursday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tolleson of Pomona presented a yellow rose to her mother as she was escorted to the altar by her father. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Bell of Pomona.

Officiants for the afternoon rites were the Rev. Fred B. Gantz and the Rev. Frank Howell.

A headpiece of matching lace held the bride's long veil. She carried white daisies and yellow roses with baby's breath, stephanotis and a colonial bouquet.

Miss Lynda Lawrence was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Cheryl Tolleson, sister of the bride, Susan Bell, sister of the groom, Martha Gosling and Diane Cable.

The best man was Lee Bell, brother of the groom. Ushers were Joe Thornburgh, Brian Thornburgh, Paul Madrigal and Joe Dominick. Candles were lighted by Miss Cheryl Southwick and Mrs. Kathy Blaine.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Telleson of Grants Pass, Ore., and Mrs. Alta Bueshing, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Minnie Bell, grandmother of the groom, and Mrs. Louise Strona, great-aunt of the groom.

Hernandez-Fajardo

Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church in Chino was the setting for the Nuptial Mass uniting in marriage Miss Sarita Fajardo and Antonio Hernandez Jr.

The Rev. Frank Frenkovich officiated at the ceremony which united the daughter of Mrs. Ezequail Fajardo of Chino and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Hernandez of Pomona.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert R. Fajardo, the bride chose a gown of organza and venise lace fashioned with an empire bodice, long puffed sleeves and a train. She wore a cathedral-length veil, edged in lace, which fell from a cluster of pearl orange blossoms.

Becky Garcia was maid of honor and Mrs. Yolanda Vicario was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Galindo, Sylivia Hernandes, Bertha Campos, Hope Carbajal, Ramona Garcia, Augustina Fajardo, Nancy Goodman and Tina Robal.

Best men were Gilbert Campos and Hector Hernandez. Ushers were Usrael Hernandes, Henry Villapando, Melvin Arredondo, Larry Almendarez, Raymond Porter, Tony Goodman and Robert Fajardo.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Separate vacations

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Every summer my wife insists on taking some kind of trip that neither one of us can afford. She won't be satisfied with a reasonably inexpensive vacation in this country, but wants to go to some exotic foreign country to do nothing but shop. She then comes home and spends the rest of the year impressing her friends with her purchases and her trip.

I hate shopping anywhere and would like to do a complete switch and have my kind of vacation, just for once. I'd like to go to a place where I can relax, do some fishing and hunting. I've suggested that since we can't seem to agree on anything, we take separate vacations. She's convinced that if we did this it would mean the end of our marriage. She seems to think I'm going to take some blonde along with me, which is the furthest thing from my mind. During most of the year, we get along fairly well, but as vacation time approaches, the fights begin. After a vacation, it takes us both a month to get over our feelings of anger toward each other.—G.S.

Dear G.S.: Under the circumstances you describe, you must either take separate vacations, or make some sort of compromise, splitting the vacation time so that each of you can enjoy at least half of the time.

Ideally, vacations should be a period when couples get to know each other better and where each can discover and share some new interests. There is great danger in any vacation that doesn't add something new, but is simply a tedious repetition of what has happened before.

Your wife's interest in shopping in foreign lands indicates that she enjoys having new experiences, so it might be possible to combine some totally different vacation that you might find stimulating and exciting.

According to Dr. G. Raymond Babineau, some people flee to exotic countries both to seek attention and to try to find themselves. It can, he says, be an effective way to avoid intimacy, bolster low self-esteem with sorely needed attention, and get rid of depressed feelings. As he points out, however, geographical cures for emotional problems are not permanent.

Preoccupation with shopping, whether in a foreign country or at a supermarket is often an attempt to compensate for a feeling of inadequacy. The shopper may really be looking for love and reassurance that he is a worthwhile person when he or she spends hours and hours poring over various items in stalls or on counters. Food and possessions are often synonymous with love and security in the minds of many. This is one of the main reasons people tend to overbuy even though they have little real need of the purchase.

You might help your wife by reassuring her of your respect and affection. Help her to believe in herself and her own worth so that she won't feel it necessary to "impress" her friends or neighbors in artificial ways, such as showing purchases made on a trip to a distant land.

To solve your particular problem about vacations, it may be necessary to create a new interest that neither of you has ever thought of or imagined before. This might involve a new sport or a new language that you might learn together in preparation for your next vacation.

After a certain time, all marriages need to have a bit of new life added. This is healthy and normal. If a couple can talk with each other and share conflicts as well as their hopes and anxieties, they can almost always find a solution together, if they're willing to experiment with an open mind.

Groupings differ in mood in new store

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Come September, there'll be no furs on Earth. You'll have to get them on the second floor.

Earth is the name given to the ground floor of a speciality store opening this fall in Crown Center, a 50-building redevelopment project near downtown Kansas City.

It's Halls Brown Center, described as a "non-department store," because it will not departmentalize its merchandise. The goods will be placed in loose groupings on the three floors and the merchandise on each floor will be different from the others only in mood or lifestyle.

Juniors chart luncheon

Pomona Junior Women's Club will hold a salad bar luncheon on Wednesday for women in the Pomona area who are interested in membership in the club.

Whats Going on At Griswolds

Adults who are criticizing the youth of today surely don't see the great kids with whom we work and deal at Griswold's . . . over 200 busy, hard working, clean cut, enthusiastic youngsters are working side by side with trained supervisors . . . Blacks, Tans, Jewish . . . students and non-students . . . dishwashers, busboys, waitresses, maids, clerks, painter, errand boy — you name a job, we've got it! The youth of today needs jobs, encouragement, praise, and help!

We received the following letter this week, that makes up for the disappointment and anger that comes with finding shop-lifting in our stores. "Dear Sirs: Several years ago I took a pair of wooden shoes from your store without first making payment. Through recent Bible study I have found this conduct to be wrong, and not in harmony with the love of Christ. I ask your forgiveness in this matter and that you would accept the $10 enclosed. Yours in Christ."

Enjoy fruits and vegetables from your garden throughout the fall and winter by freezing them now. It's a simple way to preserve foods, according to Ethel Diedrichsen, Extension food and nutrition specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Fruits and vegetables, if properly frozen, will keep a year without losing quality. Most vegetables that need to be cooked will freeze well. But cucumbers, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes lose their crispness when frozen and become limp.

Have fun in the sun but wisely

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The fun in the sun season is still with us. So don't let Old Sol make you look older than you are.

Wrinkles and dry skin are an inevitable part of the aging process. Many persons hasten the process by overexposure to the sun.

As a result, they develop prematurely weathered skin, which is not only unattractive but can be the forerunner of a health problem, according to the California Medical Association.

It is the sun's ultraviolet rays, when in contact with the skin repeatedly and excessively, which cause damage. Skin which has been damaged by these rays not only becomes dry and wrinkled but develops abnormal pigmentation and becomes thickened.

When scaly patches appear on the face, scalp or other exposed areas, these lesions should be treated by a doctor, because they are sometimes the forerunner of skin cancer.

Since prevention of weathered skin makes good sense, the following points should be kept in mind:

—The summer sun is least likely to damage skin before 10 a.m. and after 4 p.m.

—If you sunburn easily, keep yourself covered while in the sun.

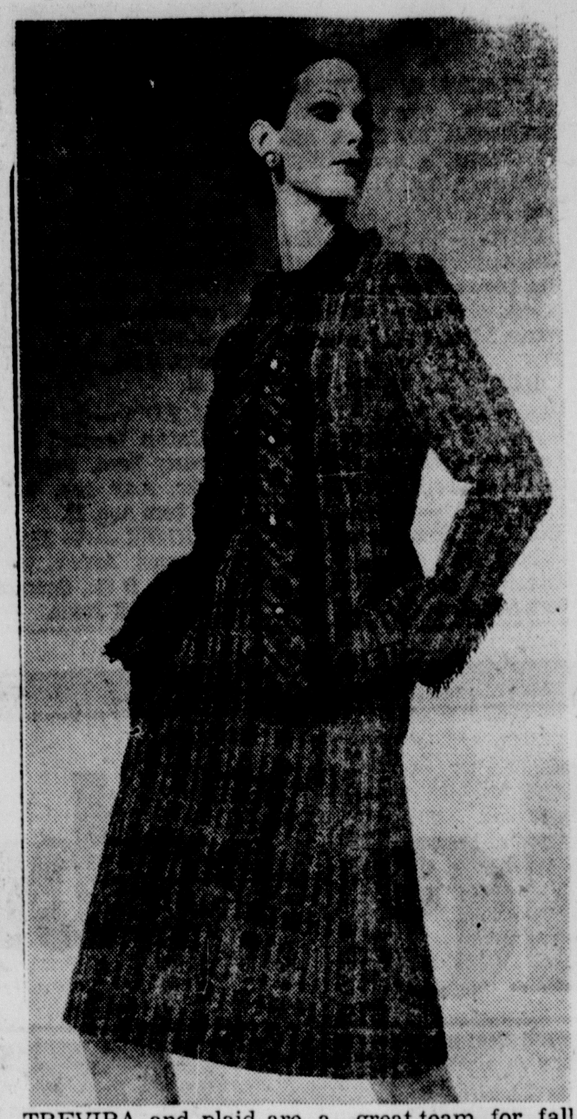
—Sunlamps, though excellent if used under medical supervision to treat certain skin diseases, can do as much damage as the sun itself if used indiscriminately.

—Fair-skinned, light-haired persons are especially susceptible to damage from the sun, but dark-skinned persons can also develop weathered skin if overexposed to the sun.

—Ultraviolet rays do not generally pass through window glass, so you run little danger of overexposure if you have this protection.

—A number of protective creams on the market will screen out ultraviolet rays, but they should be recommended by a doctor since not all commercial preparations are protective.

—Do not apply baby oil or olive oil to the skin since they increase sun damage rather than prevent it.



TREVIRA and plaid are a great team for fall. Green plaid dress and jacket has pleated skirt. It's designed for the office and for any afternoon activity through winter.

Let's Ask The Cook

DEAR NAN:

I am a very venturesome cook so I use many spices, seeds, leaves, etc. but I have never seen the Greek seasoning you mention. Do you know what I call a whiff of garlic powder brings out the flavor of broiled or pan-grilled lamb chops? Of course, they must be served with mint jelly.

Mrs. E. Schacher,
Mansfield, Ohio

What else? I would have a tough time trying to cook without garlic or onions in some form. I had never used garlic at all — neither my German grandma or my mother ever did — until I lived in California and a house guest insisted on cooking the pork roast one night. When she came back from the market with fresh garlic, I was horrified, just sure my everloving would have a fit because his mother and grandma had never used it either.

Lorraine insisted he would never know the difference, she would poke little slivers of garlic into slits in the roast and fish them out before serving time. So what happened? He took one bite and asked me "Why doesn't your pork roast ever taste like this? And what have you done to the gravy? It's great."

Incidentally, the Greek seasoning is a commercial product, not mine. Any store can order it from an Arkansas company. It's a great item in gourmet and party shops especially, but I can get it at two different chain stores. Those who are low cholesterol or other diets are apt to get tired of them unless they are perked up one way or another. This one even takes the blah out of plain cottage cheese without adding calories.

Mountain higher than it appears

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scientists measure the height of mountains by comparison with sea level. Pikes Peak in Colorado is 14,110 feet above sea level. But notes The World Book Encyclopedia, it rises only 9,000 feet above the nearby Great Plains.

Coretti, Doering vows said

The bride is the former Miss Susan Marie Doering, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Doering of Pomona. The groom is the son of Mrs. Toni Crawford of Covina and Walter Coretti of New York City.

The bride designed her colonial gown of chiffon over satin with lace sleeves, a chiffon train trimmed with lace and a lace ruffle on the hem of the gown. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held with a lily of the valley crown and lace flowers. She carried a bouquet of gardenias surrounded by blue roses, lace and ferns. The new matron was escorted to the altar by her father.

Miss Betsy Meyers served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Debbie Labodie and Miss Cathy Hisel.

COLOR can be used in so many ways in room decor . . . and most particularly in large areas of color such as room size rugs or wall-to-wall carpeting.

Today, no room is complete without the carpet treatment and its popularity is well justified. It not only is a great decorating tool but carpet's contribution to the quiet of the home alone makes it deserving of the gold-star treatment.

Carpet provides safety in many areas throughout a home, particularly on stairways, in bathrooms, kitchens and in any area where a fall could lead to injuries.

The durability of carpeting as well as ease of care, gives it a special spot in the home where the action is. And why not? No more back breaking chores of scrubbing, waxing and buffing. It's certainly more comfortable to walk on and it's far less fatiguing.

With winter coming it also helps to insulate your home and eliminate those cold floors . . . Now it is the time to buy and install your carpet and at Fashion Carpet & Drapes our personnel are well qualified to help you choose the correct carpet. Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY—The lady of the house who feels that working with tools is a man's job will find that gluing cotton to the gripping section of a pair of pliers aids in the elimination of stripping bolts and nuts when adjustment is needed.—DONNA

DEAR POLLY—Keeping the magazine rack tidy is a job, as many of us subscribe to so many magazines. I have made it a habit to go through all of ours every two months and cut out the articles, recipes, coupons, etc., I want to keep and put them in folders. I then discard the magazines.—EVELYN

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—To make extra-large ice cubes for punch bowls or pitchers, freeze the water in a cupcake tin rather than in an ice cube tray.—A. D.

DEAR POLLY—I am making a quilt for my grandson and am using a permanent-press sheet for the backing. Sheets now come in so many beautiful colors and by using one for a pretty back the quilt makes a reversible spread.—C. M. T.

DEAR POLLY—I always buy four or five toothbrushes in various colors. Use them in rotation and each brush dries thoroughly, the bristles remain stiff and like new. The brushes can be used for as long as a year.—HAL

DEAR POLLY—Those of you who sew should save the scraps from garments you make. Use some of these to make a patchwork skirt which will not only be a smart-looking addition to your wardrobe but will make use of those odd fabric pieces.—EVELYN

DEAR POLLY—Old socks can make great puppets. Cut an oval piece of cardboard or construction paper and fold in half to make the puppet's mouth. Glue this on to the toe of the sock and then cut two cloth circles to glue on for eyes.—SUE

DEAR POLLY—I store all kinds of scissors in paper towel cylinders that I have covered with aluminum foil. It's convenient and space-saving.—BARB

DEAR POLLY—Quite by accident I discovered this sewing help: I put long nails through from the underside of a thick piece of styrofoam (about 8 by 12 inches and then placed this on the side of my sewing machine. It holds spools of thread, bobbins and keeps the shears from falling to the floor. I stick pins and needles in, too, when I am through with them.—RUTH S.

DEAR POLLY—A bowling bag is better than a regular lunch box for carrying one's lunch, thermos, fruit and sandwiches.—A. D.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

IT'S EASY TO TELL A RATTLESNAKE BY ITS RATTLE, WHICH IS A SET OF HORNY PIECES LOOSELY JOINED TOGETHER AT THE END OF ITS TAIL. WHEN A RATTLESNAKE RATTLES, IT IS USUALLY BECAUSE IT IS FRIGHTENED. IT SHAKES ITS TAIL RAPIDLY WHICH CAUSES THE RATTLES TO STRIKE TOGETHER AND MAKE A BUZZING SOUND. THE RATTLESNAKE WARNS OTHER ANIMALS TO KEEP AWAY. THIS SAVES THE SNAKE FROM BEING STEPPED ON BY BIGGER ANIMALS. RATTLESNAKES SHED THEIR SKINS FROM TIME TO TIME. A NEW RATTLE IS FORMED ON THE SNAKE'S TAIL EACH TIME IT SHEDS ITS SKIN.

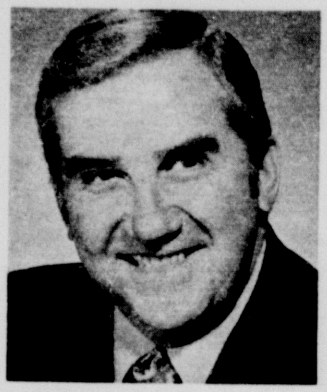
Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.



FOR ED McMAHON

Jack Paar's return to a television talk show has proved to be a disappointment. What do you think is the reason?—T. F. Kane, Durham, N.C.

● Jack and his colleagues evidently thought that he could pick up where he left off ten years ago. But because of the many changes in our society, the parade has passed him by. Those water-closet jokes that caused such a furor when he was in his prime would be tame stuff today. The Tonight Show has been on for almost 11 years, and we've kept in close touch with the scene and our viewers. Many of our people who are now 27 years old and married were with us as teenagers. They grew up with us.

FOR AL KALINE, Detroit Tiger baseball star

I've heard that only one batter ever pinch-hit for Ted Williams. Did anybody ever pinch-hit for you?—James McLoskey, Pacoima, Calif.

● Fred Hatfield pinch-hit for me back in 1954. He hit a home run—and he's never let me forget it.

FOR PAT MORROW,
Rita Jacks Harrington of "Peyton Place"

Is it true that you are giving up acting to study law?—B. K., Whittier, Calif.

● No. Someone printed that I hated acting, but that absolutely isn't so. Acting is fun. And it pays. That's the money that is getting me through law school. Eventually I want to be a politician, and my father convinced me that training and a background in law are necessary before entering politics.

FOR JANET LYNN, skating star

It's no secret that you pray before each performance and consider yourself a religious person. Is there any one experience when you felt the presence of the Lord most intensely? —B. A. Martin, Kankakee, Ill.

● Yes. I remember, when I was in the seventh grade, sitting in church. The pastor's sermon brought forth a torrent of tears, and I vowed from that moment to seek a deeper meaning in life.

FOR SEN. CHARLES H. PERCY (R-Ill.)

I hear you have presidential ambitions, but isn't the Watergate scandal draining power from the White House? And shouldn't it?—James Scott, Scranton, Pa.

● The executive branch has had far too much power. The Congress is beginning to reassert itself in an effort to become, once again, a full-fledged and coequal partner in government. But the Congress should be very careful that it does not overplay its hand to the point of defying our constitutional history.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

When an adult plays games with children should the adult let them win or play to the best of his adult powers?—Lynnette Paulsen, Lansing, Mich.

● I don't think an adult should pretend to lose to make a child feel better, because that's dishonest. The emphasis in skill games should be on teaching the child better techniques. If the adult wants the child to win, he should play games in which luck is important.

FOR DIZZY DEAN, ex-pitcher, now sportscaster

What is your feeling toward the new "designated hitter" rule in the American League?—Will Page, Statesboro, Ga.

● I don't like seeing that chance at bat being taken away from the pitcher.

FOR SUSAN SAINT JAMES of "McMillan & Wife"

Whatever happened to the baby that Sally was supposed to have at the end of last season?—Barbara A. Wellman, Clinchco, Va.

● The creator and executive producer, Leonard Stern, decided to write the baby out of the script. Rumor has it that the baby couldn't act!

FOR JOHN G. SCHMITZ,
1972 Conservative party presidential candidate

Why was your campaign ignored by the mass media?—William H. Tribe II, Ogden, Utah

● The mass media have generally ignored candidates other than those of the two major parties, except when there was good reason to believe another candidacy might affect the winner of the election. The prospect of my affecting the election was destroyed because Senator McGovern was decisively repudiated by the American people from the beginning.

FOR SEN. ERNEST HOLLINGS (D-S.C.)

What is the advantage of Gerovital, the Rumanian drug that you and other senators are seeking to bring into this country?—R. Z., Hayward, Calif.

● Gerovital, called the "youth drug," is widely used in Europe and Mexico. It was developed by a 73-year-old woman doctor, Ana Aslan, in Bucharest. Tom Eagleton, Howard Cannon of Nevada and I had an Army doctor from Walter Reed Army Medical Center check out the claims for this drug as a cure for arthritis, for making hair grow and general rehabilitation. The doctor came away much impressed. Still, the U.S. bans the drug. I think we ought to obtain its entry into this country to help the elderly.

Friendship Between Women: Why It's Different... Why It's Better,

By Rona Jaffe

"Men talk a lot about their old loyalties, their lifetime friends, their old school pals, their old Army buddies, but can they really confide their weaknesses to each other?"

When I was growing up, long before anyone had heard of Women's Lib, most of us little girls were taught that other little girls were not to be trusted: they were catty, selfish, treacherous and would steal your boyfriends, not because they particularly wanted your boyfriends but because it was an instinct born in women to acquire men. Despite this indoctrination, and despite the fact that some of the girls we knew at school were catty, treacherous, and did steal not only boyfriends but clothes and money as well, all of us managed to have close friends, and of course at least one real Best Friend.

Life without one's best girl friend would have been unendurable. Who else would listen to your innermost secrets, never laugh at you, understand, give sympathetic advice, commiserate, and never tell? It was always understood between best friends that no man could ever be the cause of a falling out: if both of you liked the same boy it had to be consecutively, never simultaneously. You could never date your best friend's exboyfriend until she had stated that she was through with him, no matter how many times he appeared at your dorm when she was out and offered to take you for a ride as long as he was there anyway. You were wise to that ploy; that was treacherous. You and your best friend either actually agreed or at least understood by instinct that no casual man, no ego trip, no fling, could ever come between you. He would have to be The Man, and then of course everything would be different, but you both hoped (and really rather knew) that you would never both fall madly in love with the same man at the same time and want him for life, because that was one of the reasons you were such well-matched and trusting girl friends.

When we all grew up and Women's Lib came along to tell us that women were wonderful, any of us who had a best friend already knew it. Men talk a lot about their old loyalties, their lifetime friends, their old school pals, their old Army buddies, but can they really confide their weaknesses to each other? Can they cry in front of their best buddy, unless they're dead drunk and then pretend to have forgotten all about it in the morning? Can they tell each other how afraid they are—not in the foxhole, where pretense is allowed to vanish, but in the office, where sometimes pretense is all there is? Can a man tell his best friend he thinks his wife may be cheating on him, that he's worried sick and what should he do? Can a man tell his best friend that he feels inadequate? There are so many areas in which we humans feel inadequate, and sometimes being able to share these fears with someone close can make them go away. But men seem to have been brought up to act strong, not to admit to weakness and fear, and so when men get together with their best friends it seems they are always doing something: playing tennis, bowling, having a drink, playing cards, fishing, camping, chasing girls, talking business, watching some sports event live or on TV. These are things men can only "do with men." Actually they could do most of them alone or with their dogs, but they choose to do them with their men friends because it is their way of expressing their friendship.

We women, on the other hand, do not have to express our friendship by doing things together. We know that it is usually quicker to shop alone, and when we shop or lunch or play tennis or go to the movies together it is usually for efficiency as well as companionship. When we want to be together we are simply together: we sit down and talk. We talk in our kitchens and living rooms and in restaurants, and we have long talks on the telephone, a gadget to which most men seem to be allergic except when used for business. A man gets off the phone as soon as possible; communication that is not face to face seems to disturb him. Women understand the warmth of a phone talk with one's closest friend when there is a problem to be solved, a fear to be shared and dispersed, or just when one is bored or lonely. Men think they are practical because they use the phone to make dates. We women know we are practical because we use the phone to avoid making dates: why not talk now?

"A man gets off the phone as soon as possible; communication that is not face to face seems to disturb him. Women understand the warmth of a phone talk with one's closest friend...."

One of the things women who are close friends can talk about at almost inexhaustible length is sickness and health. Men are so squeamish (or are they just indoctrinated still to exude that image of physical invincibility?) that it is a wonder so many men become doctors. Women know that the female body is important and sometimes delicate; we are fascinated by its care and upkeep, we know its well-being is vital. "What did the doctor say?" can set off a monologue between close women friends. Two close men friends would rather talk about what the garage mechanic told them about the car—it's not a threatening subject. But what did the doctor say? "Nothing."

In the giving up of their free time to help each other, men and women are about equal. But the way many women's lives are structured today, with a job and a home to take care of, there is more need of friends to reciprocate in giving up their free time to help other friends, in child-watching or all the fetching and depositing of young children that our busy lives demand, and the women friends come through. Women are much less hesitant than men to ask their friends for favors, largely because we women have always been asked to help, to do things, to come through when there's no one else around, no matter how inconvenient the circumstances, and so we expect the same warmth and courtesy from our close friends that we give to them.

The one area in which women are much more reluctant than men to ask their friends to come through is money. Women very rarely ask their girl friends for a loan, largely because women have been underpaid for so long that we know it would be a silly request. Who has any extra money? Women are still used to asking men for money: father, husband, brother, boss, boyfriend, and if all those fail there's always the man at the bank. Men sometimes ask women for money, and seem to have no guilt about it. Apparently the memory of Mama is still warm in their hearts.

A group of women may look silly dividing the check in a restaurant, but a man looks sillier picking up the check for the whole group when he can't afford it. We women may be phony as can be with strangers we don't trust, but we don't have false pride with our good friends. We know that a good friend is irreplaceable, but a friend you have to fool to keep is not worth keeping.

Let me show you this tested, proven technique that has helped so many men and women maintain or regain their youthful health and appearance! For in this book, I give you the Naturopathic Healing method that saved my life and—for over a quarter of a century—has kept me hearty, fit and vigorous, despite the fact that doctors had given me only one week to live!

The reason this Naturopathic Healing is so successful is that it stimulates certain glands and organs in your body, which otherwise tend to "slow down" and cause premature aging. But this wonderful health method has the effect of reaching deep into your body, giving these glands and organs an effortless internal massage!

And what happens?

HEALTH is what happens! Often instantaneously. In a typical case of backache, for example, within 2 to 15 minutes, pain most mysteriously disappears! You feel more alive, more alert—and a roaring tide of youthful energy floods in to wash away tiredness and fatigue for good!

Naturopathic Health Secrets REVEALED!

I have been using this same technique to help thousands of men and women regain new youth and obtain immediate relief from aches and pains that had been bothering them for years. So effective that even I have often been startled at the results. In this book I give you the full details of this method, and show you:

- A natural remedy for heart and blood vessel conditions which I feel is actually superior to drug therapy. I used this method myself when, in my middle years, doctors gave me one week to live. I could barely stand up, and with dragging feet managed to get around slowly. One month later, I felt stronger than at any other time. I could run and play with the younger set. I felt like shouting to the world about this true panacea. As to the condition of my heart, all pains disappeared like magic and have never returned!
- A special herbal tea which has been used with great success in treating bladder and kidney stones, causing some varieties to dissolve and be eliminated naturally!
- A common tree bark, available in most herbal food stores, which has been used with great success in the treatment of arthritis and rheumatism!
- A delicious and popular "miracle" food, rich in enzymes, ionized minerals, and antibiotics—a source of quick pep and energy, and a proven aid for youthful long life!
- Natural manipulative muscle treatments which I recommend to relieve painful muscle spasm and muscle fatigue; special soaks and tranquilizing baths that also give amazing results!
- Wonderful stretching exercises that should relieve backache, straighten your shoulders, and make you look slimmer, younger, far more attractive!
- An amazing food substance—which you can purchase for pennies without prescription—which is able to stimulate the MANUFACTURE of vitamins IN THE BODY. The amount of vitamins produced naturally in the body this way is said to be from 3 to 50 TIMES the usual amounts taken with our food. And it has been learned that this substance plays an important part in the replacement and rejuvenation of body cells!

And still that's just the beginning! You'll learn of certain foods which have been demonstrated to me to cause hardening of the arteries, kidney disease, wear out the intestinal tract, and speed up the ageing process. And you'll see at long last how to avoid them for a whole lifetime of sparkling good health!

Startling Results!

In this book, I give you the full details of this method, and show you how it has brought instantaneous results to men and women in all walks of life. To people like . . .

- BILL C., who was hospitalized and on the verge of nervous collapse, in such constant agony—due to neck and hip sprain—that sleep was practically impossible! You'll see how he received a single treatment, and in seconds the pain disappeared!
- ETHEL G., a dancer, suffering from excruciating pain in her lower back, and who, in addition, was slightly short of stature and extremely sensitive about her height. In minutes she nearly cried for joy as she felt the instant relief of pains. When her height was checked again, it was found she had grown over one inch!
- LAWRENCE S., suffering for 20 years from pains in neck, spine and hip. After two simple treatments, such as you can give yourself, he was completely relieved of all pain!

Rod McKuen— Poet, Songwriter, Singer: How Life Finally Forced Me to Be Myself

By Andamo Crater

FAMILY WEEKLY: With all those hundreds of concerts you do—do you ever get stage fright?

McKUEN: Never. If people pay to see me, we must want to see each other. So what do I have to be afraid of? And I also don't believe in bad audiences. I think you give bad performances. If you don't get to your audience, it's your fault, not theirs. You just have to work that much harder. I go crazy out there sometimes. After I do a few songs, if I feel like I'm not getting to them, I just go bananas. And I work my tail off; I change all the songs right in midstream, switch things around like mad."

FW: Can you tell when you're finally going in the right direction?

McKUEN: Oh yeah—if you can't, you shouldn't be a performer. You know, this year, I will have done 240 concerts in 16 countries. One day, I did three lectures, and for about the last 12 or 13 days I've done two concerts a day.

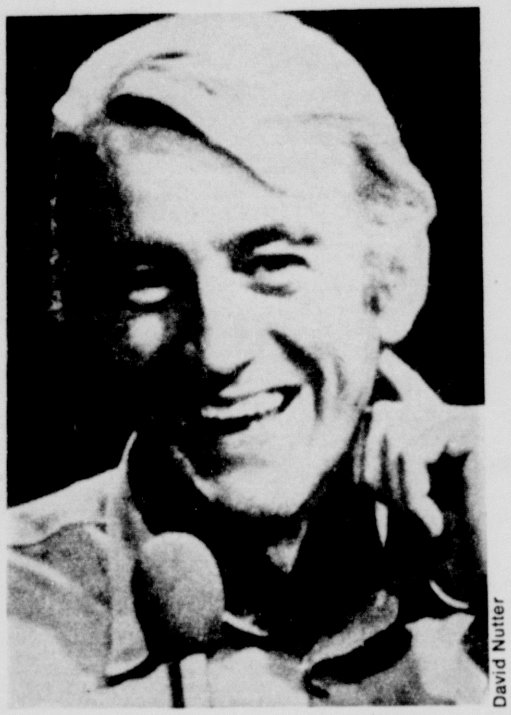
FW: You only began to make it in the late sixties, but I seem to remember your records started showing up as early as 1958 or 1959.

McKUEN: That's right. My first album—"Songs for a Lazy Afternoon"—came out about then. I had a whole different voice then. I lost it singing rock and roll. I had done this rock and roll record as a gag, and after that I found myself doing these concerts. I didn't know how to sing, so I was singing from my throat. I did 80 concerts in eight weeks. By the end of that time, my throat was like hamburger. The doctor said I would never sing again. He also said, "You'll be lucky if you ever talk again." And sure enough, after a few days, I lost my voice completely. It was six months before I could actually talk.

FW: What did you do then?

McKUEN: Well, I went back to California. And I was in the hospital for the first six weeks. I thought to myself: If I can't write and sing the kind of things I want to, I don't want to do anything at all. And it was only then that I began to be successful. But I knew there was no point in my doing rock and roll songs, because there were a lot of other people doing them better than me. And I couldn't say anything within the medium that couldn't be said better by somebody else. So I decided I was going to go my own way.

FW: When did you feel you were getting hold of your audience?



David Nutter

"I'm going to be charitable and not name them, but I think there are singers who sell hundreds of thousands of albums who are afraid to get inside a song and really work it."

McKUEN: It was spooky and strange. It was as though one day you were sort of there, and the next day you were there! I would love to put my finger on that day, but I can't.

FW: Weren't you doing records of your poetry a dozen or so years ago? I remember one called "Beatsville."

McKUEN: I've got to tell you a great story about that album. In fact, there were two albums. The other one was called "Time of Desire." I made them around 1959, and they just sat there on the shelf. When I became a success, the company took those two albums and turned them into 17 albums! Would you believe that?

FW: Why do you write songs?

McKUEN: I think you should have an awfully good excuse to write a song. There should be only three reasons for writing anything. One is to have fun—the most self-indulgent reason. The second one is this—either to write about something nobody else will write about and do it in an intelligent and sensible way, or to write about something that everyone writes about and to write about it differently. Then there's the third reason—the paramount reason for me—I write about people's inability to communicate with each other. And that, to me, is almost a mission in life. I believe in one-to-one communication very strongly. I believe it's the answer to our ills—all of them.

FW: What singers do you like the best?

McKUEN: I'm crazy about Mary Travers. I like Judy Collins and Neil Diamond very much—and, of course, there's Sinatra. I think in my lifetime, there have been two real innovators in music. Sinatra, because he sang on the vowels and because he made every single word understandable. And the Beatles, because they made a form of music, rock, acceptable whether played by the raunchiest rock group or the most sophisticated symphony orchestra.

FW: Do you feel you have been strongly influenced by anyone?

McKUEN: I hate being compared with another writer or singer, but I think you can't help being influenced. We all learned from Sinatra—as writers and as singers. But certainly all Americans have been influenced by Walt Whitman, whether we know it or not. In music, we've been *in*fluenced by Aaron Copland, whether we know it or not. It just happens.

FW: Who are you working with these days?

McKUEN: I'm making an album with Hildegard Knef, and another one with Marlene Dietrich. You know, my favorite singers are always people who supposedly can't sing—but who are incredible singers. I love Lotte Lenya's singing and Fred Astaire's.

FW: What does it mean when people say somebody like Fred Astaire can't sing?

McKUEN: It means they can't sing by any musicologist's definition. You know—bel canto. What annoys me even more are the singers who can sing and don't. I'm going to be charitable and not name them, but I think there are singers who sell hundreds of thousands of albums who are afraid to get inside a song and really work it. You know, when Sinatra came to do his album of my songs, he worked incredibly hard. He knew every single song when he came in—there are some very difficult songs to sing in that album. We did the talk songs in 90 minutes, when it would have taken most people three to five hours.

He's a remarkable man.

According to the sports editors of FAMILY WEEKLY newspapers, a certain announcer on UCLA football telecasts this fall will be talking about the exploits of the best college quarterback in the nation.

That sportscaster is Tom Harmon, one of the greatest of all collegiate halfbacks during his days at the University of Michigan and winner of the coveted Heisman Trophy in 1940. He now handles the microphone for KTLA, the Los Angeles television station that carries all UCLA games.

The quarterback whose feats Harmon will be describing, no doubt in glowing yet controlled terms, is Tom's own son, Mark Harmon, a blond-haired senior who stands six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. Mark has been voted to the quarterback position on FAMILY WEEKLY's third annual All-America team, a 48-player squad chosen by sports editors of the newspapers that bring you this magazine.

In separate balloting, young Harmon, who guided the Bruins to a fine 8-3 record in 1972, was elected the country's best collegiate passer in a close three-way race, narrowly edging out Pacific Eight rival Mike Boryla of Stanford, and left-handed junior David Humm of Nebraska. Boryla is also the son of a famous sports father, Vince Boryla, a former college and pro basketball star who is now general manager of the ABA's Utah Stars.

Harmon, who ran UCLA's wide-open wishbone attack to near-perfection a year ago, completed 30 of 70 passes for six touchdowns, and ran for 444 yards and seven more touchdowns. In gaining his berth on the All-America first team, Mark beat out another running-passing quarterback, Condredge Holloway, a junior at Tennessee.

The other winners in the "best" voting—to select the top runner and lineman in the nation—won their first-team berths with ease. Anthony Davis of the University of Southern California, last year's national champion and UCLA's cross-town rival, received an overwhelming 80 percent of the votes cast for running back, and was acclaimed top runner in the land by an even wider margin. In both cases, the runner-up to Davis, a 5-9, 190-pound junior, was Arizona State senior Woody Green.

Lucious Selmon of Oklahoma drew almost 90 percent of the votes for the first-team berth at middle guard, and the 6-1, 224-pound senior also was elected the best lineman in the country by an almost 20-vote margin over Notre Dame's prodigious sophomore defensive tackle, 265-pound Steve Niehaus. John Hicks, Ohio State's 255-pound offensive tackle, also received considerable support in the "best lineman" category.

Southern Cal's Davis, who likes to be called A. D. rather than Anthony, and absolutely never answers to "Tony," had a serious automobile accident last January that nearly ended his athletic career. Davis suffered a cut (but not severed) Achilles tendon, and a punctured right kneecap, plus numerous cuts and abrasions. But he healed quickly and demonstrated he would be back in the Trojan lineup this fall when he batted .360 and stole four bases while performing as a utility outfielder for the Southern Cal baseball team in 15 games last spring.

A. D.'s athletic forte, however, is football. Trojan Coach John McKay started him slowly last season, and in the first seven games of the year Davis gained a relatively meager 356 yards. Then, in the next two games, he ran 206 and 195 yards respectively against Oregon and Washington State. In the regular season finale against a tough Notre Dame squad, Southern Cal romped, 45-23, and A. D. scored all six of his team's touchdowns, two on kickoff returns of 97 and 96 yards. When Southern Cal completed its undefeated 12-0 season by crushing Ohio State, 42-17, in the Rose Bowl, Davis rolled for 157 more yards on the ground for a season's total of 1,191 and a per carry average of 5.8 yards.

Oklahoma's Selmon is the second consecutive middle guard from the Big Eight to be voted the nation's best lineman in the FAMILY WEEKLY All-America balloting. In 1972, Selmon played in the shadow of Nebraska's Rich Glover, last year's "best lineman" and a nearly unanimous choice to post-season All-America teams. This year Selmon should direct more attention toward himself.

Lucious has two younger brothers also playing football for Oklahoma—LeRoy, a defensive tackle, and Dewey, a back-up middle guard. Lucious made 83 tackles in 1972, ten of them resulting in 48 yards in losses by the opposition. He also broke up two passes and recovered two fumbles. Selmon was a defensive tackle for the Sooners as a sophomore two years ago, but was moved to middle guard in spring practice of 1972.

Southern California, with "best runner" Davis, will get a chance to face the other two FAMILY WEEKLY "bests" this season. The Trojans host Oklahoma for a night game on September 29, and meet UCLA on November 24 in the last game

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, ISN'T IT NICE TO KNOW SOME PEOPLE REFUSE TO GRIND-EM-OUT?

We're sticklers about how Kent is made.

That's why Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made.

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

But Kent quality goes beyond that.

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we so adamant about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

King Size or Deluxe 100's.

of the season and what could be a classic Pacific Eight showdown.

There are five Trojans on FAMILY WEEKLY's first team, giving Southern Cal the largest representation of any school. Joining Davis as first-team selections are wide receiver Lynn Swann, defensive end James Sims, and defensive back Artimus Parker, all seniors, and linebacker Richard Wood, a junior.

Texas has the second largest contingent on the first team, including Roosevelt Leaks, the junior fullback who won his position by nearly 40 votes over UCLA senior James McAlister, who also is one of the nation's finest long jumpers in track. Center Bill Wyman and guard Don Crosslin are the other Longhorns on the first offensive squad, and Texas' Glen Gaspard makes the defensive team at one of the three linebacking spots.

Boryla Humm

Mark Harmon (first team) and Condredge Holloway (second team) landed the available berths, but Nebraska's Dave Humm and Stanford's Mike Boryla were strong in the voting.

berth than anyone else. In the closest race for any position, Frank Pomarico, another Notre Dame senior, won one of the guard spots, with Crosslin of Texas right behind. Tyler Lafauci of Louisiana State and Bon Boatwright of Oklahoma State were only a few votes back and made the second team.

Niehaus, the sophomore defensive tackle, is the third Notre Dame player on our first team. Under the new eligibility rule permitting freshmen to play varsity football at most of the nation's colleges, Steve made the Fighting Irish regular squad last year and was having a brilliant season when a knee injury sidelined him after four games. Expert opinion contends that Niehaus still could be the finest defensive lineman ever produced in the proud football history at South Bend.

Penn State placed two men on the first team, tight end Dan Natale on offensive and tackle Randy Crowder on defense. Ohio State placed Hicks at offensive tackle, and a big linebacker, Randy Gradishar, on the first team. Alabama's 6-6 defensive end John Croyle is the tallest man on either the first or second team, and the Crimson Tide is also represented by punter Greg Gantt. Nebraska, famous for its giant offensive linemen over the years, has another topflight performer in this tradition: 247-pound tackle Daryl White.

The Great Pickup Mystery.

When most people think about buying a pickup they usually think about just two makes—Ford and Chevy.

Which is precisely why we call INTERNATIONAL "The Other Pickup."

But just because we're not exactly a household word doesn't mean we don't make a great pickup truck. We do.

And if we could just get people to look at us they'd make some surprising discoveries.

First, we have a really smooth ride. And we handle beautifully. And you can select an economical six or any one of three powerful V-8's. Or choose between torsion bar or leaf spring suspension. Or have automatic transmission, power steering and power brakes.

And there's important safety features like a collapsible steering column, a fuel tank located outside the cab and an anti-skid system, available on two models.

The Other Pickup. At your International dealer.

Some people come away saying it's not The Other Pickup.

How the All-America Voting Went

Here's the way the FAMILY WEEKLY All-America college football team for 1973 developed, position-by-position:

Quarterback: The wishbone offense, which places a premium on a quarterback who can run as well as pass, is the most popular in American college football today. Mark Harmon of UCLA, who runs the Bruins' wishbone attack, and another versatile quarterback, Condredge Holloway of Tennessee, ran one-two for the quarterback job. Nebraska's David Humm, a fine passer, was only a few votes behind them. Harmon, who also is a fine passer but apparently was favored as the first-team quarterback because of his all-round versatility, was voted "best passer," with Mike Boryla of Stanford a close second. Humm was third in this category, only two votes behind Boryla.

Running back: Southern Cal's A. D. Davis won by a landslide, with Woody Green of Arizona State second and Charley Davis of Colorado slightly behind him. A. D. won by an even wider margin in the "best runner" voting.

Fullback: Roosevelt Leaks won over UCLA's James McAlister, with Michigan's Ed Shuttlesworth a strong challenger.

Tight end: In a close race that wasn't determined until the final ballots were counted, Dan Natale of Penn State edged J. V. Cain of Colorado. Henry Childs of Kansas State was another vote-getter.

Wide receiver: Lynn Swann of Southern Cal and Jack Alvarez of Kentucky won the top berths. Alvarez held off Danny Buggs of West Virginia and Air Force's Frank Murphy by only a few votes. Bob Revelle of Nebraska and Bill Buckley of Mississippi State had support.

Offensive tackle: Daryl White of Nebraska and John Hicks of Ohio State were front-runners all the way, finishing ahead of Buddy Brown of Alabama and Eddie Foster of Oklahoma. Charlie Getty of Penn State was fifth in the voting.

Offensive guards: Frank Pomarico of Notre Dame finished way ahead of the field. Texas' Don Crosslin nosed out both Tyler Lafauci of LSU and Bon Boatwright of Oklahoma State for the other first-team guard berth. John Houser of Arizona State and Bob Wolfe of Nebraska both had strong support.

Center: Bill Wyman of Texas and William McDonald of Colorado finished one-two and nosed out another contender, Mike McNeely of Syracuse.

Place-kicker: Ricky Townsend of Tennessee was first, nudging Rich Sanger of Nebraska; Fred Lima of Colorado was third.

Defensive ends: James Sims of Southern Cal and John Croyle of Alabama finished ahead of Mike Truax of Tulane and Van DeCree of Ohio State. Malcolm Minnick of Texas, Orrin Olsen of Brigham Young and Steve Manstedt of Nebraska all were in contention.

Defensive tackles: Steve Niehaus of Notre Dame, Randy Crowder of Penn State, Steve Cassidy of LSU and Benny Sivley of Auburn finished in that order. Robert Pulliam of Tennessee and Dave Gallagher of Michigan had strong support.

Middle guard: Oklahoma's Lucious Selmon was way ahead of Tony Cristiani of Miami (Fla.) in the first-team balloting; Paul Vellano of Maryland and Mike Phillips of Cornell both had backers. Selmon won the "best lineman" designation by 18 votes over Steve Niehaus, Notre Dame's defensive tackle. Others attracting votes were John Hicks of Ohio State and Daryl White of Nebraska, both offensive tackles, and Randy Gradishar, Ohio State linebacker.

Linebackers: Richard Wood of Southern Cal and Randy Gradishar of Ohio State had a wide margin over all other candidates. Glen Gaspard of Texas earned a spot on the first team by a few-vote margin over Warren Capone of LSU. Chuck Strickland of Alabama, Ed O'Neill of Penn State, and Michigan State's Ray Nester were next in the balloting.

Defensive backs: Mike Townsend of Notre Dame, the top choice, was well ahead of Artimus Parker of Southern Cal, who, in turn, was well ahead of Jimmy Allen of UCLA. Randy Rhino of Georgia Tech, who narrowly missed the first team, finished ahead of David Langner of Auburn. Paul Hayner of Michigan State and Harry Harrison of Mississippi were close behind.

Punter: Greg Gantt of Alabama made the first team by turning back Michigan State's Bill Simpson. In third place was Rusty Jackson of LSU.

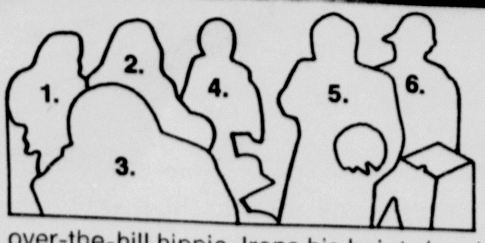
Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?



In this picture, everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. No way. He's Gerry Atric, over-the-hill hippie. Irons his hair twice daily. Cigarettes taste just as flat. Gimmick: Watching bowling pins "do their own thing, man." 2. Naomi Glowsoul. Gimmick: Uses so much body english that police have raided the place four times. 3. Nope. It's Angie "The Arm" Kugelman. Throws so hard three automatic pinsetting machines have quit. Smokes cigarettes so heavily filtered, he's like a man giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a rock. 4. Right. He just likes bowling, not gimmicks. Likes his cigarette honest and no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 5. Zooty Smith. Gimmick: Has worn same good luck clothes since he broke 125 in 1942. Smokes war surplus cigarettes and saves the tinfoil. 6. Whiz Kid Pringle. Developed math formula to bowl a perfect strike. Unfortunately releases ball on backswing.

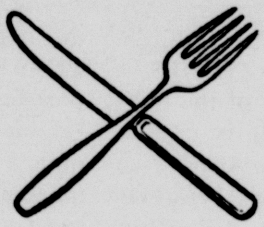
Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares turkey wings for the barbecue. "With prices what they are," says Marilyn, "turkey wings—which are available frozen in most supermarkets—are a good answer for many families. (Don't confuse them with chicken wings: Turkey wings are surprisingly meaty and filling.)"

Turkey Wings: A Dollar-Saving Idea for the Barbecue



MARILYN'S MENU

Celery Hearts and Olives
Cranberry Barbecued Turkey Wings*
Crunchy Cheese Tomatoes* Corn Fritters
Country-Garden Salad Bowl*
Fresh Peach Cobbler
Iced Tea Coffee Buttermilk

*Recipe given

CRANBERRY BARBECUED TURKEY WINGS

- 8 (about 6 lbs.) frozen turkey wings, thawed*
- 1½ qts. water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 onion, quartered
- 8 peppercorns
- ½ teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 carrot, quartered
- 1 stalk celery with leaves

Cranberry Barbecue Sauce:

- 1 can (1 lb.) cranberry sauce
- 1 cup ketchup or chili sauce
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup firmly packed light-brown sugar
- ¼ cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ¼ teaspoon chili powder

1. Place turkey wings in large 6-8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 1-1½ hours, or until tender.

2. Remove turkey wings from broth, wrap and refrigerate. Pour broth into container, cover and refrigerate. (Use for soup.)

3. Make Cranberry Barbecue Sauce: In 2-qt. saucepan combine all ingredients.

4. Bring mixture to boiling, stirring to break up cranberry sauce. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 10-15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

5. Place cooked turkey wings on grill, 4 inches from hot coals. Brush with Cranberry Barbecue Sauce.

6. Broil for about 15 minutes. Turn, brush with barbecue sauce and continue cooking for another 7-10 minutes, basting frequently. When wings are sizzling hot and crusty, serve. Makes 8 servings

CRUNCHY CHEESE TOMATOES

- 1 cup herb-seasoned stuffing mix
- 1 tablespoon freeze-dried chives
- ¼ cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- ⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 4 underripe or green tomatoes, halved

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. In medium bowl combine stuffing mix, chives, cheese and pepper. Add butter, toss to combine.

2. Line a shallow baking pan with foil. Spoon about 2 tablespoons crumb mixture on top of each tomato half.

3. Bake about 15 minutes, or until tomatoes are fork-tender and topping is golden brown. Makes 8 servings

COUNTRY-GARDEN SALAD BOWL

- 1 qt. washed, chilled, torn romaine lettuce leaves
- 1 qt. washed, chilled, torn iceberg lettuce leaves
- ½ qt. washed, chilled, torn chicory leaves
- ½ qt. washed, chilled, torn escarole leaves
- 1 cup thinly sliced radishes
- ½ cup thinly sliced green onions
- 2 cups thinly sliced cucumbers
- ½ cup coarsely grated carrot
- 1 packet (0.7 ozs.) cheese-garlic salad-dressing mix
- Tarragon vinegar
- Vegetable oil
- Water

1. Place greens in large plastic bags. Seal with twisters, refrigerate. Place radishes, green onions, cucumbers and carrot in separate small plastic bags. Seal with twisters, refrigerate.

2. At serving time toss greens together in large salad bowl. (If you do not have a bowl large enough, use two smaller salad bowls.)

3. Scatter radishes, green onions, cucumbers and carrot on top of greens. Cover and refrigerate if not serving immediately.

4. Make up salad dressing according to package directions with tarragon vinegar, vegetable oil and water.

5. Toss greens with salad dressing, using a fourth cup dressing at a time, just until leaves are coated. Serve immediately.

Makes 8 servings

Don't Let This Summer Destroy Your Complexion

The summer months may be a recreation season for you, but a near-disaster for your complexion. You enjoy a change of pace that ought to bring your face a relaxed, younger-looking expression. But instead you may end the three-month summer season looking decidedly older.

A single summer day can be a little like a whirlwind tour through all the climates of the world. You swim, then bake yourself on a sandy beach under a desert-like sun. You take windswept car rides. You step from sun-baked pavements, squinting against the glare, into chill air-conditioned restaurants or stores. A sudden summer storm leaves the air steaming and humid. Your complexion is exposed to a wide variety of environments, each with shocking suddenness.

Is it any wonder that your skin becomes dryer as the days pass? The dryer your skin, the more that dryness emphasizes little lines and wrinkles. And the older you look. But there's no need to despair. It is possible to enjoy the pleasures of summer and still maintain your youthful look.

Many younger-looking women, from Acapulco to Sydney, discovered that they can barely get through the summer happily without their beautiful secret, the unique fluid known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. This summer, share the secret, the lovely benefits of this world-renowned blend. Oil of Olay was created by beauty researchers to soften and silken a woman's complexion. The complexion-cherishing lotion contains a wealth of natural moisture, tropical moisturizing oils and other emollients.

Oil of Olay, available at drugstores, penetrates the important surface layer of the skin quickly, working with nature to ease away the dryness that can make you look older. The beauty blend helps maintain the oil-moisture balance, an essential element necessary for your complexion to look as young as possible. The skin-loving liquid also sets up an effective barrier to keep nature's own moisture from surrendering to sudden environmental changes.

You will know when your skin would welcome Oil of Olay. Whenever it feels dry or slightly tight or rough to the touch, your complexion is asking for, and needs, all the help it can get from the beauty blend.

No matter how often you soothe on cherishing Oil of Olay during the day, apply at bedtime, so it can work its wonders during nocturnal hours. And in the morning, as a moisty, nongreasy makeup base that lets cosmetics stay fresh for hours.

Summer Beauty Hints

Gently bathe away your sun-protective lotion after sunning. Pat your body almost dry, then soothe your still-damp skin with Oil of Olay wherever the sun's rays have reached you.

During these months when the need for Oil of Olay® is great, always carry a bottle with you . . . to the beach, on weekend trips, when going shopping.

JAMES BROLIN
"Libbers aren't direct"

James Brolin, costar of TV's "Marcus Welby M.D.," talks about Women's Lib: "Somebody asked me what I thought of a woman directing, and I said I think it's fantastic if she can put out the product; but in the meantime, she may lose a lot of her femininity and the thing that makes her attractive to men—which, in the end, is what many liberationists are after. They're after the attention of men, in a sense. That may be a generalization, but to tell you the truth, I think that Women's Lib is not a direct honesty. Sometimes, the Libbers have appeared very frivolous and expressed themselves in terms of not having their cigarettes lit, their doors opened and other things like that, but that's not what they're really about. It's just a way to get attention for other things underneath."

"Astute physicians have for years known empirically that there is a connection between nutrition and mood. Patients who complained of depression, anxiety, irritability, or just general confused thinking, frequently reveal that they are not getting enough of one or more basic nutrients. When these nutrients are restored to the diet, complaints of problematic moods vanish. . . . If a nutritional deficiency exists, the cells of the brain and the central and peripheral nervous systems may function below capacity. Thus, while it may not be literally true that we are what we eat, we are undeniably affected by food, in mental as well as physical ways." From "Depression, A Layman's Guide to the Symptoms and Cures," by Paul Gillette and Marie Hornbeck (Outerbridge and Lazard, $5.95).

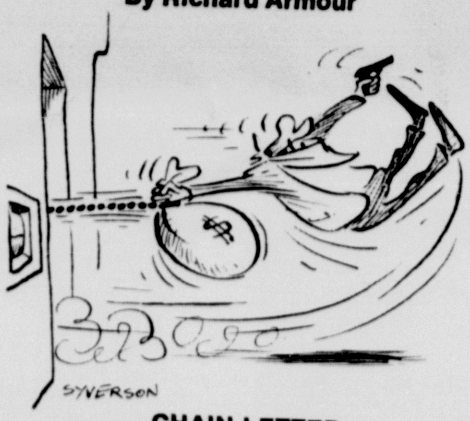
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



CHAIN LETTER

Our bank has pens its patrons use;
On tables they are found.
The pens cannot be carried off,
For they with chains are bound.

Some, filling out deposit slips,
I note reveal disgust
To think that chains should bind these pens
And show such lack of trust.

But my reaction's different,
As I am glad to tell:

I was showing my nine-year-old son the bridesmaid's dress his sister was going to wear in their cousin's wedding.

"What do I have to do in the wedding?" he asked. "Nothing," I replied. "We'll just sit together and watch." "Good," he sighed. "I thought I might have to be a pallbearer or something!"

Juliet Lowell, author of the all-time best-seller "Dear Sir," collects unintentionally humorous letters to and from people in all walks of life.

To Mr.

Yours,

Candidate for the "Worst Watergate Joke of the Year":

"What's the matter?" asked his swamp friends. "Why do you spurn us?"

—Dorothea Kent

from Russia

Andrei, Natasha and Pierre, played respectively by Vyacheslav Tihonov, Ludmila Savelyeva and Sergei Bondarchuk, are three central characters of Tolstoy's "War and Peace." The mammoth Russian film adaptation of the historical novel airs as a four-part presentation on ABC's Wide World of Entertainment, beginning Monday (11:30PM) and ending on Thursday, same time. The motion picture was filmed over a period of five years at a production cost of more than $100 million. The battle scenes were staged as exact re-enactments of actual battles, and the cast includes 30 of the foremost Soviet stage and screen stars.

Comedy stars Nancy Kulp and Roger Bowen will co-star on The Brian Keith Show (currently billed as "The Little People"), when the series returns in September on NBC, Fridays at 9:30PM. Miss Kulp will portray a wealthy widow, Mrs. Millard Gruber, owner of much of Hawaii, including Dr. Jamison's clinic property. Bowen will be an allergist, Dr. Spencer Chaffey, who rents space in the clinic. Both Dr. Spencer and Mrs. Gruber are graduates of the same college and have that in common, as they provide numerous comedic problems.

'CYCLE OF LIFE'

Fess Parker narrates and stars as himself in "Cycle of Life," a one-hour special which tells the story of life, including the miracle of birth, in terms of the horse, airing on NBC, Thursday at 8PM. Highlight of the special is a full birth sequence showing a foal being born. The scene took six weeks to shoot and the show took over four years to complete.

Den Weisen, rancher-showman-horse expert, spent more than four years filming "Cycle of Life."

The special opens with Parker showing the vital role of the horse in the development and life of this country. A new-born palomino colt then is singled out as it develops into a weanling, a yearling and a full-grown stallion—Perfecto. Perfecto is attracted to Jinx, a jet-black mare in an adjacent pasture. That night, the stallion kicks down the intervening gate and, by inference, mating takes place.

After 11 months with the broodmare band, Jinx prepares to foal by seeking seclusion in the mountains. However, she becomes lost in a snowstorm. A rescue takes place and Jinx gets ready to give birth. Now the cycle repeats itself as the foal, Misty, is shown growing up through her different stages.

COVER CLOSE-UP

ENTER . . . THE NEW AGENTS

The FBI returns for its ninth season on ABC this fall at a new time period (Sundays, 7:30-8:30PM), and with a new co-star, a new producer, a greater variety of stories, and an innovation—female FBI agents. However, the legions of fans who have demonstrated conclusively over the years that they like the show basically the way it is, have no cause for concern. The strengths of the show remain.

Efrem Zimbalist Jr, as polite but implacable Inspector Lewis Erskine, will continue to lead the pursuit of evildoers and bring them to justice. Executive producer Quinn Martin, who has guided the series since its inception continues to build the show on the solid basis of FBI policy and procedures, avoiding sensationalism and melodramatic cliches. Never a man to take the show's popularity and longevity for granted, he pays extra money for extra quality in what appears on the screen.

The show films almost entirely on location—not only the streets, homes, business establishments, beaches and harbors of the Los Angeles vicinity, but desert, mountain and wilderness areas. Instead of one guest star per episode, he seldom employs fewer than three or four. And he believes in the judicious introduction of fresh elements into the show. One such element this year is Shelly Novack, who as Agent Chris Daniels is Inspector Erskine's new investigative partner. (William Reynolds, who played Agent Tom Colby, Erskine's former sidekick, will be seen in episodes dealing with the Los Angeles area, where Colby is now agent in charge.)

Novack, a handsome young actor who played pro football as end for the San Diego Chargers, has enacted a remarkable variety of dramatic roles in television and motion pictures since turning in his uniform. He has appeared in such series as Mod Squad, Kung Fu, Streets of San Francsco, Banyon and Ironside. His motion pictures include "Airport," "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," "Kansas City Bomber" and the soon-to-be-released "Toke," in which he stars.

Anthony Spinner, the new "line producer" of the series, points out a trend toward greater variety of stories in the coming season. There will be less emphasis on the crimes of bank robbery and kidnapping, involving a straight "trackdown." More episodes will deal with the FBI's ongoing war against organized crime. Some stories will be mysteries, in that the viewer, unlike heretofore, will not see the crime committed, but must search along with Inspector Erskine for the vital clues. The series takes note of the policy, initiated by the FBI last year, of employing women as FBI agents. Several episodes will feature distaff sleuths. In one episode a woman will be seen taking the rigorous FBI training, including physical conditoning and pistol practice, along with the men.

Over the years, the man who symbolizes to most people the FBI agent is the show's star, Efrem Zimbalist Jr. It's not a bad image to have. In a discussion with anyone who knows him, it's a sure bet that the vocally underlined word "gentleman" will crop up. Easy and friendly with everyone from grips to senators, he exudes a quality almost of old-fashioned courtliness. It can be ascribed partly to his upbringing in the cultural atmosphere of his parents, concert violinist and conductor Efrem Zimbalist and the late opera star Alma Gluck. The quality no doubt is due also to his broad philosophical perspective, gained through a lifelong study of the thought and ideals of the Far East, as well as the Western world.

Without taking himself too seriously, he is deeply conscious of his responsibility of portraying an agent of the FBI, an organization he wholeheartedly respects. A few years ago, at an annual FBI gathering in Washington, D.C., he received a standing ovation from an audience of FBI agents, bureau employees and their families. "I was overwhelmed and deeply moved," he said. "Receiving the warm approval from people whom I admire so deeply was an unforgettable experience. I felt humble, grateful and fulfilled—not as an actor, but an American."

Revson captures Cal 500 pole as Bobby 'blows' bid

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — The bad luck which haunted Bobby Unser last year during qualifying for the third California 500 made its reappearance Saturday at Ontario Motor Speedway.

After two attempts at winning the pole position for the fourth running of the Cal 500 on Sept. 2, the driver of the No. 8 Olsonite Eagle who holds the one and four-lap record at OMS retired to the garages late Saturday afternoon knowing he'll have to start the 500-mile race somewhere beyond the sixth row.

Twice, on the first of two qualifying laps, he came through Turn Four and burned a piston down the home straightaway.

His 199.867 gave him a 200.089 average for the two laps and the pole position.

Also locked into the front row when Saturday's time trials were completed were Jerry Grant, who clocked a 198.873 two-lap average in his No. 48 Olsonite Eagle, and Gordon Johncock, who flashed a 197.542 average.

But those positions were the only secured positions following Saturday's trials.

The rest of the field will be decided today when the Twin 100 qualifying races begin at 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Since Revson and Grant have decided not to run in today's qualifying races, which was their option since winning a front row spot, Johncock and fourth-fastest qualifier Johnny Rutherford will be sitting on the pole positions in today's two 100-mile sprint races.

Rutherford, the teammate of Revson in the Team McLaren-Offys, recorded a 197.109 average in his two qualifying laps.

But even though Revson captured the coveted pole position, the real story of the day was the "Bobby Unser Story."

Bobby was one of the big favorites, if not the biggest, to win the pole this year in his Eagle-Offy.

Going into the day's qualifying session, Bobby held the fastest speed of the week of 196.014 miles per hour. But he thrilled the crowd earlier Saturday morning during the one and a half hour practice session with consecutive laps of 199.305 and 200.848 miles an hour.

And so when the qualifying began, all eyes were on the older of the two racing Unser brothers.

He was to be the 24th driver to pull to the qualifying line, which came a little after 12:30 p.m.

But by that time Revson had established the pace with his 200-plus average, so Bobby had to do better to win the pole.

As it turned out, he'll have to try and qualify this morning in the first three hours set aside for that purpose.

If he does qualify, it was announced after the track had closed down, Bobby and Grant will not compete in the 100-mile races.

That means Bobby must qualify this morning, or be forced to run in the races in order to grab a position for the 500-mile race.

If he does qualify, he must reach a speed of at least 184.162 miles per hour—preferably much better.

That would move him into the top 27 positions, but there would still be a chance of him getting bumped from that group by a faster qualifier should he only average in the 180's.

As for Revson, he'll take the day off.

Since he won't be racing today, he'll have some free time to do what he wishes. So what will he do on the Sunday afternoon?

"I'll be here to watch the races," he firmly stated. "I'll be able to see the races from a different perspective—from the stands. And I might even learn something."

"I expected to do 200 miles an hour, but I thought Bobby would be quicker," he said. "I thought I was lucky to be on the front row."

Immediately after turning his 200.089 qualifying speed, Peter's first words were, "That's good." What an understatement. It was the fastest average for a pole position in the history of the sport.

Meanwhile, the great experiment will be staged at the $25.5 million facility—notably called the Twin 100's.

At total of 27 cars qualified Saturday with another 10 expected to try again this morning.

Bobby wasn't the only driver who had problems Saturday during qualifying.

The most notable of the others was David Hobbs, who was trying to qualify early so he could head back to Elkhart Lake, Wis. to compete in today's Can-Am race.

David was scheduled to qualify along with Mark Donohue Friday, so both could compete in the qualifications there today.

But the Britisher blew an engine Friday and had to settle for qualifying Saturday. But again he failed.

After spending all day trying to find an engine for his No. 74 Carling Black Label McLaren-Offy, Hobbs' crew finally got him on the pit apron for the last hour of qualifying.

During that hour, he tried to qualify twice—the first time being flagged off the course by his crew because he wasn't going fast enough to jump into the 18th position or better.

His first attempt was 184.843 miles per hour for one lap before being flagged off. He tried again with only 10 minutes left in the qualifying session and this time took the checkered flag. But he only averaged 185.414—making him the 27th qualifier and the 26th fastest time.

So now he is in a predicament.

If two cars run faster than his average today, he'll have to compete in the qualifying races in order to be eligible for a spot in the 500-miler. But he also has the race in Elkhart Lake, where he will start from the back of the pack should he race there.

He said he would think about it tonight—whether to go or stay.

It was just that kind of day at OMS.

Predicts 'turning point'

Trevino tops Nicklaus

CARY, N.C. (UPI) —Lee Trevino proved himself an ironic prophet and unloaded an eagle and three birdies against a sour-putting Jack Nicklaus in a battle of titans Saturday, taking an overwhelming 4 and 3 victory in the second round of the $150,000 U.S. Professional Match Play Championship.

Trevino's stunning win came in a storm of upsets that swept U.S. Open Champion Johnny Miller and Masters Champion Tommy Aaron out of the rich event.

Tom Weiskopf, the game's newest superstar with five victories in his last 10 tournaments, defeated J.C. Snead 4 and 3. Weiskopf brushed off Allen Miller 3 and 2 in the first round, while Snead had ousted Jerry Heard 1 up after a 22-hole marathon.

After he squeezed past Dan Sikes 1-up in the first round earlier in the day, Trevino said, "I shot about par this morning, and that's not good enough to beat Jack. I might last through about the 15th hole this afternoon."

It was, in fact, the 15th hole where the match was won. But Trevino, who quickly shook off his early pessimism, was the winner.

"I didn't know it was going to be me," shrugged the smiling Super Mex, who was equipped with a two-day-old set of "store line" clubs.

"He didn't play well," Trevino said of his awesome opponent. "I think Jack is the greatest player who ever put cleats on, but I can beat anyone on any given day.

"I knew there was only going to be one winner and I could be it. But he's beaten me a lot more times than I've beaten him."

John Schroeder, an obscure 27-year-old plagued by tendonitis in his thumb for the past year, eliminated little Buddy Ailin 5 and 4 in the second round after tripping Grier Jones 1-up in the first round. Allin, slumping since his runaway 23-under-par win in the Florida Citrus Open last March, had dispatched Aaron 1up in the first round.

Veteran DeWitt Weaver, winner of the 1971 match play title in its inaugural year, loomed into contention with a 2 and 1 second round victory over surprising Artie McNickle, who shocked Johnny Miller 2 and 1 in the morning round.

Trevino will meet Schroeder and Weaver goes against Weiskopf in the semi-finals of the match play today over the 6,786-yard, par 71 MacGregor Downs Country Club course.

Trevino and Weiskopf were the only two of the eight players who prequalified for the match play to survive the first two rounds.

The opponents for the exempt players were the eight leaders at the end of the second round of the $100,000 L&M Open, the lesser half of professional golf's only doubleheader.

When Saturday's third round of the L&M got underway, six players shared the lead. The six had been knocked out of a playoff for the eighth and final match play spot by anonymous Joe Porter, who fell 2-up to Nicklaus in the first round after leading the superstar by as many as three holes on the front nine.

Floridian Bert Greene fired a sizzling four-under-par 67 for a 54-hole total of 208,five under par, to take the third round lead in the L&M, which is played simultaneously with the match play over the same course.

Greene held a slim one-stroke margin over Bob Smith, who shot a 69 Saturday. Two strokes behind Greene's pace were former PGA champion Dave Stockton and Lanny Wadkins, bitterly disappointed when he lost in the playoff to Porter and failed to make the match play.

A group of four—Rik Massengale. Julius Boros, George Knudson and Dwight Nevil— were bunched at 211, two under par and three strokes behind Greene.

For his trouble, Nicklaus pocketed a $7,000 check, putting him at $252,424 on the year, still behind leading money winner Bruce Crampton, who's not competing this week. It also hiked Nicklaus' winnings for his personal career to $1,956,129.

Trevino said the turning point in his match against Nicklaus came on the par three eighth hole.

"The turning point was when he three-putted the eighth, after he had missed a birdie putt on the seventh," Trevino said. "When he three putted eight and I eagled nine, it had to take something out of him."

Trevino reeled off birdies on the first and fourth holes to take a two-hole advantage. They both birdied the par-five fifth hole and then Trevino gained another hole when Nicklaus bogeyed No. 8.

Ryan gets 300 as Angels lose

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — Nolan Ryan continues to be one of baseball's great throwers.

If the slender Texan ever masters control of his blinding fastball and super curve and becomes a pitcher instead of a thrower, he will be magnificent.

The fireballing right-hander didn't waste any time getting to the 300 mark in strikeouts Saturday night at Anaheim Stadium. But he lost the ball game and his record dropped to 14-16.

Despite allowing only five hits in 8 2-3 innings, Ryan left the game in the ninth trailing 3-0. The Boston Red Sox went on to score an unearned run and win, 4-0.

Ryan's scoresheet showed three walks, a wild pitch, and a hit batter. He threw 144 pitches, 93 strikes and 51 balls.

Needing four more strikeouts to become only the third pitcher in baseball history to fan 300 or more in consecutive seasons, Ryan came out throwing bullets. He struck out five of the first six Bosox batters he faced.

To the delight of the Angels and their fans, Carlton Fisk was Number 300. The Boston catcher has been involved in highly-publicized rhubarbs with the Halos and other clubs. Friday night he singled twice and batted in two of the three runs in a 3-2 Boston win.

But after his great start, Ryan seemed to lose something because the Red Sox began hitting shots off him. He fanned only three more the rest of the way to give him eight for the game and 304 for the season.

The Red Sox broke a scoreless tie in the third inning, Ryan issued a leadoff walk to Doug Griffin. Cecil Cooper and Dwight Evans hit the ball hard but within reach of Leroy Stanton in right field for two outs. But Rick Miller, the rookie centerfielder, lashed a liner into the right field corner for a triple.

Ryan had struck out the side in the second inning. One of his victims was Orlando Cepeda who had his string of being on base nine straight times against Angel pitching snapped.

The two 300-plus seasons tie the Angel fireballer with Rube Waddell and Sandy Koufax. Waddell did it for the Philadelphia Athletics in 1903 and 1904 with 301 and 349. Koufax did it for the Dodgers in 1965 and 1966 with 382 and 317. Koufax is the only hurler to ever have three 300-plus strikeout seasons. In 1963 the Dodger fanned 306.

Ryan needs 79 in his nine remaining starts to beat Koufax' major league record of 382 in one season.

ANGEL NOTES. . .Bill Singer (16-10) faces Luis Tiant (15-10) in tonight's 6 p.m. series finale.

Cepeda now has 1334 career runs batted in and ranks 29th all-time behind Duke Snider of the Dodgers.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Los Angeles Dodgers took advantage of a three-base throwing error by pitcher Mac Scarce and went on to score two 12th inning runs Saturday night and defeat the Philadelphia Phillies, 6-4.

Lee Lacy opened the 12th with a bouncer back to the mound but went all the way to third when Scarce threw the ball into rightfield. After an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Ken McMullen, Bill Buckner bounced a single into rightfield to score Lacy and send McMullen to third. Joe Ferguson, who drove in the first three Dodger runs with a pair of homers, brought in McMullen with a sacrifice fly.

Los Angeles' victory enabled it to remain in first place in the National League West, four games ahead of Cincinnati.

The Dodgers tied it in the ninth after pitcher Ken Brett served up walks to Willie Crawford and Ron Cey. Pinch-hitter Von Joshua singled to center off reliever George Culver to tie the contest at 4-4.

Bob Boone's sacrifice fly had given Philadelphia a 4-3 lead in the eighth inning. Willie Montanez opened the inning with a single and took third base on Bill Robinson's one out double. Tommy Hutton pinch-ran for Montanez and, after Mike Schmidt was intentionally walked, Boone delivered his sacrifice fly scoring Hutton.

Bill Grabarkewitz opened the game with his first home run of the season and the Phillies took a 3-0 lead with two runs in the second. Bill Robinson singled and Schmidt walked, both moved up on an infield out and both scored on Craig Robinson's single.

Joe Ferguson hit a pair of home runs to account for the Dodgers first three runs. The rookie catcher hit his 19th after a Willie Davis double in the sixth inning and tied the game 3-3 with a solo shot in the eighth.

Pete Richert, the third of four Dodger pitchers, picked up the victory, his third in four decisions. Scarce, 0-5, was the loser after coming on in relief in the 10th inning.

A trillion-to-one odds—but there aren't any takers

NEW YORK (UPI) — A "one in a trillion odds" computer crash knocked out the entire 112 branches of the Off-Track Betting Corporation for three hours Saturday and cost this city some $25,000 in net revenue.

"The odds for this happening are astronomical," said OTB spokesman Irving Rudd. "Its something like a trillion to one. But it happened."

OTB offices in the five boroughs of New York were taking bets on the Saratoga, Roosevelt and Monticello Raceways when the power went out at 11:23 a.m. At 2:31 p.m. power was restored and betting resumed.

In a normal Saturday betting, OTB takes in a handle of about $2.4 million, Rudd said. However he estimated Saturday's handle would be about $500,000 less—and the city's take about $25,000 less than usual.

The OTB computers have been operating for 18 months, and Rudd said this was the first problem the company ever had with the computers.

White Sox' Dick Allen postpones comeback

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dick Allen, the White Sox first baseman who has been wearing a $125,000 price tag, called it quits for the remainder of the season Saturday but vowed he would return next year "and lead Chicago to the American League pennant."

The 31-year old controversial slugger, who broke his right leg on June 28 in a collision with California's Mike Epstein, reportedly was going to try and come back following an earlier return but White Sox officials decided not to "risk a permanent injury."

Allen, who came to the White Sox from the Los Angeles Dodgers at the beginning of the 1972 season, had been immersed in controversy because of his failure to report to spring training.

Allen tried to come back in late July but "continued pain made it apparent that I was just kidding myself," Allen reported.

Allen, who came to the pressbox for Saturday's game between the White Sox and the Detroit Tigers said: "If the club had been a game and a half out of the lead or in first place I would have considered the designated hitter role. After all I'm here to give whatever help I can. But trainer Charlie Saad and manager Chuck Tanner decided that the best thing would be to forget about the season and get ready for the next campaign. I'm going to stick around Chicago and see if I can help some of the younger players. I'll worry about the winter after that. I've got some excersises to do and I want to get my leg in shape. After I came back last month it was a case of terrific pain and I after returned it would not heal properly. I'm not particularly pleased with being a designated hitter, that's the way I am. However, when it became apparent that the club was falling farther and farther behind it no longer became a necessity for me to return to the lineup. The doctor said I wouldn't do myself any good by playing and hoping it would heal. If I can't give 100 per cent I'd rather not play."

Allen, who hit 33 homers last year, was hitting .316 with 16 homers and 41 RBIs. At the time of his injury the White Sox were tied for first place in the Western Division of the American League. Before Saturday's game with the Tigers Chicago was 16 games behind first place Oakland.

Arabs, Israelis mingle as Games end

MOSCOW (UPI) —Arab athletes danced and mingled with Israelis at ceremonies closing the seven World University Games tonight after some Soviet spectators had whistled and jeered at the Israelis.

The unusual encounter between Arabs and Israelis occurred before 50,000 spectators at Lenin Stadium as the hour-long ceremonies drew to a close.

Athletes of varius nations ran to the center of the field and began dancing conga-line fashion, and the Israelis danced along with athletes from Kuwait.

"They seemed a little nervous at first, but it was all so fast, it just happened," Israeli basketball center Jacob Aizner said afterward . "It was great."

Leaving the stadium, the Israelis ran into a group of Soviet Jews and a group of Egyptian athletes. They chatted briefly with the Egyptians, members of each group pointing at the others lapel buttons.

After a few nervous smiles on both sides, the Israelis and Egyptians went their separate ways.

"Maybe there's still hope," Aizner said. "We're certainly willing, but they do seem a little nervous."

The scattered jeering and whistling from Soviet spectators —much more subdued than the chorus of booing that erupted during opening ceremonies 10 days ago —occurred when the Israeli team walked on the field along with athletes of 60 other countries.

About 50,000 persons turned out for the closing ceremony, an extravaganza of marching bands and gymnastic exercises that went on in a light rain. Contrary to practice at the opening ceremony, teams marched onto the field tonight without being introduced individually. Many of the 4,000 participants were absent, apparently having already left Moscow for home.

The jeering of the Israelis has recurred throughout the Games, and once Soviet Jews who turned out to cheer them were attacked by other spectators. Despite such incidents, two officials of the U.S. delegation to the Games predicted today the Soviets would be awarded the 1980 Olympics.

U.S. wins on West's 10-foot birdie putt

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Marty West sank a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole Saturday to win a pressure match over Britain's Michael King and gave the United States its 21st Walker Cup victory over the British.

The two-up triumph by West, of Bethesda, Md., blunted a furious comeback effort by the British team. At one point the visitors were leading all eight singles matches after falling four points behind on the strength of America's doubles showing.

In other singles competition, Mark Pfeil of the United States scored a one-up triumph over Howard Clark, Dan Edwards topped Trevor Homer of Britain 2 and 1 and U.S. Amateur champion Marvin "Vinny" Giles sank a 12-foot downhill putt on the 18th green to tie Charles Green and Gary Koch tied Peter Heges.

In all, the United States outscored Britain 14-10 in the two day competition on the basis of one point for winning a match and one-half point for a tie.

"How sweet it is," West said after his performance assured the U.S. victory. "It's just great. We weren't about to let them take the cup back."

West, 25, said there was "a lot of pressure both ways" in his key match with King. "I got some good breaks and it just worked out."

The U.S., now 21-2-1 in the series, appeared doomed to its second straight loss to the British midway through the singles play. West, at the time, trailed King by three holes and all eight Americans were trailing in their matches.

But West said he "started putting the ball in the hole" with a birdie putt on the eighth hole. He stormed back into contention with two wins in the next three holes and never looked back.

"That was the biggest putt I ever had," Giles said. "I'll tell you, I never had one I wanted as bad. The last time I looked at the scoreboard we were all down.

"On the 17th I started to walk toward the scoreboard, then I consciously turned away," Giles said. "I did not want to see it."

Of the British leaders, only John Davies, Hugh Stuart and Willie Milne held out. Davies stopped Dick Siderowf, 2 and 1, Stuart topped Jim Ellis, 5 and 4, and Milne took Mike Killian, 2 and 1.

Betsy shares lead with Mary Mills

DENVER (UPI) —Veteran Betsy Rawls turned to a scrambling wedge and putting game Saturday for a one-underpar 70 and moved into a tie with opening round leader Mary Mills for the top spot after two rounds of the $30,000 National Jewish Hospital Open.

Miss Mills, who had a competitive-course record 67 in the first round, battled the mid-90 degree temperatures for a two-over 73 in the second round. She and Mrs. Rawls stood at two-under 140.

Only five subpar rounds were shot over the 6,330-yard Green Gables Country Club course Saturday. Sandra Palmer fired a 69 for day honors and was tied with tiny Judy Rankin, who had her second even par round, and Kathy Dugan for third at 142.

Other subpar rounds of one-under 70 were turned in by Miss Rawls, Kathy Martin, Sandra Post, who was tied for sixth overall at 143 with Joyce Kazmierski, and Betty Burfeindt.

Miss Burfeindt was tied with Jane Blalock, Kathy Ahern and Kathy Whitworth. Miss Blalock and Miss Ahern soared to 74s in the second round after being tied for second on the opening day with 70s.

Miss Rawls, a 23-year veteran of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour who has 53 tournament wins, collected nine one putts Saturday including a 16-footer from two feet off the green on the

Ex-Leo Jim Beal seeks consistency

SARASOTA, Fla. — Jim Beal, two-time La Verne College all-american has made a successful transition from amateur to professional baseball. However, success is a difficult thing to maintain consistently in the pro ranks as Jim explains.

"You have to go out there everyday in pro ball, some days you'll sizzle and the next day you may lose it completely," he said. "Consistency is the name of the game in pro ball, you have to go out there every game and do the best job you can whether you're up or down, and believe me there are a lot of ups and downs in this sport."

In his two years at La Verne, Beal hit .435 and .415. The speedy outfielder stole 45 bases in 1972 and 39 in his senior year.

Drafted and signed by the St. Louis Cardinals, he was assigned to play with the Sarasota team, the Cardinal entry in the Gulf Coast League in Florida.

The GCL is a rookie league, designed to get newcomers in the pro ranks acclaimated to the pressures of big time baseball. Stressing fundamentals, the league strives to ready young players for the grueling climb up the baseball ladder to the major leagues.

Jim remained in the GCL for two months compiling impressive statisties: a .330 batting average, including four triples and two doubles, 15 rbi's, 15 stolen bases, and an errorless record as the Cardinals right fielder. Last week, Jim, impressive statistics and all, was reassigned to the St. Petersburg Cardinals, St. Louis's team in the class A Florida State League.

A California boy, Beal finds Florida's weather an unpredictable factor affecting his play.

"Everyday it's a different thing, sometimes the grounds are real wet because it just poured down rain for a half hour, and the next day you'll go out there and it will be hot, sticky, and humid, and the bugs will be eating you alive," he explained. "It's just not as consistent as California weather, and of course the humidity will really take it out of you during the course of a ball game."

Beal sees St. Louis's strong coaching staff as a definite asset, especially the manager, former major league star, Ken Boyer.

"Kenny Boyer, who played 18 years in the big leagues really knows his baseball, rashtuif yosl rg en heetrv e te knows his hitting, and can really teach you some fine points of the game that I'm sure the high school players never heard of and after four years of college ball I'm surprised most of the things he comes up with are really valid."

Jim admires the entire St. Louis coaching staff and assures us they are the most respected staff in the league.

However, fan support and publicity are ares where improvements are needed, according to Jim.

"Ovrall the only thing that is a setback from what I'm used to is fan support, we get very small crowds as compared to attendance at La Verne games. Also I'm used to a little better publicity, the newspaper articles are fair but they don't make a real big thing out of baseball."

Ben Hines, La Verne College baseball coach, received high praise from Jim for coaching that has stood up in the professional ranks.

"The experience I gained at La Verne is just invaluable," he said. The little things I learned from Coach Hines, how to act on the field, how to play the game with enthusiasm, and how to give 100 per cent for the full nine innings of a ball game. I can't say enough about the years I spent at La Verne and all the things I learned from Coach Hines."

After only two months in professional baseball, Jim Beal has already taken one step up the baseball ladder. Who knows where that climb will end?

Donohue wins pole for Can-Am event

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UPI) —Mark Donohue won the pole position for the Road America Can-Am race Sunday with a record qualifying speed of 122.534 miles per hour saturday.

Donohue, the favorite to make Sunday's back-to-back 100 milers on the four-mile, twisting Road America course, had flown here Friday night from California after qualifying for next week's Ontario 500 with a speed of 194 m.p.h.

Donohue's speed here beat the old mark of 115.605 m.p.h. set by Denis Hulme a year ago. Donohue drives a Roger Penske turbocharged Porsche Audi in the Can-Am series.

Joining him in the front row Sunday will be Jody Scheckter of South Africa. Defending CanAm champ George Follmer of Arcadia, Calif., and Charlie Kemp of Atlanta will line up in the second row.

A total of 24 cars will line up for the Can-Am race. Veteran David Hobbs of England was not able to qualify because he was also qualifying at Ontario, but he will get a spot in the last row anyway, track officials said.

The winner of the first 100-mile sprint will win $5,000 and the pole position in the second 100-miler. The overall winner will get $10,000.

The first payoff of the $91,000 weekend of racing went to Bill Brack of Toronto, Ont., who won $1,500 for taking the 80-mile Formula B race Saturday. He drove his Swandowne Lotus at an average speed of 101.738 m.p.h. to beat Bertil Roos of Sweden by six and a half seconds.

Mike Hall of Chicago finished third, Tom Klauser of Evanston, Ill., fourth and Mike Eyerly of Salem, Ore., fifth. Roos, Hall and Klauser all drove Brabhams and Eyerly was in a March-Ford.

Last week, Thomas charged into the stands to attack fans who were throwing bottles at him in Buffalo's new Rich Stadium. He was restrained by teammates.

Taiwan wins L.L. title

Another no-hitter

WILIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) —Heavily favored Tainan City, Taiwan, lived up to expectations Saturday when Huang Ching-Hui hurled his second straight no-hitter and Nationalist Chinese batters mounted a nine-hit attack to beat Tucson, Ariz., 12-0, to win the Little League World Series.

A crowd of 32,000 saw Taiwan win its third straight championship and fourth in five years.

Huang Ching-Hui, who struck out 14 and walked only one, pitched a perfect game four days earlier in an 18-0 victory over Bitburg AFB, West Germany. Another batter reached base on an error.

In three series games, the opposition failed to get a hit off two Chinese pitchers. Kuo Wer-Li notched a no-hiter in a 27-0 shellacking of Tampa, Fla., Thursday.

Chen Pai-Shen went four for four in the final game to give him a new series record of 11 hits over three games. After three scoreless innings, he got the Chinese attack rolling with a lead-off homerun against starter and loser Mike Fimbers in the fourth.

Two more runs crossed the plate on singles by Huang Ching-Hui and Wang Ching-Chung, a walk and two passed balls.

Fimbers was replaced by Mike Martinez in the fifth, and the Chinese immediately greeted him with a five-run outburst, including a three-run homer by Huang Ching-Hi and a solo blast by Kuo Wen-Li.

Taiwan added four more in the final stanza behind back-to-back doubles by Lu Ming Kwang and Huang Ming-Liang and Chen Pai-Shen's fourth hit of the game.

The only Tucson batters to reach base were Tony Bravo, who walked in the first inning and Martinez, who got aboard on an error in the fourth. Martinez was thrown out trying to steal.

Among six records set by the Chinese in the World Series was the team's total of 12 home runs in three games.

Kuhn allows 16 teams to print playoff ducats

NEW YORK UPI) — A record 16 clubs attending a two-hour meeting this week received permission from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn to print tickets for the October playoffs.

The clubs were cautioned, however, not to enter a world series printing program because of the close races in each of the four divisions.

The best-of-five league playoffs will start Saturday, Oct. 6, six days after the close of the regular season. The American League championship series will open in the home park of the eastern division winner and the western division winner will host the National League playoffs. All games will be played in daylight.

The World Series opens in the American League Champion's Park on Saturday, Oct. 13, with Monday, Oct. 15, and Friday, Oct. 19, open dates for travel. Except for Saturday and Sunday games, all series action will be under the lights unless the Chicago Cubs win in the National League. Wrigley Field is without lights.

The 16 clubs include Los Angeles, Cincinnati, San Francisco, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Montreal, Philadelphia and New York in the National League and Oakland, Kansas City, Baltimore, Detroit, Boston, New York and Milwaukee in the American.

Kuhn said there will be no rise in ticket prices for the playoffs or series. Box seats for the playoffs will go for $7 and reserve seats for $5.

Forest Hills boasts top $$, best field

By United Press International

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — For years, the U.S. Open Tennis Championship has played second fiddle to Wimbledon in terms of glamor, but the 1973 renewal must be regarded as the world's No. 1 tournament because it boasts the best field assembled during the year and offers a staggering $227,200 in prize money.

Wimbledon, for the second successive year, had its men's field decimated because of off-court wrangling. More than 70 of the world's leading players voted to keep away this year after Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic had his entry rejected when he failed to represent his country in Davis Cup play.

Ever since the game went open in 1968, Forest Hills has offered more money than any of the three other maior events, but this time there is the added innovation of the women playing for similar singles stakes as the men—a $95,000 pot with $25,000 going

Everything points to a bumper run when Ilie Nastase of Romania strikes his first ball August 29 in defense of his men's title. He has been seeded to meet Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C. in the final.

Smith and Nastase were seeded joint No. 1 despite the fact the big American is 4-1 against the Romanian in their head-to-head duels. His most recent victory came in last weekend'se interzone · Davis Cup semifinals at Alamo, Calif. when he beat Nastase in five sets to complete a 4-1 American victory.

After the cup match, Smith said: "I think Nastase is a better natural player than I am but I concentrate better on the big occasion."

Smith's superior concentration got him off the hook against Nastase in the 1972 Wimbledon final and in a key Davis Cup challenge round match in Romania and again last week. His lone loss came in the finale of the ILTF masters tourney at Barcelona last December when he was "too tired" to concentrate.

Smith has been off form since May when he beat Arthur Ashe to win the WCT championship title in the nationally televised Dallas final—he was unable to defend his Wimbledon crown because of the player boycott—but he put it together in the Davis Cup and must be favored to win the title for the third time. His previous victories came in 1966 and 1971.

Nastase won the Italian and French titles on clay before his Wimbledon bid was ended by Alex Mayer of Wayne, N.J., allowing Czechoslovak Jan Kodes, seeded sixth here, to walk off with the watered down all England title.

Should either Smith or Nastase falter, Arthur Ashe of Miami, Fla., and Australia's Rod Laver are next in line according to the seeding list. Smith, in the top half of the draw, should meet Ashe in the semis while the bottom half should bring together Laver and Nastase.

Barring their way in the quarter-finals will be Kodes and Manuel Orantes of Spain in the top half and Ken Rosewall of Australia and Holland's Tom Okker in the bottom.

With the exception of Orantes, all the other top seven seeds have appeared in the final. Laver scored victories in 1962 and 1969—his grand slam years—Rosewall was successful in 1956 and 1970, while Ashe won the first open in 1968. Okker lost to Ashe in '68, while Kodes was beaten by Smith in '71.

Hambletonian field swells to 18 entries

DU QUOIN, ILL. (UPI) — A field which may reach 28 because of uncertainty over condition of an outstanding entry will be shaped up Sunday for next week's 48th renewal of the Hambletonian Classic for three-year old trotters.

If the field does reach 18—and Du Quoin State Fair president William R. (Bill) Hayes II said he regards that as a distinct possibility—the purse would swell to $147,700—$219 above the Hambletonian record established in 1960 when 19 trotters answered the call.

The deadline for entries will be 10 a.m. (CDT) Sunday and will be followed immediately by the drawing for post positions.

The first heat of the "Kentucky Derby of Harness Racing" is scheduled to go at 2:05 p.m. (CDT) Wednesday on the fast non-betting track where Super Bowl romped to a Hambletonian and world' record in 1:56.2 a year ago.

So glittering were the credentials of Super Bowl, a son of Star's Pride, the champion Hambo winner Sire with eight, that only seven trotters were entered in 1972, the slimmest field in 40 years.

With no horse of Super Bowl's stature around this year, more owners are expected to plunk down the final $2,000 entry fee for a chance at the most cherished jewel in trotting's triple crown.

The fact that Knightly Way, another Star's Pride progeny, suffered a shoulder injury last week when he became aroused by a filly in an adjoining stall won't hurt the size of the field.

Knightly Way, owned by C.F. Gaines and trained and driven by John Simpson Jr., a Hambo winner with Timothy T. in 1970, was scratched in the review futurity at Springfield, Ill., because of the injury. He was shipped to Du Quoin and is expected to contend for the Hambletonian Crown. He has eight wins and a second in nine starts this season.

Recreation

The last crowning took place last Wednesday evening. University Mazda defeated the Athenas Health Spa, 16-10, and with the win, the championship of the Florida Slo-Pitch League. The game was played at Palomares Park.

The game concluded the long spring and summer Pomona Park and Recreation Departments' adult softball program. There were eight leagues, including 68 teams, with three fast pitch circuits and five of the slo-pitch variety.

University Mazda was in the same position three weeks ago that California League titlest Northside Teen Post found themselves. They had to beat Athenas three times and also find time to knock off a tough Brockway Glass outift.

Coach Bob Dixon's nine defeated in order Athenas, 14-8 Brockway, 15-5 Athenas, 16-9 and final game. Early in the year they lost, 9-8, to Sam Samply's Spa squad.

Tuesday evening, the Bar-Nut Mavricks, piloted by Jerry Snow, edged Munger's Oldtimers, 10-9, for the Grapefruit slo-pitch title. The Mavricks scored two runs in the bottom of the seventh to gain the vistory.

Bar-Nut won the leagu's first half and they were one of five squads to tie for the top spot in the second round. Here, however, Munger's prevailed to set up the final contest.

Valley Sheet Metal

Valley Sheet Metal took the Cactus League title, winning both halves and posting an overall mark of 15-3. They did have to survive a three-way tie for the second round.

Coach Terry Passoth's club defeated Bethel Baptist, 17-13, in the three-way play-off. Bethel had first eliminated Harvey Wallbangers, 16-4.

Underground Electric took advantage of the two-half system when they knocked off first round winner LARC, 16-14, to capture the Hawaiian League. Both squads had identical overall records of 15-3.

The fast pitch leagues had few surprises. The Flyers won the American title with a 13-1 mark. They edged the Pomona Kings, 12-2, and African Palace, 10-4. The other five teams were far behind.

Jim Cerda's Equipment won the tight National loop with a 10-4 mark. Five games separated to top from the bottom in this race. Ewart's was second at 9-5.

Tri-County P.D.C.A. won the Coast League titel behind the strong pitching of Sal Martinez. They posted a mark of 12-3, while second place Pomona First Church of God came in at 11-4.

Winter softball/football

Teams are now registering for the Pomona-Ontario winter softball leagues. The two cities co-sponsor the program that involves 30 teams.

Entry fees for Slo-Pitch is $50, while fast pitch is set at 70 dollars. They are due in the Ontario Recreation office Thursday.

Pomona will start a new program this fall. Passing Football, similar to the conditioning game the high schools play in the summer.

The organization meeting is set for Thursday, Sept. 13, in the Westmont Community Center at 730 p.m.

Co-Champions Max Baer and sportscaster Tom Kelly will try to separate one another from a share of the crown in the fourth annual California 500 Celebrity Golf Invitational, but watch out for James Garner.

If he can concentrate on the golf course (Jim's tournament chairman, parade chairman, pagaent chairman and honcrary head steward), Garner could be the man to beat.

And he has precedent going for him. When Garner was tournament chairman in 1970, he won the championship.

The 18 hole shotgun tournament will be held at Ontario National Golf Club next Saturday, the day before the Cal 500 race.

Parenlli Jones, president of Ontario Motor Speedway, will be defending his net championship. Ron (Tarzan) Ely, winner of this division in 1971 but absent last year because of film commitments in Europe, will attempt to dethrone Parenlli.

Pomona 'cap tops 14 stakes races at L.A. County Fair meeting

POMONA — Tapped by the $25,000-added Pomona Handicap, a roster of 14 stakes events will be presented during the 1973 racing season that begins Friday, Sept. 14, at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

Announcement of the stakes schedule was made by Phil D. Shepherd, secretary-manager of the Los Angeles County Fair Association, and the list of the added-money events and their conditions is in the condition book recently released by director of racing John Hartley.

At least one stakes a day will be up for decision during the 14-day season, as the added-money schedule includes 13 thoroughbred stakes and the Pomona Quarter Horse Futurity. Last year ten swift youngsters battled for a gross purse of $54,000 in the Quarter Horse event.

Carded at nine furlongs, the Pomona Handicap is the richest of the thoroughbred races which offer a total of $170,000 in added money during the meeting. The Pomona Handicap will highlight the Saturday, Sept. 29, closing day program at the half-mile oval.

Overnight events in the condition book which covers the entire meetng offer more than half a million in purses, and the minimum purse will be $3,500. Topping the overnight roster are five races endowed with purses of $8,000.

Leading up to the Pomona Handicap, which was captured in front running style by Easter Hero last year, are the $15,000-added Governor's Cup Handicap and the $15,000-added C. B. Afflerbaugh Memorial Handicap. The Governor's Cup, at six furlongs tops the first Saturday program of the meeting, and the mile and one-sixteenth Afflerbaugh headlines the second Saturday.

Richest race of the season for sophomores is the $15,000-added Pomona Derby at a mile and one-eighth Sept. 26. The six furlong Foothill Stakes and the mile and one-sixteenth Derby Trial Stakes serve as steppingstones to the Derby.

The complete stakes schedule—

Sept. 14 — $10,000-added Foothill Stakes, three-year-olds, six furlongs.

Sept. 15—$15,000-added Governor's Cup, a handicap for three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Sept. 17—$10,000 added California Thoroughbred Breeders Association Marian Stakes, three-year-old fillies, mile and one-sixteenth.

Sept. 18—$10,000 added Bangles and Beads Stakes, fillies and mares, three-year-olds and up, six furlongs.

Sept. 19—$10,000-added Derby Trial Stakes, three-year-olds, mile and one-sixteenth.

Sept. 20—$10,000-added Bustles and Bows Stakes, two-year-old fillies, six furlongs.

Sept. 21—$10,000-added Beau Brummel Stakes, two-year-old colts and geldings, six furlongs.

Sept. 22—$15,000-added C. B. Afflerbaugh Memorial Handicap, three-year-olds and up, mile and one-sixteenth.

Sept. 24—Pomona Quarter Horse Futurity, two-year-olds, 350 yards.

Sept. 25—$15,000-added Las Madrinas Handicap, fillies and mares, three-year-olds and up, mile and one-sixteenth.

Sept. 26—$15,000-addedPomona Derby, three-year-olds, mile and one-eighth.

Sept. 27—$10,000-added Aprisa Handicap,three-year-olds and up, five and one-half furlongs.

Sept. 28 — $15,000-added Gateway to Glory Stakes, two-year-olds, mile and one-sixteenth.

Sept 29—$25,000-added Pomona Handicap, three-year-olds and up, mile and one-eighth.

Portugese horseman tops TJ cartel today

TIJUANA — A horseback star from Portugal and three exciting young Mexican matadors share the cartel today at the bullring by the sea, Plaza Monumental de Tijuana.

They are the excellent rejoneador, Pedoro Louceiro plus Acapulco star Antonio Lomelin, teen-ager Curro Leal, and daring Jorge Blando.

Beginning at 4 p.m. they will face bulls of the magnificent old ranch, Piedras Negras, which has not sent toros to Tijuana for several years.

Louceiro, wearing the tricornered hat, frilly shirt, long coat, and black boots of the Portuguese horsemen, has been competing extensively in Mexico.

His only other Tijuana appearance was May 16, 1971, when he shared the action with Mexican Evaristo Zambrano. His work was well-received.

Anticipation is high for the return of Lomelin, the 1972 Golden Sword winner. The handsome 28-year-old in the last three seasons has fought his way into the top echelon of toreros in both Mexico and Spain.

In his other Tijuana corrida this season, on July 22, he cut two ears from a fine Reyes Huerta bull. Lomelin, 28, is one of the fiesta's best with sword and banderillas.

Leal, 19, of Mexico City, has enjoyed two sensational afternoons here this summer. This first was his debut July 15 when he won two ears from a foe of Las Huertas. The other was Aug. 5 when he won the tail from a Santo Domingo bull after an enthusiastic faena of whirling passes.

Leal, no relation to longtime star Alfredo Leal, has extensive taurine heritage which includes a grandfather, Cayetano Leal (Pepe-Hillo), who fought in Madrid alongside the famed Mazzantini.

Blando also is from a bullfighting family. His father is retired matador Andres Blando, who in a popular 30-year career fought many times in Tijuana.

DAVE BROWNLEE, former golf star at Claremont High and Citrus College is back on the Western tournament Golf Association tour these days. Dave played in the last two rounds at Quail Lake Country Club on Monday and Tuesday and just missed making some prize money when he shot 75, 76-151 over the tough layout. He'll be in the money in coming weeks. Brownlee now is a resident of La Verne.

Other area players on the tour are Jim Petralia, former Wilson High (La Puente) teacher; Brian Swartz of West Covina; Ken Mescheim, assistant pro at Glendora Country Club; Al Roush, pro at South Hills C.C; and Tim Barry of Covina.

Anyone who has played Quail Lake Country Club realizes how well these western pros play when he notes that this week's winner, Jack Ewing of Capistrano Beach, fired two straight 69's.

Top winner on the tour is Gary McCord of Riverside who has won $14,531 since play started in the first week in July. He's averaging just 70.5 strokes per round.

Others in top money circles and their averages are Alan Tapie, Newport Beach, $11,-964, 70.7 strokes; Dave Newquist, Kansas City, Mo., $11,-412, 71.1; Ewing, $9,455, 71.6; and Bob Rish, Yorba Linda, $7,896, 72.1.

Reversal sought on rate ceiling lift

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Reversal of the actions taken by the federal regulatory agencies on July 5th which lifted interest rate ceilings on amounts paid savers by one-half per cent paid by commercial banks and one-fourth per cent by thrift institutions is sought by George Martin, president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB).

"These actions, which are intended at the time to prevent an outflow of savings from thrift institutions and particularly institutions lending on mortgages, have had the contrary effect," he added.

On the basis of preliminary figures, in the first month since this has been in effect, mortgage lending intitutions have lost about $1 billion whereas commercial banks have gained nearly $4 billion in savings flow, said Martin.

The rate-lifting actions were authorized by the Federal Reserve Board, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

"The evidence is clear that this action has not prevented disintermediation (an outflow of funds) from these financial institutions which support the mortgage market and that it has resulted in a general and extremely substantial raise of interest rates in the housing field and elsewhere.

"If the regulatory agencies continue to show unwillingness to take steps to remedy this disastrous situation, the home building industry will have to ask the Congress to examine the manner in which these agencies have handled their interest rate authority and to take legislative steps to protect consumers and home buyers against the consequences of such actions," said Martin.

"Thousands of potential home buyers are being forced out of the market by the rising rates and scarcity of commitments. The outflow of savings funds from the thrift institutions in July alone had the potential of financing at least 30,000 homes."

It is inconceivable that the actions of the Federal agencies in permitting interest rate increases could have helped the consumer. Even officials of the Home Loan Bank Board acknowledge that the purchase of a $35,000 home in August will cost the buyer $3,600 more in interest than if he had purchased it in July, he noted.

"The real mortgage market rate now is in the range of 9 to 9½ per cent."

Price freeze held on Daybreak homes

UPLAND — Sales have increased at the Daybreak Homes development here as the lifting of a price freeze on home sales approaches, officials report.

While the price freeze was lifted on the sale of homes on Aug. 12, we have voluntorily extended our own freeze on all completed homes at Daybreak Homes in Upland," said Roy Leventhal, of Crowell-Leventhal, builder and developer.

Only six homes remain unsold in Daybreak, which has been a most successful 99 home single family development," he added.

The six homes, having three and four bedrooms, have many standard features that are often options in other homes, said Leventhal. "This includes bedrooms fully carpeted, kitchens with an entire wall of pantry, electric range with eye level ovens and larger lower ovens, dishwashers, luminous kitchen ceiling lights, patio serving windows, and in some places a trash masher."

The homes also have wood paneling in the family room and a large fireplace withgas log-lighters, he added.

The houses are built on large lots, across from a park and elementary school and within walking distance of a junior high school, high school and shopping center.

The homes are priced from $31,950 to $32,950. A family can move in before school begins next month.

The furnished model home, which is also being sold, is located at 1491 N. San Antonio Ave.

UPLAND — The thousands of trees, shrubs, vines and ground cover plants at the Orchard Lane condominium development here just didn't happen.

They were part of a landscaping plan that began even before the land had been prepared for construction.

"The first thing we did was get together with the architects and engineers to work out a total environment plan for Orchard Lane," said Tom Coughlin, landscape designer for the $4.5 million project.

"We all worked to provide an environment that will cause residents to feel like they live in their own single-family home."

The plan was developed from a strictly "human" approach, not that of a detached designer working with drawings, he added.

"We used curved sidewalks, for example, because we've learned that most people prefer them to square corners. And we included small islands of plants and lawn, just to add interest and avoid monotony.

"Even planter walls were designed with a seat on them so residents can sit down for a minute," he explained.

For older residents, the landscape designer has used gentle ramps instead of stairways because they are easier to climb and avoid problems with wheelchairs. At night, there is never a place in Orchard Lane where you can't see a light, said Coughlin.

Plant materials were selected to complement the plan, not only from the standpoint of appearance but for long-term easy maintenance.

"We used over 30 species of trees, with several types of trees within each species, the landscape designer explained. "There are six kinds of eucalyptus trees, for example. Add to these more than 60 kinds of shrubs and over a dozen different types of vines, and you can see how much thought and planning was involved."

Orchard Lane offers two- and three-bedroom single-story homes, priced from $19,900. The development is located near the Montclair Plaza shopping center. The homes include many luxury amenities such as wall-to-wall shag carpeting, drapes, luminous ceilings and ash cabinets in kitchens and ceiling height wardrobes. Many of the homes also have a fireplace.

To reach Orchard Lane's sales information center and model home complex, take Seventh Street to Spencer Avenue, then go north one block to Fredricks Lane.

Opening at 'Patriot' to continue

ONTARIO — The Patriot Homes development will continue this weekend the grand opening of its "Freedom" series.

The model homes are now completed and ready for viewing by visitors, said Mike Hurley, salesman for Walker and Lee.

"Most of the pick up work around the model site is also completed, and the community is taking shape nicely," he added.

The communitys first phase contains 10 homes. Eventually, 36 homes will be built on the 10 acre site. It will represent a $1 million investment.

The development, built by the International Habitat Corp., is located on 8th Street west of Vineyard Avenue.

Buyers have their choice of two plans—the Lexington with four bedrooms and the Concord with three bedrooms. Both plans have two bathrooms, family room and two car garage.

The Lexington is priced at $26,095 and the Concord at $25,995. Conventional financing terms are available.

The homes feature shag carpeting in the living rooms, bedrooms and hallways, built-in gas ranges and ovens, dishwashers, garbage disposals, kitchen service bar, custom cabinets, patio kitchen, front landscaping, concrete driveways, tile entry foyers, built-in television and telephone outlets and storage platforms in the garages.

Both construction and long term financing are being provided by Lomas & Nettleton, said Ed Pickett, president of International Habitat. Mortgage financing terms include a five per cent down payment at an 8.8 per cent interest rate.

Ex-newsreel cameraman plans film story of S.F.

WESTPORT (UPI) — T. K. Peters, a pioneer newsreel cameraman who filmed the 1906 San Francisco earthquake from the window of his hotel room, wants somebody to help him preserve his shots of the quake, fire and other historical events.

Peters, who lives quietly in this small seacoast town 150 miles north of the Golden Gate, will be 90 years old on his next birthday.

He recently established the "San Francisco Photo Archives" as a permanent guardian for his irreplaceable films.

"I figure it will take about $20,000 to restore the film and put sound to it," says Peters.

If he can get financial backing, Peters plans to edit the 12,000 feet of film he shot himself and combine it with other historical footage about San Francisco which he has acquired over the years.

He hopes to produce a motion picture story of the city going back to the De Anza expedition, a dramatization of which was filmed at the Panama Pacific Exposition in 1915.

Some of Peters' own footage predates the great earthquake. In 1903 he filmed San Francisco's notable citizens, and he has 1904 movies of Lillian Russell at the old Grand Opera House.

The collection also includes movies taken by Herbert Miles in 1896 with the camera riding on a cable car up California Street. This is believed to be the first motion picture ever taken in San Francisco.

The day before the great quake in 1906 Peters was scouting around the city for newsreel material when he came across the great singer Enrico Caruso. He chatted with him and took films. Caruso was among those routed from their beds in the Palace Hotel by the quake the next morning.

Peters, a native of Norfolk, Va., is a story subject himself. He left home at the age of 15 to join an expedition to the Yucatan as an artist. A few years later he was creating illusions for magicians. Then he traveled the world with some of them.

He joined the Pathe Freres in Vincennes, France, and thus became one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry. In the ensuing years he made films in Europe, Asia and the South Seas. He recorded the construction of the Panama Canal, from beginning to end.

Later Peters was involved in the development of neon tubes for signs.

Because he had built one of the first microfilm cameras Peters was called on by the Oglethorpe University, Atlanta, to head its "Crypt of Civilization" project. He spent five years collecting artifacts and documents which were placed in an impregnable vault May 25, 1940, to be opened in the year 8,113.

Later he headed the Chinese Air Force College in Georgia, and after World War II he collected equipment and tools to establish a factory in China for aviation instruments.

But the equipment fell into the hands of the Chinese communists, and Peters joined Lockheed Co. until his retirement in 1960.

Interest in doors start at entrance

Door experts point out that most homeowners consider the front entrance essential to the total look of the house exterior. But, some are not aware of the equally effective role doors can play in interior decor.

Ponderosa Pine Woodwork, an assocation of woodork manufacturers, suggests the best way to decorate with doors is to let the front entry "key" the door design for the rest of the house. Designers call this "architectural continuity." It's feasible because there are a variety of wood panel interior doors especially designed to either duplicate or blend with the front door. "Coorindated" exterior and interior styles are available in stock sizes at local lumber dealers and home centers.

—St. Andrew's Cross, with wood panels or glass panes set above an x-shaped door. This design is often used for Dutch doors which, though rarely used inside a house, make a handsome back or side entrance. In Dutch doors, the top and bottom halves operate separately.

—Eight-panel Florentine doors.

—Fifteen-panel Tudor doors.

—Three-panel Contemporary. The panels are large squares, deeply-grooved, and set virtically down the center of the door.

—Mediterranean — Multi-paneled, often with elaborate carving, rich embossing and exotic-looking grillwork.

All of these styles can be abtained as double-entries: duplicate doors set side by side in a wide opening. Wood doors can be painted, or stained to bring out the rich natural grain.

Entrance doors of ponderosa pine are available as complete "packages," with sidelights, columns, fanlights, pediments and other decorative accessories that suit the style. The doors are chemically-treated for weather resistance, and easily weatherstripped. They're good insulators—since wood does not readily conduct heat; and glass panes in exterior doors can usually be obtained double-glazed.

Schools to sue parents of vandals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Parents whose children vandalize school property will be prosecuted in civil suits, Schools Superintendent William J. Johnston said this week.

In issuing an "appeal for prevention," Johnston, Board of Education President Phillip G. Bardos, and William P. Hogoboom, presiding judge of the juvenile court, said they hoped awareness of their legal liability would prompt parents to make their children more responsible.

"Any identifiable parent who can be held liable" will be prosecuted to recover the cost of windows broken and equipment burned or stolen by youngsters, according to Johnston.

Johnston said one West Los Angeles parent was forced to pay $20,000 for damages to school property by his child.

The net loss through vandalism was $1.9 million for the past school year, Johnston said.

Youth spends night in tree after escape

WOODSTOCK, N.H. (UPI) — The wilderness search for a 15-year-old Massachusetts boy was called off when he emerged wet and tired from the woods and reported he had spent the night treed by a bear, while hiking with his family.

"He had been chased up a tree by a bear and remained there some time," said a Fish and Game Department worker, reporting on Peter Colford's scary experience.

"It rained like mad last night. He got pretty well soaked. "Other than being wet and cold, he was perfectly okay."

Certainly no Santa Claus

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Dear Santa Claus: For Christmas, bring Steve Wilkins a bigger chimney, or give him the benefit of your professional counsel.

Wilkins' wife was awakened at 2 a.m. by muffled cries for help. It took her awhile to find where the cries were coming from.

Then she sighted her husband's legs, hanging in the fireplace.

Tilkins, 28, said he arrived home late, could not find his keys, and decided to come down the chimney instead of awakening his wife. A small flue was the flaw in the plan. It was too tight a fit.

Firemen lowered a rope, Wilkins grabbed it and up the chimney he rose, all covered with soot.

Bare evidence proves charge

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI) —State Rep. Robert Edmond wants new laws providing fines and jail sentences for nude swimmers because "It's getting so you can't take your family for a Sunday boat ride in Vermont without spotting skinny dippers in the water."

Edmond said Thursday several officials had told him there might be a hitch to proving the court case against the swimmers—"that if we catch 'em in the nude and they get dressed to go before a judge, it's our word against theirs that they were nude."

But Edmond said, "Why not take 'em in nude?"

Realty president:

Don't wait on interest rate to buy a new home

POMONA — Families who put off buying a home because interest rates are in an upswing are saving money to lose it, said James Odom, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

"Assuming they can afford the home, a two per cent increase in interest rates doesn't begin to compare with the inflation rate, even in more modest times than these," he added.

"Let's say a family is considering a $25,000 home with a down payment requirement of 20 per cent, leaving a balacne to finance through a mortgage of $20,000. Assume the best deal the Realtor or other real estate broker involved can find is nine per cent."

The family balks at that, having figured their budget in less months, said Odom. They had seven per cent in mind. The extra two per cent will cost them about $400 a year, at least until the principal begins reducing.

"Does it really?" asked Odom. "The inflation rate is astonishing every time it is reported in the paper. But let's be conservative and say it's in the neighborhood of six per cent.

"That's an across-the-board figure applying to food, clothing and other costs as well as housing. So let's trim the rate further and say that housing is going up four per cent.

"In my work as a Realtor, I would say that's low. But four per cent of that $25,000 house is still $1,000, the amount the family can expect the property's value to go up in one year. So if the interest rate drops to 7 per cent next year, which in itself is doubtful, and the family buys, they still will have lost $600," he said.

"That's the differenece between the extra $400 they would have paid in interst charges and the $1,000 additional on the house price a year later.

"That's not all. Interst paid on a mortgage loan is an income tax deduction. There are other factors to consider, too. Will rent go up? How much interest would the $5,000 down payment earn in a savings account—4-½ per cent, 6¼ percent. The family will pay income tax on that and still be faced with the necessity of paying out the principal a year later.

"As a down payment, it could have earned them at least the $600 lost to inflation, which amounts to 12 per cent," said Odom.

And if the interest rate does go down and shows signs of staying there, it's always possible to refinance the loan for a better rate, saving money even if the lender charges a fee to do so.

When the cost of borrowing money to finance a house is compared with almost any other form of borrowing—auto, department store revolving charge accounts, personal loan—even at 9 per cent it is a tremendous bargain.

HEBRON, Israeli - occupied Jordan (UPI) — Khaled Nasser Eldin, a 29-year-old attorney, dresses in black pinstriped suits these days. Last year he built a new home. His new office overlooking busy King Feisel Street is usually crowded with clients and friends.

As many Palestinians who have prospered since the Israeli occupation of the West Bank six years ago, the dark haired Eldin appreciates the elevated standing his new wealth has given him within the community. But he harbors dislike for the conditions under which he must live.

Without any sign of bitterness toward the occupying power, Eldin said, "Maybe the Israelis are treating us well now, but we hope to see them leave our land."

There is little overt hostility toward the Israelis in the Jordanian West Bank, the most populous of the territories captured by Israel during the 1967 Middle East war against 600,000 Arabs. But there is nagging dissatisfaction with the transitional and uncertain character of life.

Time after time, in conversations with West Bank Arabs, a feeling of frustration at the political impasse between Israelis and Arabs emerges.

Radi Kal il Nammari whose sunburned face gives him the appearance of being much younger than 54 turned away from the new tractor he acquired three months ago with the help of an Israeli loan of $3500 and spoke longingly of the need for peace.

"For my business being a farmer it makes no difference whether I live under the Israelis or the Jordanians. If I work hard I can make good money anywhere. But if they can make peace then things will really be good."

Nammari points to his two new tractors the extra food on the table and the addition he plans for his house on the outskirts of Jericho as examples of the improvements in his life in recent years.

He said his standard of living for his family of eight has gone up to five times as much as it was in 1967.

With this an election year the question of what to do about the future of the occupied territories has taken on new-found importance especially within the ruling Labor Party.

The "Great Debate" which has been aired in public on and off during the past year focuses on the views of Defense Minister Moshe Dayan who as the man responsible for day-to-day policy in the territories, often has been accused of preparing the way for outright annexation.

Fearful of what the addition of a million Arabs from the occupied lands might do to the concept of a Jewish state, Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir has led the opposition of Dayan, often aided by Prime Minister Golda Meir and Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

The West Bank is the most stickly piece of geography in terms of political settlements because of its large Arab population clusters. The government's attitude, reflected in the speeches of Mrs. Meir, appears to be that a good part of the 2,300 square-mile area could be returned to Jordan in exchange for an acceptable peace settlement.

The most clearly defined proposal for the West Bank's future — neither accepted nor rejected by the government —has come from Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon.

"Allon Plan"

The "Allon Plan" talks of returning all Arab population centers on the West Bank to Jordan while keeping an Israeli military presence along the Western side of the Jordan River.

The local political leadership on the West Bank is difficult to pinpoint. Just who speaks for the 600,000 Arabs there? Former Jordanian officials who happen to live there? The recently elected mayors of such towns as Hebron, Nablus, Bethlehem or Ramallah?

The 51-year-old mayor of Bethlehem, short, stocky Elias Friej, is one of a new breed of West Bank politicians who speak as if they have a following.

In his second floor office overlooking Manger Square in the town where Jesus Christ is said to have been born, Friej has no unkind words for the Israelis. He simply wants them to leave.

"We want our freedom back, our independence back, our liberty back," he said. "You know, we really thought that there would be peace after the six-day war. It was a very great disappointment to us.

"So long as there is this no peace-no war situation, the occupation will continue and time is working against us, the Palestinians."

Seated behind a desk on which a telephone rang constantly, Friej looked across the red carpeted room and out the window at Bethlehem's residents. He dwelled for a moment on their economic condition.

"There is an acute shortage of housing," he said. "The youngsters want to get married, but they can't find homes to live in. What is more, the cost of living has gone up. There is inflation here and all over the West Bank. And with inflation the prices keep going up.

"There is also no cement for the people to build, and this hurts the economy. But, with all these problems, we feel that we have no government of our own to which we can turn for help."

The mayor enthusiastically supports Jordanian King Hussein's plan for a federation of the West and East Banks. Under this proposal, first suggested more than a year ago, the West Bank would operate autonomoulsy but would be under Jordanian sovereignty.

In Nablus, 30 miles north of Jerusalem and the West Bank's biggest town, Kamal Mustafa Adamed portrays himself as a simple businessman who is quite willing to leave the details of a political settlement to the politicians.

"Of course, nobody likes the occupation. But the main thing we feel is that this thing should be settled," he said. "Making more money means nothing if you don't know what's going to happen with your business."

"It doesn't really matter to me whom I live under as long as everything is quiet," he said from behind the wheel of his truck. "I prefer the Israelis because they don't make any distinctions in terms of Arabs, Christians and Jews. They're willing to help anybody."

L.A. OKs fire dept. minority recruiting plan

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Despite the strong opposition of Councilman Louis R. Nowell, the City Council has approved a program designed to improve minority recruitment for the Fire Department.

Nowell, a retired fire captain, said he was not against the recruitment of blacks and Mexican-Americans, but said he was adamantly opposed to what he considers abandonment of the merit system and the lowering of standards in the program.

Supporters of the program, however, said the sole objective was to permit minority group members to join the department and would not harm the merit system.

Under the program, 30 half-time civil service exempt positions of fire student worker would be created at a cost of an estimated $126,800 for the current fiscal year.

Govt. workers cancel trip over Moscow episode

WE'LL NEVER TELL YOU THAT YOU'RE TOO OLD
Have you been told "Sorry, you're just too old to fit our plans?"
You'll never hear it from us. We want you to be older! Your maturity can be an asset to both of us.
If you are a man or woman with enthusiasm, we'll take your age and show you how to put it to work making money. Our records prove many of our "Older" people have averaged $800 to $1200 per month is that over the hill?
Our company has been in business nearly sixty years at the same location and we are the leader in our field.
Our outstanding benefit package includes hospitalization insurance. You also have a complete and comprehensive training program and it won't cost you a cent. Our commissions and bonuses are second to none.
All we ask is: you be in good health, like to meet and work with people, and have an automobile.
We'll take it from there.
So if you are one of those 50 or 60 year olds who have been told "You're too old," try us. We think you'll like us.
If you're interested you can get full details by seeing on Monday between 6 p.m. & 9 p.m. or on Tuesday from 9 a.m. & 11 a.m.
